BLUEGE'S BAT ENABLES NATS TO WIN, 7 TO 2

Retain Lead by Victory at Boston as Macks Also Triumph.

3D BASEMAN DRIVES FOUR RUNS ACROSS

Hits Homer With Man on Base and Pair of Two-Baggers.

HADLEY TIGHTENS AFTER POOR START

MacFayden Weakens in 9th, Allowing Four Runs That Clinch Victory.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Fenway Park, Boston, July 10.—With the aid of Ossie Bluege in particular and several other of his mates in general, Irving Hadley today turned in his fourth successive victory for the Nationals, beating the Red Sox, 7 to 2. As the MacMen close on the heels of the Washington Club, also won, this triumph enabled the Nats to hold on to their small first-place margin.

Hadley was opposed on the hill by Danny MacFayden and the little bespectacled moundman had much the better of the argument until he seemed to lose all effectiveness in the ninth, which saw the Nats score four times and put the verdict in the cooler. Hadley did exceptionally well after the first three frames, during which he granted six hits and two runs, for his offerings were touched for but one other safety over the balance of the route.

Bluege Has Field Day.

At bat Bluege enjoyed one of those field days. In the third inning, with West on first and the residents leading, 2 to 1, the Nats' third sacker poled a screaming round tripper over the wall in left field, while later in the fracas he contributed two lusty doubles. One was wasted, but the other came with the bases filled in the ninth and scored two runners, giving Ossie credit for driving home four runs during the pastime. He was the only Nat to hit safely more than once.

Oliver and Todt accounted for the majority of the home bingles. The former was credited with two singles, while Todt cracked out a triple and double his first two times up and then looked just as helpless against Hadley's slants as the rest of the team.

Both Score in First.

Both teams started off with scoring innings, but MacFayden was able to put on the brakes earlier than was Hadley, the result being that the Red Sox forged into a 2-1 lead in the third, after which Hadley managed to get his pitching machinery clicking on all cylinders.

Myer opened for the Nats with a single and Rice's helpful out and Cronin's one-baser quickly brought him home. In the home half, Hadley was fortunate in holding the Sox to but one run, for Oliver's single and Todt's triple knotted the string and, after Scarritt had fanned, the Nat flinger filled the bases by walking both Webb and Regan. Hadley helped himself out of this hole by making a nice play to force out Todt at home and then Rhyne ended the inning with a looper to West.

In the third, the Sox again started off with a rush, Todt prying the top off of this frame with a double to right. Scarritt's intended sacrifice went as a hit and Webb's sacrifice

Hoover to Attend Legion Convention

President Will Be Guest of Veterans in Boston Next October.

President Hoover announced yesterday that he would attend the twelfth national convention of the American Legion at Boston, Mass., on October 6. An invitation to attend the convention was received by the President last spring from National Commander O. L. Bodenhamer, of the legion.

Commander Bodennamer was a visitor at the White House yesterday and received word from President Hoover that he would attend the convention at the conclusion of an interview in which the national commander expressed approval of five legislative measures passed by Congress in which the legion has been interested. These measures are the disabled men's bill, the Rogers Hospital bill, the measure to investigate feasibility of universal service in war time and extension of five years in which to apply for adjusted compensation, and the measure to consolidate all veterans' activities under one head.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: Probably some people can conscientiously say that they never had a chance. But most people have failed because they did not really try. A recent report tells of a young man with a wife and children, working eight hours each night to support them and maintain himself in college, where he ranked near the head of his class.

Any student knows of the life of Darwin, who from a sick bed that permitted him to work scarcely more than twenty minutes each day, changed the course of the thought of the world. How easily one of these men could have concluded that the necessity of supporting his family made it impossible to secure an education, and the other that poor health prevented him from following his scientific investigations to a conclusion.

The great fact seems to be that when a man dedicates his whole soul to his work, when he fully determines to meet the responsibilities that he incurs, in his time of need some power outside himself directs his course and gives him the strength to prevail. To such men comes revelation. They do better than they know. Therein lies the hope of the world.

WATSON RADIO TALK PRAISES PRESIDENT

Senate Leader Says Hoover Has "Put Through 15 of His Major Policies."

NEW TARIFF DEFENDED

(Associated Press.)

Unreservedly praising President Hoover for facing "great problems he did not create," Senator Watson (Republican), Indiana, said in a radio address last night that time would prove the wisdom of the administration's accomplishments.

Speaking over a national network of the Columbia Broadcasting system, the Republican Senate leader reviewed the administration achievements and said the President "is disappointing only those who have prepared to be and who want to be disappointed."

"He has faced grave problems he did not create," Mr. Watson said. "He has met innumerable difficulties for which he is in no wise responsible. To solve them he has carried through a great program of legislation and administration. The effect of these policies upon public welfare have not yet had time to manifest themselves, but they are as certain to do so in the immediate future as day is to follow night.

"Oncoming results will justify this record and silence all those carping critics and false prophets, the volume of whose clamor is in inverse ratio to the wisdom and fairness of their utterances," Senator Watson continued.

Mr. Watson said notwithstanding a Senate coalition which had a majority of at least eight on any joint vote, the President "yet has been able to put through that body fifteen of his major policies and suffered a defeat in but two, and one of them was but short-lived."

He asserted progress had been made although there was "the most persistent, factional and partisan opposition within the memory of the American people."

Considering farm relief, the senator said the return of better general economic conditions would bring a "solution of this problem by placing agriculture on a basis of equality with other great industries at hand." He contended the new tariff law "is chiefly in its rates a farm-relief measure" and would "in due time vindicate itself" by the restoration of "normal, prosperous conditions."

"Foreign powers, most of them with a higher tariff than our own, which have protested the new tariff law, will discover that the restoration of prosperity in the United States will help and not hurt the rest of the world, and that it will promote, and not diminish, foreign trade," Mr. Watson said.

He defended the flexible provision of the tariff and asserted that "the

COLORED MOTHERS GIVEN SPECIAL SHIP

HURLEY CITES REASONS

(Associated Press.)

War Department efforts to secure accommodations on any major transatlantic shipping line for the Negro Gold Star mothers and widows going abroad this summer at Government expense have ended in failure.

Inability of any of the companies to accommodate the group of Negro mothers and widows sailing on July 12 has resulted in the chartering by the War Department of a separate ship for the purpose.

Various reasons were given the War Department by the Holland-America Line, the North German Lloyd, the Cunard Line, the Anchor Line, the International Merchantile Marine Co. and the French Line for their inability to meet requirements to accommodate the group.

To the American Merchant Lines, affiliated with the United States Lines, was assigned the charter for the group sailing on the 12th, the entire accommodations of the freighter-passenger vessel American Merchant being taken.

Cost of chartering the vessel, it was said, will bring the average for transportation of Negro mothers and widows to more per person than that for white mothers and widows, many of whom sailed in cabin passage on vessels of the United States Lines.

Of the group which is to sail the 12th, seven have already indicated that they do not desire to make the trip. The War Department has not been advised of the reason for these cancellations but it was said that this is about the usual number who cancel their passages at the last moment. Fifty-eight mothers and widows are scheduled to sail on the vessel.

Secretary Hurley in a formal statement last night defended the department in its arrangements for transportation of the white and Negro groups to Europe.

His statement said in part:

"After thorough study, the conclusion was reached that formation of white and colored groups of mothers and widows would best assure contentment and comfort of the pilgrims themselves. No discrimination as between various groups is contemplated. All groups will receive like accomodations at hotels and on steamships, and representatives of the War Department will, at all times, be as solicitous of the welfare of colored mothers and widows as they will be (Associated Press Sports Editor).

Interlachen Club, Minneapolis, July 10.—Down through the blazing glare of one of the hottest days in the history of the American open golf championship, two lean, sharpshooting veterans of the old Scotch school, black-thatched Tommy Armour and fair-haired MacDonald Smith, matched stroke for stroke to take the lead for the first eighteen-hole round of competition and steal the sweltering show for the day from the king himself, Bobby Jones.

Armour and Smith, with a brace of sensational finishes, finished within a few minutes of each other late in the day with identical scores of 37—33—70, 2 under par for the Interlachen course. Their golf over the tough last nine, where each clipped three strokes from old man par to break the old course record for the third time in the day, enabled each other to overtake Jones. Bobby's score of 34—37—71 set the pace early in the day and was touched only by Wilfred (Wiffy) Cox, Brooklyn, N. Y., professional, also with 34—37, until the heat wave began to produce inspiring results on the games of the two Scotsmen.

7,500 Spectators Also Swelter.

It was officially 96 in the shade wherever any shade could be found today and 100 degrees up so far as the competitors and a perspiring, bedraggled but rugged gallery of more than 7,500 spectators were concerned. They were appropriately rewarded by one of the hottest opening day fights in the history of the tournament, with a climax put on by Armour and Smith that made high-blood pressures higher.

Facing only an outside chance of getting in front on the last nine, the 35-year-old Tommy Armour, of the Edinburgh Armours, put on one of his typically fighting finishes with an eagle 3 on the 484-yard eleventh, due to a 20-foot putt after an amazing No. 2 iron to the green, and then a birdie 3 that he needed on the home hole to take the lead, due this time to another blazing iron shot dead to the pin for a 4-foot putt that easily went down.

Even with Armour for ten holes, 38-year-old Mac Smith, of the Car-

MATTER DISCUSSED AT PARTY MEETING

Claudius H. Huston announced yesterday that he will wait until the Senate has adjourned, and then make known whether he is going to resign as chairman of the Republican national committee.

This will delay the decision for two, probably three, weeks, depending upon how long the fight over the London Naval Treaty lasts.

The Republican leader, who is fighting with his back to the wall as various elements in the party cry out for his scalp, gave out a cryptic statement following his conference with the officers of the national committee.

In this he interviewed himself, as follows:

"Was the chairmanship matter discussed?"

"Certainly the matter of the chairmanship was discussed, but what I have to say on that subject will be withheld until after the adjournment of the Senate."

Reminiscent of Coolidge.

The confusion that followed was somewhat reminiscent of the bewilderment that greeted Calvin Coolidge's famous "I do not choose to run" statement. In response to requests that he elaborate, Chairman Huston invited his interviewers to make their own interpretation.

The interpretation generally placed on the statement was that as soon as the Senate quits, Mr. Huston also will quit. Among those who so interpreted his words were men high in the Republican party.

For Chairman Huston to resign now, it was pointed out, would be to give the Democrats in the Senate a chance to make a political field day of the incident; to revive the story of how Mr. Huston used Muscle Shoals lobby money to invest in the stock market, and to indulge in a general oratorical orgy designed to help the Democratic cause in November.

Displays Calm at Interview.

For a man who has been hounded as he has been hounded these last few weeks, Chairman Huston displayed an admirable calm when he faced a score or more of newspapermen after his

SENATE ASKS HOOVER, 53 TO 4, FOR SECRET DATA ON NAVAL PACT

Four Dissenting Voices Due to Softening of First Demand.

FIGHT WAGED UPON QUALIFYING WORDS

Seventeen Vote Against Permitting Option by President.

COPELAND SEES DIRK IN ESCALATOR CLAUSE

Johnson Reads Forbidden Documents as Given to Parliament.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

The Senate by a vote of 53 to 4 yesterday requested President Hoover to transmit all secret documents and data bearing on the London naval treaty. Adoption of the resolution followed the inclusion of the customary language "if not incompatible with the public interest."

It was a foregone conclusion that this language would not be omitted, but a stiff fight was waged against including it and seventeen senators voted to deny the President the technical right of refusal, which obviously he has, irrespective of the form of the resolution.

After the overwhelming vote calling for the secret documents, the Senate adjourned until 11:30 today to await the President's response. Opinion is divided as to whether the President will yield to the Senate, but it is conceded on all sides that a refusal will increase the obstacles to speedy ratification and will greatly strengthen the ranks of the treaty opponents.

Borah Opposes Pledge.

There was no real effort made to oppose the final resolution as supporters of the pact realized the hopelessness of such an effort. A last-minute effort was made by Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader and the President's chief defender, to pave the way for Mr. Hoover to send the documents under a senatorial pledge to receive them in confidence, but Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, again refused to consider any suggestion of bargaining. He maintains that the President must either send them unconditionally or not at all, and that the Senate must remain its own master in dealing with the situation.

The vote on Senator Robinson's amendment, to include the language "if not incompatible with the public interest," clearly showed the possible serious consequences of continuing the battle between the President and the Senate over the secrecy issue. In three days' debate upward of a dozen senators who expected to go along with the administration's treaty program have either reconsidered or announced openly that they will insist upon the secret data before voting for ratification.

Opposition May Increase.

The list of seventeen does not include either Blaine or Moses or Shipstead, and if the treaty program is opposed at this early date by twenty, the opposition is likely to prove far more formidable than expected. The Robinson amendment was adopted by a vote of 38 to 17. The seventeen nays were:

Republicans—Hale, Howell, Johnson, La Follette, Norris, Nye, Oddie, Schall—8.

Democrats—Black, Copeland, George, Harris, McKellar, Pittman, Thomas of Oklahoma, Walsh of Massachusetts, Walsh of Montana—9.

The four senators voting against the final McKellar resolution were Black, Copeland, George and Harris. They wanted the resolution without the language in the Robinson amendment.

Shortly before the vote Senator Johnson read into the record two of

FRANCE SUSPENDS WARSHIP BUILDING

WAR RUMORS SCOUTED

Paris, July 10 (A.P.).—Foreign Minister Aristide Briand today announced suspension of France's shipbuilding program until December to open the way for naval negotiations with Italy. He told the foreign relations committee of the Chamber of Deputies at the same time that "another war in Europe is impossible and inadmissible."

M. Briand assured the committee there is no reason for emotion concerning the relations between France and Italy. He said every move possible on the part of France had been made toward a satisfactory understanding with her neighbor country.

Disclosing that no more ships would be put on the stocks in the French building program before next December, Minister Briand said Premier Mussolini had been informed of that fact officially. M. Briand said Italy had thus been provided with plenty of time for renewal of the dis-

Capital Arrests Drop But Rum Cases Mount

Campaign to Reduce Number of Seizures in Petty Offenses Bears Fruit, Total Falling 13.70 Per Cent Below Last Year's Figure.

The campaign of Commissioner Herbert B. Crosby and Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, to reduce the number of arrests for petty infractions of laws and regulations in the District apparently is bearing fruit in reduced number of arrests.

Statistics compiled by Capt. L. I. H. Edwards and made public yesterday showed that in the course of the three months ended with June the total number of arrests recorded by the police was 13.70 per cent less than the number made in the same month last year.

Arrests for traffic law violations in the last three months showed a drop of 19.2 per cent as compared with the number made in the same three months last year and the total of arrests on misdemeanor charges declined by approximately 16 per cent in the last three months as compared with the same three months last year.

But the National Capital is as thirsty as ever, the figures indicate, for the arrests for violations of the Volstead law increased 46.8 per cent in the last three months as compared with the same period last year. There was an increase of 8.7 per cent in the number of persons arrested for violation of the Sheppard law which makes intoxication an offense.

There were in the last three months 26,354 arrests recorded in the District, which was a decrease of 4,499 from the 32,853 recorded in the same three months last year for all offenses.

There were 14,357 arrests for traffic violations in the last three months. This was a decrease of 3,415 from the 17,772 traffic arrests made in the same three months last year.

Arrests for misdemeanors in the last three months numbered 5,811, as compared with 6,916, a decrease of 1,105 from the total of the three months of last year.

Whether the philosophers of the school of Omar Khayyam increased in number or whether the police were more vigilant is a matter for debate between those who seek to make wet or dry ammunition out of official statistics, but the fact, shown by Capt. Edwards' statistics, is that in the last three months there were 1,635 arrests for violations of the Volstead law. This was an increase of 522 over the 1,113 arrests for violations of that law in April, May and June of last year.

Intoxication was charged to 2,726 persons in the last three months. This was an increase of 298 over the 3,428 arrested for violations of the Sheppard law in the same three months last year.

Pinchot Plans Governorship Campaign on Own Ticket

Fears Loss, Through Action in Court, of Victory in Primary.

Milford, Pa., July 10 (A.P.).—Gifford Pinchot, whose nomination as the Republican candidate for governor in the fall election has been attacked by his principal opponent in the May primary, says he does not intend to be caught napping if a court decision keeps him off the Republican ticket.

The former governor announced today that the present situation with regard to the nomination makes it necessary for him to prepare to run on an independent ticket. To that end, he said, at the proper moment, he and his friends, would preempt a ticket, State-wide and in every congressional, senatorial and legislative district. A place on the ticket, he added, would be offered to every the documents given to the foreign relations committee by Secretary Stimson under the seal of secrecy and with an admonition that their contents should not be disclosed. Mr. Johnson disclaimed any intention of violating confidence, but explained that the documents denied to the Senate had already been transmitted to the British Parliament by the British foreign office and made public in London.

Reads Published Reports.

The senator read from the published reports of these documents and not from the identical documents transmitted in secret by the State Department.

Senator Shipstead directed his criticism against the internationalists in his speech against secrecy.

"The most dangerous propaganda going on in this country," he said, "is that of the pacifists who urge crippling American national defense and at the same time urge American participation in all future international wars."

According to Mr. Shipstead, the internationalists demand that America remain unarmed but that America meddle in affairs all over the world.

"We grew to a great power, from a little strip along the Atlantic Coast, without meddling in the affairs of the world," he added. "Maybe we did not assume moral leadership, but at least we minded our own business. Our foreign trade did not suffer.

"What we seem to forget is that in war nations always make war in the name of peace. If statesmen put the right label on any instrument and call it peace, humanity swallows it.

Ses Surrender by U. S.

Senator Copeland maintained that the American delegation at the London conference had surrendered all that the Americans under Coolidge refused to surrender. In this connection, he asserted that the escalator clause permits the British to do precisely what Great Britain vainly sought to do at Geneva.

"The escalator clause is the dagger in the heart of this treaty. Great Britain can build exactly what she desires."

Senator McKellar called attention to the statement from Republican headquarters to the effect that the treaty would be a valuable political asset for President Hoover at the coming congressional elections.

"Are we to set aside all our convictions, all our patriotic beliefs, because the President wants us to do thus and so?" asked Senator Copeland.

"The treaty fails to give protection to American commerce," he concluded. "The treaty will act as a taxation burden on the people. The treaty is not what it appears on its face to be."

Senator Copeland was congratulated by Republicans and Democrats when he ended his speech at 2:08. A quorum call followed and after delay and difficulty 49 senators responded to their names at 2:20.

Copeland's Mind Changed.

A page boy came to the desk and whispered and the clerk counted the forty-ninth senator and the Vice President so announced. There was an awkward lull when the roll call at first failed to develop a quorum. It took twelve minutes to get the necessary quorum of 49 at the opening of the session.

Senator Copeland said he had hoped to vote for the treaty but that he had found reasons for changing his mind after a study of the pact. The surrender to Japan, endangering America's position as a world power capable of protecting her commerce, had been one of the chief reasons for his decision, said the senator from New York.

"If I could believe America's national interests would be safe and that taxation would really be lowered, I would favor the treaty," he added. But, he contended, that all the promises made to the American people in connection with naval arms limitation had been forgotten, that America's security is seriously jeopardized, that the promised parity is a sham, that America has surrendered to British and Japanese pressure and that the burdens of taxation are actually to be increased by the pact.

Parity Idea Defeated.

"The escalator clause utterly defeats the idea of parity that has been preached from the pulpits and shouted from the housetops. In other words, the treaty does not mean anything. My thought about it is that the American people do not understand it. It is a rather trite thing to say that it would be better to wait until the people understand it and form their judgment about it, but that is the way I feel.

"Calvin Coolidge applied a degree of common sense to foreign relations that was remarkable," continued Senator Copeland. "The American delegation in 1927, under the wise guidance of Coolidge, refused to yield to Great Britain and Japan. They refused to permit Great Britain to dictate to America the kind of cruisers America should build.

Senator Johnson made a brief speech supporting the resolution calling upon the President for the secret papers pertaining to the treaty. He pointed out that the foreign relations committee had received in confidence the original American proposal at London and the British and Japanese replies to it.

Embargo on Papers.

But he explained that an embargo on that information had been placed by the State Department so that the Senate was not permitted to know the contents of these documents.

"Is the United States Senate so weak and so futile that it can not have the American proposal, the British reply and the Japanese reply? Has the Senate neither the desire nor the courage to have the facts to determine matters pertaining to the Nation's future and the national defense?" asked the senator from California.

Discussion of the naval treaty may begin in earnest today, when Senator Hale, chairman of the naval affairs committee, presents the pact and discusses it in detail.

cussion of a treaty of disarmament under conditions that existed in French naval armament during the London Naval Conference.

The foreign minister asserted that France since the great war had ceded 120,000 square miles of former French territory on the Tripolitan frontier to Italy, thus removing any possible cause for feeling in that quarter. He added that although France had striven for a triparty entente of France, Italy and Jugoslavia, Italy "had preferred to negotiate with Jugoslavia separately."

In conclusion the foreign minister asserted that while Italy had demanded naval parity the Italian government never had furnished figures or arguments to justify the claim.

Many residents reported the shaking of buildings, jolting of furniture and rattling of dishes.

FIVE DEAD AS PLANE EXPLODES IN MIDAIR

PLUNGES OUT OF CLOUD

Aransas Pass, Tex., July 10 ((A.P.). Five Kansas City men who flew to the Gulf of Mexico on a fishing trip, four of them prominent business and professional men and the fifth a transport pilot, met death near here today when their airplane exploded in the air and crashed to the ground.

The dead: Murat Boyle, 48, president of the Missouri Bar Association and prominent civic leader in Kansas City; Raymond Watson, 39, attorney and son of I. N. Watson, veteran member of the Kansas City bar; R. J. Delano, 47, for the last twenty years a builder of apartments and residences in Kansas City and formerly chairman of the Republican city committee; Eugene Lynn, expert accountant and president of the Kansas City Golf Association, and Gene Gabbert, a transport pilot of several years' experience and for the last year pilot for Dr. W. M. Cross, former city chemist of Kansas City, who loaneed his plane for the fishing trip.

Wings Break From Ship.

Witnesses of the crash said their attention was attracted by an explosion and looking skyward they saw the wings break from the six-passenger monoplane. The fuselage hurtled down with the trapped victims and buried itself in the salt flats about 5 miles from here. The plane did not catch fire. The wings were found 500 feet from the fuselage.

The theory that lightning struck the plane was given credence by experienced pilots. They pointed out there had been scattered showers in the vicinity all day and that local squalls were noticeable over Corpus Christi Bay.

Frederick H. Dierks, Kansas City lumberman, the sixth member of the party that arrived at Corpus Christi Sunday in quest of tarpon fishing, was the only survivor of the group. He decided at the last minute to let the plane leave without him while he remained at Port Aransas, across the bay from here, for more fishing.

Plane Goes Into Cloud.

Dierks bade good-by to his companions at the air field.

"The plane made a perfect take-off," he said. "I stood watching it until it was fully 4,000 feet up. The sky was clear. Ahead several miles I could see an exceedingly dark cloud. I watched the plane until it disappeared in this black cloud. A few minutes later I heard there had been an accident.

"I don't suppose any one will know positively just what happened up there in that black cloud, but it seemed to be the impression of nearly all who saw the accident that the plane had been struck by lightning."

Protection Asked By Priscilla Dean

Movie Star Fears Intrusion by Wife of Former Mate, Lieut. L. P. Arnold.

Beverly Hills, Calif., July 10 (A.P.). Priscilla Dean, motion picture actress, revealed today she had asked police to watch her home from intrusion by Mrs. Mildred Avery Arnold, first wife of Lieut. Leslie P. Arnold, around-the-world flier.

Miss Dean was Arnold's second wife, until a Fulton County, Georgia, court set aside the divorce between Arnold and his first wife. An encounter between Mrs. Arnold and Miss Dean, some tibe ago, was revealed in the plea for police protection.

The actress reported she found Mrs. Arnold and some agents in her garage. Attorneys for Mrs. Arnold said they were seeking to ascertain whether Arnold was there. The actress said Arnold has been in the East since the Georgia court set aside his divorce.

Construction Is Begun On Radio Range Beacon

A radio range beacon, which had been planned for the site of the new airport at Wasinhgton, has been started at Hunter's Point, on the Virginia side of the Potomac at the south end of Gravelly Point. Construction of the beacon had been held up in hope that Congress would do something definite about the airport site, but when it adjourned recently without anything being done, construction was begun in its present site, as being the most likely spot for the airport.

The beacon, which is being built by the airways division of the Department of Commerce, is the last of the chain on the New York-Atlanta air line. The airways division has also begun work on a new "flying weather" station which will be on the Potomac about 3 miles below the District line.

Head of Du Pont Firm Will Marry Third Time

Wilmington, Del., July 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Lammott du Pont, who occupies an outstanding position in financial circles in this country as president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., and as chairman of the board of directors of the General Motors Corporation, is to be married for the third time early in the fall.

Announcement of his engagement to Mrs. Caroline Hynson Stollenwerck, daughter of Mrs. Rogers Wilson, of this city, was made here today. Mrs. Stollenwerck is the widow of E. Carroll Stollenwerck, of Baltimore, and in recent years has been living in Scarsdale, N. Y., with her son, who is attending school.

Hoover Asked to Join Syrian-American Body

President Hoover was yesterday invited to become an honorary member of the Syrian-American Society of the United States by Joseph S. Baddour, of Goldsboro, N. C., special representative of the society.

Mr. Baddour said that in his conference with George Akerson, secretary to the President, it was indicated that the President might join later. Mr. Baddour said that the widows, parents and relatives of the soldiers of Syrian descent would consider it a particular honor to have the President a member of the organization.

Roumanian Aviators Hurt on Long Flight

Bucharest, July 10 (A.P.).—Prince Jean Ghika of Roumania, who left Bicester, England, Wednesday, attempting a new nonstop record for an airplane flight to Istanbul, was seriously injured today in a smash-up on Mount Guruneavo.

He was taken to a hospital at Teteven, Bulgaria.

HOOVER TRIP PLANS REMAIN INDEFINITE

Details Being Worked Out for Journey Through Western Parks.

VISIT TO TEXAS LOOMS

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover hopes soon to be able to turn his attention to plans for his summer trip.

Those who know him best say the Senate will not be out of session long before the President is on the move again. Where he is going, however, he himself does not know yet.

Plans for the Western swing through the national parks which he proposed making still are being carried forward tentatively, but circumstances may prevent this. He has been advised by some party leaders to avoid the West this summer because of the unsettled political situation in many States.

Uncertainty regarding the length of time the Senate will take in considering the London Naval Treaty is the major factor causing plans for the trip to be held in abeyance, although the condition of Mrs. Hoover, who has but recently returned to the White House after a period of convalescence at the presidential camp in Virginia, also is being taken into consideration.

The President has definitely decided not to go to California, and only recently informed Senator McNary, of Oregon, that he would not visit any of the Pacific States.

If the Senate adjourns before August 1, it is expected the President will visit some of the Rocky Mountain national parks and probably Texas. He is considering spending several weeks on the New England coast if the Senate remains longer than expected, and there is the third possibility that he may spend the summer in weekly trips to his Rapidan River camp.

Many Die of Heat In Middle Wset

Several States Experience 100 Degrees or More During Day.

Chicago, July 10 (A.P.).—Withering weather held its unrelenting grip on the Middle West today with more than a dozen States experiencing 100 degrees or hotter. Numerous new prostrations and deaths were attributed to the heat wave which has hovered over the broad central plains all week.

In Illinois, a severe rainstorm and high wind swept across the north part of the State, bringing temporary relief from the heat but causing extensive damage to telephone and telegraph lines, wrecking many silos and windmills and tramping down grain fields.

In Kansas many farmers reported that they were doing their wheat harvest by moonlight to avoid the heat, but at Minneapolis contestants in the national open golfing championship toiled over teh hills in a boiling sun that registered 100 degrees. The St. Louis area reported two more deaths and a dozen or more prostrations. A street worker in Council Bluffs, Iowa, collapsed while at work and died later.

DAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE.

Met at noon and recessed at 4:30 p. m. to 11:30 a. m. today.

When the roll was called, 49 senators answered to their names.

Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, attacked the London Naval Treaty, declaring that it would continue the burden of taxation and defeat parity between the United States and Great Britain.

By a vote of 53 to 4, adopted the McKellar resolution requesting President Hoover to turn over to the Senate all letters and cablegrams exchanged among the powers prior to the London naval parley.

Before the resolution was adopted, an amendment was approved, 38 to 17, which would let the President decide whether it was compatible with public interest to turn over the documents.

Senator Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, suggested that, in the interest of peace, the State Department send to all Latin-American countries the Kellogg note interpreting the Monroe Doctrine.

New York Mayor Bags Few Fish

Returns Safe After Report Barron Collier Yacht Was Grounded.

New York, July 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Mayor Walker's first all-day fishing trip of the season, off Montauk Point, Long Island, today ended in a story and that was about all.

The mayor reached Montauk in Barron Collier's 180-foot yacht Florida Wednesday and early today he and a small party, accompanied by Capt. Charles Thompson, a professional fisherman, put off on their all-day fishing trip in the Montauk Yacht Club cruiser Montauk. When they came back at 5:30 p. m. all they had to show interested inquirers was an eight-foot blue shark, a blackfish and a couple of bass.

While the mayor offered no fishing story, others told him of wild and lurid rumors that the Collier yacht, with the mayor on board, had grounded. The report gained such credence that Coast Guard cutters were dispatched to Montauk and one crossed the harbor just as the mayor returned from his fishing trip.

Lansburgh Employes Plan Outing Tomorrow

Games and entertainment of every variety and for all ages will feature the aquatic outing tomorrow of employes of Lansburgh & Bro. Among the attractions will be a bathing beauty contest and a varied assortment of field events.

The department store employes will leave the Seventh street warf at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning on the steamer City of Washington. The Nighthawk Orchestra will provide music for dancing. Those in charge of the outing are Thomas Muhlenburg, M. Kahn, J. Bogan and A. K. Staley.

Mate Treated for Cut; Wife Detained by Police

Struck on the left side of his head with a glass vase, said to have been wielded by his wife, Henry N. Hill, 42 years old, of Maryland avenue near Thirteenth street northeast, was taken ta Casualty Hospital for medical aid. A cut on his head was dressed there.

Mrs. Helen Hill was arrested by Ninth Precinct police and charged with assault.

HUSTON POSTPONES QUITTING DECISION

Will Announce Course When Senate Adjourns, He Tells Reporters.

MOVE CALLED POLITICAL

conference with the party chieftains yesterday.

"Why do you set the Senate adjournment as the date for your announcement?" he was asked.

"That puts it at a definite time," he replied.

With a laugh, he added that the interlude might keep the newspapers quiet for a while.

He said that, in the conference with the national officers, he had not indicated one way or the other whether he would get out.

Not Asked to Resign.

"Were you asked to resign?"

"I was not."

This was surprising. On the previous day, Representative Will Wood, of Indiana, chairman of the Congressional campaign committee, had said that, although Mr. Huston had been maligned, it was time for him to resign for the sake of the party's welfare. It had been expected that Mr. Wood would say the same thing at yesterday's conference.

Questioned as to what Representative Wood did say, Mr. Huston declared that this information would have to come from Mr. Wood himself.

"Do you intend to resign after the Senate adjourns?" the beleaguered chairman was asked.

Tells Questioners to Wait.

"The next statement I make will answer that," he replied.

"The statement you have just issued will be interpreted that way."

"Well, that is a matter for you to decide."

Those who attended yesterday's conference included Daniel E. Pomeroy, of New Jersey, vice chairman; J. Matt Chilton, national committeeman from Kentucky, proxy for Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, vice president; J. R. Nutt, of Ohio, national treasurer; James Francis Burke, of Pennsylvania, general counsel; Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, chairman of the senatorial campaign committee; Representative Wood, and Earle S. Kinsley, of Vermont, and William G. Skelly, of Oklahoma, members of the executive committee.

The morning session, Chairman Huston said in his statement, was devoted to a general discussion of plans for the fall election.

Same Plan This Year.

"The same plan is being followed this year in the raising of campaign funds as was followed in 1928," he said, "in that the entire requirements of the party are being raised through the treasurer of the national committee and allocated to the senatorial and congressional committees, who are in active charge of the campaign.

"The treasurer, J. R. Nutt, reported that satisfactory progress was being made to insure the proper needs of these committees and that his organization would continue with the work until sufficient money had been pledged to supply the expenses of the campaign and provide for the normal expenses of the national committee for the ensuing year.

"Both Senator Moses and Congressman Wood reported that their organizations were functioning in a satisfactory manner, and, while it is too early to forecast results, prediction was made that party chances would improve as the campaign grew nearer."

Vacancies on Committee.

"A number of vacancies exist on the national committee which were discussed and will be presented for action by either the executive committee or the national committee in the customary way when called by the chairman."

At this point in the statement, Mr. Huston, anticipating the newspapermen, asked the question of whether the chairman was discussed, and replied to it with the cryptic announcement aforementioned.

The silence that the President has maintained on the question of Mr. Huston's dilemma was continued yesterday. It is known, however, that the President is hoping that Mr. Huston will get out.

Kept Posted by Aids.

He was kept posted on the day's developments not only by his secretary, George Akerson, but by three of those who conferred with Chairman Huston—Vice Chairman Pomeroy, Treasurer Nutt and Counsel Burke.

When the demands for Mr. Huston's resignation began to grow more insistent recently, the chairman told friends that he would step down as soon as Congress adjourned.

In setting the adjournment date of the Senate's special session for his definite announcement, it is possible that he feels that he is remaining true to that promise.

Virginia Postoffice Changed.

The Postoffice Department yesterday announced that the name of the postoffice known as Shraders, Va., would be changed to Bishop, effective August 1.

TARDIEU VICTORIOUS IN CHAMBER FIGHTS

Escapes Downfall on Pair of Issues; Senate Attack Looms.

FOES SEEK RESIGNATION

Paris, July 10 (A.P.).—Premier Andre Tardieu's government, fighting a series of skirmishes with an increasingly dangerous opposition this week, today by strength and strategy succeeded in beating off two attacks from the Left of the Chamber of Deputies.

After a debate in which fist fights were often threatened and a good deal of personal scuffling went on between Conservatives and Socialists, the government defeated an opposition attack on a measure dealing with finance for the numerous communes into which France administratively is divided.

Making the rejection a matter of confidence or in other words threatening to resign if the motion were passed, Premier Tardieu was victorious by a margin of 66 votes. The figures were 325 to 259.

New Attacks Today.

By strategy, he dodged an open test of strength on the alleged excessive severity of penalties the government imposed on leaders of the recent Paris postal strike. After having made the vote a question of confidence, he withdrew the ultimatum and the vote was left pending.

M. Tardieu, however, will have to meet further attacks in both houses tomorrow. After he had withdrawn the question of confidence, the chamber decided to thrash out the entire question of the postal employes on Friday, and it was reported in the lobbies tonight that the opposition would launch a vigorous attack against the government at the end of the debate.

Another attack in the Senate also was being prepared by the opposition. This was in opposition to the attitude of the regional prefects toward manifestations in favor of licensed schools, several of which have recently met with official rebuffs.

Quick Overthrow Desired.

On Tuesday, the Tardieu government first began to feel the force of what political observers agree is a determined attempt by the left to defeat it before the end of the regular sessions.

M. Tardieu was then in great difficulties in the Senate, escaping defeat by a very close vote, but apparently reestablished his position by a victory on the same day in the chamber.

It now is apparent that the issue on which the test of strength will come is immaterial. In the chamber three different questions have been utilized as pretexts for an attack since Tuesday. The opposition is anxious to overthrow the government before M. Tardieu has a chance to read the decrees ending the session, in the hope of preventing him from utilizing the vacation to repair his political fences.

The old issue of church and state, which survives in a jealous rivalry among French political men, is the favorite pretext. On many questions having religious implications the ministry itself and its majority in the chamber are divided among themselves.

Von Bernhardi, German War General, Dies

Berlin, July 10 (A.P.).—Gen. Friedrich von Bernhardi, high German officer during the World War, died today at the age of 81. He was the first Prussian officer to enter Paris after its fall in the Franco-Prussian War.

Gen. von Bernhardi was a corpious writer on military affairs and strategy as well as an army commnader. In May, 1912, he predicted in a Berlin newspaper an Anglo-German war. At the outbreak of the World War he commanded the home units of the Fiftieth Army Corps, but at his own requests was assigned to a field command and left for the front in December, 1915. He was an early advocate of the use of asphyxiating gases.

Envoy's Wife Hurt In Crash of Auto

Woman Driving Car Loses Control Temporarily Through Illness.

Mrs. Jan Papanek, wife of the Secretary of the Czechoslovakian Legation, suffered minor injuries and her husband escaped unhurt at noon yesterday when the automobile she was driving near her home, at 3059 Porter street northwest, struck a tree.

She was treated at her home for injuries of the chest and lacerations of the left leg by Dr. George Ruffin, of 1615 Connecticut avenue northwest.

The accident occurred when Mrs. Papanek suddenly became ill while driving the machine. The car veered over the curb on the opposite side of the street, knocked down a 6-foot tree box and struck the tree it encircled. The sharp impact damaged the machine to the extent of $200.

Receivers Are Named For First National Co.

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., July 10.—Receivers were appointed in Circuit Court today for the First National Co., a mortgage and investment institution which figured in the Senate lobby committee's investigation of Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee. The first intimation to the public that the company was in financial troubles was given in Mr. Huston's testimony last March.

Robert J. Gill counsel for the company, who also figured in the lobby testimony, said that mortgages in Florida which had fallen in value and on which the company could not realize to meet its obligations had figured largely in the failure.

27 ARMY AVIATORS QUIT SERVICE IN YEAR

High Record Set as Fliers Accept More Lucrative Commercial Jobs.

PAY RAISE DELAY CITED

During the fiscal year just ended, 27 officers resigned from the Army Air Corps, a high record. In 1921 nine flying officers left the Army to accept more lucrative positions in private life. Each year since the number has increased.

High officers of the Army attribute these resignations primarily to rapid expansion in commercial aviation during recent years. Many experienced Army pilots have received offers they felt they could not reject in justice to their families.

Not a few fliers had remained in the Air Corps in the hope that Congress would at the recent session enact legislation to correct certain inequalities in the matter of salaries and promotion, but instead a joint committee of the Senate and House was appointed to give the matter further study.

Resignations from the Army as a whole during the past fiscal year aggregated 102, a smaller number than during any similar period in the past 10 years, except 1928, when resignation totaled 85.

The reason advanced by most officers voluntarily leaving the service is that private employment promises better financial returns. This is true of most of the 1,449 officers who have resigned during the past ten years. It is particularly true of the Corps of Engineers, which every year loses about 1 per cent of its commissioned personnel. Only recently two majors resigned from the Corps of Engineers, each to accept a $25,000 position on the outside, one as city manager and the other as an official of a large power company.

Many Romans View Body of Vannutelli

Rites for Dean of Sacred College to Be Held Tomorrow.

Vatican City, July 10 (A.P.).—Mourners by thousands from all ranks and conditions of society today passed the body of Vincenzo Cardinal Vannutelli as it lay in state in violet vestments in the throne room of D'Ataria Palace, Everywhere throughout Rome was manifest the mourning in which the populace joined with Vatican City over the passing yesterday of the 93-year-old dean of the Sacred College and high prince next to the Pope of the Catholic Church.

Arrangements went forward today for the funeral of the prelate, announced officially for 10 o'clock Saturday at the Church of St. Ignatius, when Cardinal Pignatelli di Belmonte, new dean of the cardinals, will officiate.

Cardinal Vannutelli willed most of his property to his nephews, Galileo and Giuseppe, leaving also many personal bequests to his fellow cardinals, other prelates and lay friends.

THOMAS, SOCIALIST, IN CONGRESS BOOM

Own Party and Independent League Seeking Pocket Borough for Him.

ACCEPTANCE NOT GIVEN

New York, July 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Norman Thomas, who has been socialist candidate for mayor, governor and President, will probably be a socialist candidate for Congress this fall in an intensive combined effort of the local Socialist party and the League for Independent Political Action to provide the House of Representatives with its first Socialist since the late Victor L. Berger, of Wisconsin, was defeated in the Hoover landslide of 1928.

An intensive canvass of several Congress districts in New York City to determine in which Mr. Thomas would have the best chance of being elected has practically been completed, it was learned today. The choice will probably be the Sixth, Socialist stronghold in Brooklyn, now represented by Andrew L. Somers, Democrat.

In Mayoralty Race.

Last fall, as mayoralty candidate, Dr. Thomas received 15,945 votes in the Seventeenth, Eighteenth and Twenty-first Assembly Districts, which largely comprise the Sixth Congress District. This was about one-sixth of the total vote and only 8,000 votes less than the total for F. H. LaGuardia, the Republican candidate.

The League for Independent Political Action, which has been active in preparing to enter Mr. Thomas in a Congress race, is a Nationwide organization consecrated to the task of building a new political party of liberals, somewhat similar to the Labor Party in Great Britain. Prof. John Dewey, noted philosopher of Columbia University, is chairman of the league.

Has Not Consented.

Mr. Thomas said over the telephone from his summer home at Cold Springs Harbor today that he had not yet consented to make the race, but that he would be willing to consider it if shown that there is sufficient desire among Socialists and supporters of the League for Independent Political Action.

If agreement is reached on the district and Mr. Thomas consents to run, he will be nominated formally at the Socialist State convention in Albany, July 19.

The State platform will be no dryer than it was two years ago, when it contained a light-wines-and-beer plank. Following its custom, the party will not stress this issue. The chief issues will be control of public utilities, particularly power, and social insurance, especially against unemployment.

Hundreds Crowd to View Vanities Beauties in Court

Plea for Postponement of Hearing in Raid on Earl Carroll Show Granted Till Today; Feminine Admirers Nearly Mob Producer.

New York, July 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—An octet of summerly frilled Vanities Beauties, their boss, Earl Carroll, and that charming stage nit-wit Jimmie Savo, put on one of their best shows today in Jefferson Market Court, while hundreds of eager men and a handful of women pushed and crowded and jammed to get a box seat view.

The police, who raided the eighth edition of the "Vanities" last night and carted the girls and the comedian—but not Carroll, who was variously reported to be in his upstairs office in the theater, at his club and in Philadelphia—off to the police station on a charge of producing an indecent show, presented their side of the case. Acting Capt. Coy's and Sergt. Powers' complaint was made part of the record, then Louis Vorhaus, Earl Carroll's counsel, made his plea for a postponement. It was granted and the whole act will be restaged tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock in the same courtroom.

The entire arraignment was theatrical, from the moment when the eight pulchritudinous damsels made their entrance into the courtroom simultaneously, two of them having stepped from an opulent limousine and sported a chauffeur in livery. Their dresses and ensembles were all of the brightest spring hues and Faith Bacon, the nude or not-so-nude dancer—the description of her in the famous fan dance depending upon whether the police or Mr. Carroll was painting it—had a fluffy white fox about her throat.

The producer, whose renown in the line of presenting perfect anatomical specimens as unfettered by clothing as possible once landed him in Federal prison in Atlanta, made his entrance at 10 o'clock sharp, accompanied by Savo and his attorneys. He sat beside the girls in the back row of the spectators' seats, who were demurely listening to the other cases on the morning calendar.

As soon as the court session was ended, Carroll was almost mobbed in the street by feminine admirers and so large had the crowd swelled that police reserves were called out to push the hundreds back and make a passage for the girls, Carroll and Savo.

The producer denied that any one had appeared on the stage nude, intimated that he thought another producer was responsible for the raid, and declared that he is being persecuted. He added that the show would go on tonight if possible with the elimination of the "Modes—A Window at Meri's" scene to which the police most violently objected.

Louis Lolito, treasurer of the New Amsterdam Theater, who had been reported among the accused, was not arrested. Carroll was served with the warrant for his arrest as soon as he appeared in court.

ALLEGED FALSE TAX REFUND CASE BEGUN

Providence Accountant Is Heard in $100,000 Fraud Indictment.

MAY COME TO CAPITAL

Providence, R. I., July 10 (A.P.).—Earl S. Clark, local accountant and treasurer of the American Society of Certified Public Accountants, went on the stand today before a United States Commissioner here at a hearing to determine whether he should be removed to the District of Columbia to face an indictment charging him with filing a fraudulent tax refund claim for $100,000 at the Bureau of Internal Revenue, Washington.

Clarke was arrested here May 2 on an indictment returned by a Washington Federal grand jury charging that he had inserted in files of the Treasury Department a false tax refund claim on behalf of the Bausch Machine Tool Co., of Springfield, Mass., by which he was retained as tax expert in 1927.

In his testimony today, Clark said that he was in Washington on October 10 or 11, 1929, when the Government alleges the fraudulent claim was inserted in the files, and that he perused files of the bureau at that time, but that a Treasury agent was not more than 3 or 4 feet from his elbow at all times when he was looking over the papers.

The hearing was continued to July 24 to permit filing of briefs.

Hail Large as Hen Eggs Ruins Carolina Crops

Fayetteville, N. C., July 10 (A.P.).—A terrific hailstorm obliterated crops over an area 7 miles long and of undetermined width in eastern Cumberland and western Sampson Counties late today.

Hailstones as big as hen eggs were reported to have passed entirely through full-grown watermelons and fields of corn were beaten to the ground. Cotton was destroyed.

LAST CHANCE LOST TO AVERT HANGING

Colorado Court Denies Plea of Fleagle; Executive Refuses Clemency.

KILLER IS BANK ROBBER

Denver, Colo., July 10 (A.P.).—Ralph Fleagle, Lamar, Colo., bank bandit, today lost his last chance to escape the gallows on which he is scheduled to be hanged late tonight, or shortly after midnight, at the State Penitentiary, Canon City.

The State Supreme Court refused a plea of Fleagle's attorneys for judicial recommendation for reprieve. This action followed by a few hours the refusal of Gov. William H. Adams to intervene.

Acting for Fleagle, Attorney S Harrison White this afternoon made a plea to the court based o na confession and an alleged agreement made at Colorado Springs after Fleagle's arrest, and for which, Fleagle contended, he was to receive a life sentence. The court previously had ruled on the confession and today Chief Justice Greeley Whitford told White the court's opinion was unchanged.

The confession resulted in the arrest of Howard L. Royston and George J. Abshier, who with Jake Fleagle, Ralph's brother, staged the robbery of the Lamar Bank during which three bank officials were killed and a Kansas physician was slain after he had dressed wounds of one of the bandit gang. Royston and Abshier are scheduled to be hanged sometime during the week ending July 19. Jake Fleagle has not been apprehended.

Although Warden Crawford in accordance with the custom at the State Penitentiary refused to reveal when the execution will take place the announcement Fleagle was allowed to confer with relatives for the last time this afternoon indicated he will be hanged late tonight or early Friday morning.

TWO FROM CAPITAL MAKE BOW AT COURT

King George, Queen Mary Receive at Unusually Brilliant Spectacle.

AFFAIR SEASON'S LAST

London, July 10 (A.P.).—Before the twin golden thrones of Buckingham Palace, flanked with masses of blue hydrangeas and pink roses, the last group of this year's debutantes, including eight Americans, made their bow tonight at the final royal court of the season before King George and Queen Mary.

His majesty, wearing the scarlet-and-gold uniform of colonel in chief of the Scots Guard, and Queen Mary in a gown of powder blue and silver brocade, embroidered in pearls with the Kohinoor diamond flashing on her breast, stood to receive the presentees, who filed before them in some of the most brilliant raiment the court has ever seen.

Among the most interested spectators of the glittering spectacle was the petite Japanese Princess Takamatsu, wearing a simple gown of silver cloth. Standing beside her husband in the royal circle she watched closely every part of the ceremony that she had made a special request to see.

Prince George, Princess Mary, Countess of Harewood and her husband, the Earl of Harewood, Princess Victoria Marie Louise and other members of he royal household were grouped behind their majesties.

The eight Americans presented before their majesties by Mrs. Charles G. Dawes, wife of the American Ambassador, were Miss Helen-Lee Washington, Washington, D. C.; Miss Justine Townsend, New York; Miss Elizabeth Wurts, Philadelphia; Mrs. Roy Baker, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Nathaniel Davis, Princeton, N. J.; Mrs. Samuel Meek, New York; Mrs. B. B. Moon, Indianapolis, and Mrs. W. K. Botsford, New York.

Their gowns, indicative of the festive fashions called forth by the summer heat, were chiefly of pastel-tinted satins and chiffons instead of the heavy brocades so often seen at court.

Scion of Cromwell Commissioned Officer

Secretary of War Hurley yesterday presented to Joseph W. Cromwell, the ninth generation of the direct lineal descendants of Oliver Cromwell, "The Great Protector," with a commission as second lieutenant of Cavalry in the Officers Reserve Corps.

Joseph I. Cromwell, father of the new lieutenant, and Secretary Hurley have been lifelong friends in Oklahoma. Cromwell was the discoverer of the Cromwell pool, famous Oklahoma oil field, and is one of the largest owners of the Oklahoma city pool. The Cromwells live in Muskogee, Okla.

Capt. H. E. Shoemaker To Command Lakehurst

Capt. Harry E. Shoemaker, United States Navy, yesterday was appointed commander of the Naval Air Station at Lakehurst, N. J., by Acting Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke. Capt. Shoemaker relieves Commander Maurice R. Pierce, United States Navy.

Capt. Shoemaker was a passenger on the Graf Zeppelin on the German dirigible's latest trip from Friedrichshafen. Commander Pierce has been assigned to the aircraft carrier Lexington as navigator.

Appendicitis Attack Sizes Glenn Curtiss

Buffalo, N. Y., July 10 (A.P.).—Glenn H. Curtiss, aviation pioneer, who was taken to the Buffalo General Hospital today after suffering from an attack of appendicitis at Hammondsport, will be operated on tomorrow morning, his physician, Dr. Thew Wright, announced tonight.

The attack, while an acute one, has left Mr. Curtiss in no immediate danger, the physician said.

Woman Laborite Election Winner

Beats Tory Candidate for Parliament as England Looks On Eagerly.

London, July 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—In an important byelection, testing the reaction of the electorate to the new protectionist campaign of the Tories, Lady Noel Buxton, Labor, was returned today for North Norfolk, an agricultural constitutency, by a majority of 179 over Thomas A. Cook, Tory candidate.

The whole country was watching this contest with interest, and the outcome of it is being hailed by both the Labor and Conservative camps as a victory. Allowing for the fact that Labor has been losing in all recent byelections in larger proportions than today there appears no reason for Tory rejoicing over the North Norfolk result.

On the other hand, the personal popularity of Lady Noel Buxton and the fact that women voters considerably outnumber men in the constituency prevent any Labor jubilation.

Al Capone Trial Opens at Miami

Gang Chief Seems Worried in Court as He Faces Perury Charge.

Miami, Fla., July 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Scarface Al Capone, Chicago underworld kind, leader of gangdom, went on trial in the Dade Cricuit Court today on a charge of perjury.

The trial is the latest step in a series of legal moves by which officials have tried to rid the city of Capone. The present trial grows out of testimony given by Capone when he accused the safety director of falsely arresting him.

Capone testified, the State contends, that the safety director refused to let him use the telephone and threatened to manhandle his friends. The gangster seems visibly concerned in the latest of his many court appearances here. His manner is serious and he frequently confers with his attorneys.

Five-Ton Motor Drops 28 Floors; Kills Man

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—A 5-ton elevator motor fell 28 stories today in a building under construction in Seventh avenue, landing among a group of workmen in an elevator on the second floor, killing one and injuring five others. John Haney, 30, was crushed to death. Jeremiah Troy and John Roulson were seriously injured. Three other men were slightly hurt.

Workmen were moving the motor from the twenty-ninth floor to a higher floor when it slipped from its sling and crashed down the narrow shaft and through the top of the other elevator.

Byrd and Party Off for Chicago

Admiral to Return Monday to New York Following Midwest Visits.

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and eight members of his Antarctic expedition left for Chicago today in a special car attached to the Broadway Limited.

In Chicago the party will be the guests tomorrow of a group of aviation associations and of the Chicago Press Club. Saturday they will fly to St. Louis, where they will be the guests of the chamber of commerce. The party returns to New York Monday.

The group, in addition to Rear Admiral Byrd, included Bernt Balchen, C. O. Peterson, Capt. Ashley C. McKinley, Capt Alton U. Parker, Tom Mulroy, Lloyd Grenlie and George J. Thorne, jr. Thorne, Peterson and Grenlie are Chicago residents and Capt. McKinley and Mulroy come from St. Louis.

Man Leaps 12 Stories; Called Dead, May Live

New Orleans, La., July 10 (A.P.).—Bernard W. Getz, a New Orleans fireman, on sick leave, was alive today with a chance to recover from his injuries after plunging from a twelfth story window to a crowded street, where he was pronounced dead. Getz a World War veteran, went to the United States Veterans' Bureau yesterday, walked through the office and leaped from a window as office workers gasped and shrieked.

He crashed through the top of a truck. An ambulance surgeon pronounced him dead, but later he was seen to breathe. Doctors said he probably had a fractured skull and internal injuries, but they held hope for his recovery.

Events of the War 13 Years Ago Today

The White House issued a detailed report by Herbert Hoover, declaring that both the farmers and the public were threatened with serious losses unless food control authority is given quickly to the Federal Government.

Nine hundred employes of the Bureaun of Engraving and Printing voiced vigorous protest against the order of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, which tomorrow will eliminate all overtime work.

One man was killed, another probably fatally injured and three districts on the South Side of Chicago were terrorized in three bomb explosions.

Lieut. Col. Charles E. Kutz, District Engineer Commissioner since October, 1914, will be relieved of duty this week, at his own request, and assigned to duty with troops in France.

$400,000 Theft Is Laid to Woman

Illinois Mortgage Concern Aid Named in Six Warrants.

Chicago, July 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Mrs. Hilda Schroeder, of Wilmette, in the investment and mortgage business, was named in six warrants today charging total embezzlements of $400,000. Assistant State's Attorney Theodore Miller said he had made an investigation that had consumed three weeks and would submit the case to the grand jury.

"The complaints we have received," he explained, "show that persons who bought mortgages have lost between four and five hundred thousand dollars. When the mortgages were paid Mrs. Schroeder did not pay the investors. She did a big business especially in second mortgages which sold well during the real estate rise and which she sold to investors to net 10 and 12 per cent."

Attorneys Samuel Hoffman and Charles Dougherty, who represent Mrs. Schroeder, said they had no knowledge of what had become of the money. Mrs. Schroeder, they intimated, is in a Wisconsin sanitarium suffering a nervous breakdown.

STEEL HEAD BARES HUGE MERGER LOAN

Bethlehem's $800,000 Was Returned by Ohio Firm, Trial Witness Says.

IS QUESTIONED BY BAKER

Youngstown, Ohio, July 10 (A.P.).—An unsecured loan of $800,000 from Bethlehem Steel Corporation for the purchase of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. stock just previous to the approval of sale of Youngstown to Bethlehem today occupied the attention of County Court, where suit to enjoin the merger is at trial.

H. G. Dalton, of Cleveland, a director in the Youngstown company, the Bethlehem corporation, the Guaranty Trust Co. and a partner in Picklands, Mather & Co., Cleveland, Ohio, firm, testified the money was loaned to Pickands, Mather & Co., and returned a few days later with interest because "it might have been misunderstood."

Mr. Dalton was placed on the stand as a hostile witness by the attorneys representing the Cyrus S. Eaton interests, which are opposed to the merger. They sought to show by his testimony that his zeal for the merger was due to his interests in Pickands, Mather & Co., Bethlehem & Guaranty Trust rather than in Youngstown Sheet & Tube.

Pickands, Mather & Co., it was brought out, holds valuable ore contracts both with the Youngstown company and the Bethlehem corporation.

Mr. Dalton declared his own role in the negotiations leading to approval of the merger was that of "a listener" and later, on direct examination by former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, chief of defense counsel, he stated he never gave thought to the effect of the deal on Pickands, Mather & Co.

He corroborated much of the testimony of Chairman James A. Campbell, of Youngstown, who was on the stand more than a day and a half, especially as to the details of conferences between them and President Eugene G. Grace, of Bethlehem, prior to the merger contract.

Luther Day, of Cleveland, chief of the attorneys for the Eaton group, sought to draw from Dalton admission that he and Campbell definitely committed the Youngstown company to the terms of the preliminary merger contract, which called for an exchange of one and one-third shares of Bethlehem stock for one of Youngtown.

Mr. Dalton was excused from the stand shortly after the noon recess because he wanted to go away on a trip, and court was adjourned for the day a little later.

Coal Conferees Reach No Decision

Operators and Miner Group to Continue Parley Today.

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—The conference of anthracite coal operators and miners deliberated at length today on all issues in dispute, but adjourned for the day without arriving at any decision.

The chief demands of the United Mine Workers of America are for introduction of the checkoff system of collecting union dues, equalization of employment throughout the country during slack periods and installation of safety devices free of charge for workers.

The statement of conferees on today's session was:

"The subcommittee representing the anthracite operators and the United Mine Workers of America at today's session reviewed at great length the entire subject matter involved in the negotiations. Every member of the committee representing respective sides engaged in the discussion. No specific determination on any matter was reached. The committee will reconvene Friday morning at 10 o'clock."

$500,000 Suit Against Pantages Is Dismissed

Los Angeles, July 10 (A.P.).—A $500,000 damage suit, filed against Alexander Pantages, theater multimillionaire, by Nicholas Duneav, a witness in the showman's trial last fall for criminal assault on Eunice Pringle, coed dancer, was dismissed in superior court today. The dismissal was requested by Duneav's attorney, S. S. Hahn, who refused to comment. The suit was filed because of the alleged statement by Pantages that "he, Duneav, was the master mind in this conspiracy."

Pantages, who was convicted, is at liberty on $100,000 bond awaiting appeal. The defense attempted to prove Duneav and the girl plotted to blackmail the showman.

COUNTY NURSE FILES HER ANNUAL REPORT

Education of Citizens of Fairfax in Measures of Health Cited.

CHURCH CHOIR FETE SET

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The annual report of Mrs. Fannie Lou Seamons, Fairfax County health nurse, for the year ended July 1, 1930 shows that the greatest accomplishment of the Fairfax County Health Unit has been education of citizens in health measures.

Other work completed by the health unit includes holding two preschool clinics during which 102 children were examined last fall and 111 this spring. Four tuberculosis clinics were held during the year and seven positive cases were sent to the sanatorium. Last November there was an outbreak of diphtheria in several county schools and toxinantitoxin treatments were given in the colored schools for the first time. In three of the schools 100 per cent immunization was secured.

More than 40 per cent of the dental defects found among school children during the year were corrected. On May 3 the health unit held a child health day at Fairfax in conjunction with the 4-H clubs rally and 48 per cent of the white school children were presented with five-point certificates showing that they had met State requirements as to physical fitness. On May 9, more than 20 per cent of the colored school children received like certificates.

Two Hygiene Classes Held.

Mrs. Seamons conducted two home nursing hygiene classes among women of the county during the year and at the end of the course eighteen passed the examination. They have offered their services to assist the nurse in caring for the sick in the county.

The detailed report of the nurse for the year shows that she made 730 instructive nursing visits to homes in the county. Aid was given in 27 prenatal cases and 21 postnatal cases.

The nurse helped care for 47 children under 1 year old, 228 preschool children, 263 school children from 6 to 16 years, 79 tubercular patients and 75 adults. During the visit, 149 patients were referred to family physicians, 469 to family dentists, 218 to clinics, 2 to the hospital, and 11 to the sanitarium.

In the health unit's fight for disease control, 196 throat culture were made and 476 smallpox vaccinations were given. For diphtheria, 894 toxinantitoxin immunizations were given and treatment was also given for 10 intestinal parasites. The health unit also inspected the school. In 35 instances sanitation was found safe, and in 8 cases unsafe. In the homes examined 49 were reported sanitary and 65 unsanitary.

Many Five-Pointers Found.

During examination of school children, 1,668 pupils were found to be five-pointers and 59 preschool children were five-pointers, while 2,416 children had one or more defects, and 1,311 corrections were made. Of the 153 preschool children with one or more defects, only 4 corrections were reported to the health unit.

Complete medical examination was given to 212 children. During dental examination of pupils, 2,518 defects were found and 1,024 corrections were made, with 121 corrections made among preschool children. There were 684 tonsil defects, with 41 corrections made; 37 preschool children were found with defective tonsils and only 4 corrections made.

Defects in eyesight number 432 among school children and 15 among preschool children, while 43 corrections were reported. There were 44 defects in hearing. There were 762 children reported 10 per cent under or 20 per cent overweight, with 200 corrections made.

Three cases of skin defects were corrected out of 55 found, as were 106 defects in posture. Only twelve mental and nervous cases were found among the children.

Number of Visits Listed.

The nurse visited 46 colored and 135 white schools during the year. The nurse and doctor inspected 3,537 white pupils and 542 colored. The nurse and dentist examined 2,914 white pupils. During the year 80 white children and 12 colored children were excluded from school, because of communicable diseases. The nurse gave 191 talks in white schools and 47 talks in the colored schools. She conducted 36 health programs in white classrooms, and 1 in colored. Thirty-two meetings were held in the county, 25 visits paid, 30 doctors visited and 20 social cases investigated.

She taught 9 organized groups of adults, with an attendance of 332 persons. One home nursing class for children was held, with 85 in attendance. The nurse gave 30 health talks to adults, and 7 exhibits were staged.

In the 25 dental clinics, 876 patients were treated in 144 days; 22 patients were cared for in 5 tonsil clinics, and in the 3 tuberculosis clinics 75 patients were examined.

Members of the choir of St. Mary's Church at Rixey Station will present the "Sorcerer" tonight in the auditorium of the Madison School at Falls Church. The event is given under auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Falls Church Presbyterian Church. The library committee of the Woman's Guild of the Vanderwerken Church will hold a business meeting today. They will catalogue and repair the books in the library.

The quarterly business meeting of the Fairfax Baptist Church will be held tomorrow evening in the church house at Fairfax.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Dulin Chapel will hold a food sale tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock in the old drug store building at East Falls Church. This sale will be in charge of Mrs. R. P. Shaffer, Mrs. Ella Adsit and Mrs. J. S. Higgins.

Allen H. Kirk, president of the Herndon Chamber of Commerce, has issued an invitation to Democratic candidates for nomination for representative from the Eighth Virginia Congressional District to speak this evening in the auditorium of the Herndon High School.

EMMET APPOINTED BISHOP OF JAMAICA

Former Head of Georgetown Preparatory School Gets New Post.

WILL REPLACE DINAND

News of the appointment of the Rev. Thomas A. Emmet, S. J., former headmaster of the Georgetown Preparatory School, Garrett Park, Md., as Bishop of Jamaica, British West Indies, was made public here yesterday.

The appointment was made by the Congregation of the Propagation in Rome. The new prelate will succeed the Right Rev. Joseph N. Dinand, D. D., who resigned the Jamaican post because of ill health. No date had been set yesterday for the consecration.

Bishop Emmet, who has been associated with St. Mary's rectory in Boston for nearly two years since leaving Garrett Park, is familiar with the mission field in Jamaica. He served there for about seven years at one time. About 45 Jesuits are stationed in Jamaica, it being a Jesuit mission province.

The new prelate is very well known in Washington outside of Georgetown alumni circles. He was six years at the preparatory school, taking charge when the institution was removed to its present Maryland site from Georgetown College. For a number of years Bishop Emmet at one time was prefect of discipline and faculty director of athletics at Georgetown University.

He was born in Boston, August 23, 1873, and received his college education at Boston College, which has given a number of men to the Jesuit order. He entered the Society of Jesus August 14, 1893, before completing his course at Boston College, and was received into the order at Frederick, Md. Completing his studies for the priesthood at Woodstock College, Md., he was ordained there by Cardinal Gibbons July 31, 1908.

Bishop Emmet has taught at a number of the Jesuit colleges and gained a wide reputation as a lecturer. It is not known when he will leave for his post. Bishop Dinand, whose place he fills, formerly was president of Holy Cross College at Worcester, Mass.

Capital College Teacher Named to Post in Africa

C. E. L. Gill, of Washington, at present on the staff of the School of Business Administration at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va., has been named assistant trade commissioner to Accra, Gold Coast, Africa.

The announcement was made yesterday by W. L. Cooper, director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Mr. Gill also was an instructor in business law and a director of social functions at Washington and Lee. He is a member of the American Academy of Political Sciences, and has traveled extensively in the United States and in Europe.

Park Towers Purchased; $700,000 Consideration

Purchase of Park Towers, five-story apartment building, on Sixteenth street north of Florida avenue, by Morton Goldenberg and Leo Baum, of Goldenberg's Department Store, as an investment, at a cost of approximately $700,000, was revealed by the records yesterday.

The building, completed within the past year, was built by Z. T. Goldsmith and William Keller. Shannon & Luchs, Inc., handled the transaction.

Man Sues for Divorce, Naming Corespondent

Charging that his wife was arrested and arraigned in Police Court on June 29 last as a result of indiscreet conduct with a corespondent, whom he names, George C. Noble, of D street near Fifth northwest, yesterday filed suit in Equity Court for absolute divorce from Mary V. Noble, of K street near Twenty-first northwest.

Noble's petition asserts he was married to his wife in Arlington County, Va., on November 17, 1924, and that they have lived together until recently.

Thieves Blamed for Grocery Fire.

A fire which caused $1,000 damage to the Sanitary Grocery Co. store at 1255 South Capitol street early yesterday morning is thought to have been caused by the carelessness of thieves who ransacked the storeroom. Cigarettes and merchandise valued at $1,000 were also stolen, according to a report made by James Wamsey, of 1240 G street northeast, manager of the store.

POLICEMAN ADMITS HE DISABLED CAR

Three Traffic Charges Laid Against Owner Dropped After Confession.

COMPLAINT MAY RESULT

Three traffic charges brought against Benjamin Shapiro, 4601 Eighth street, were dismissed in Police Court yesterday when the arresting officer admitted that he had disabled Shapiro's machine by removing the distributor cap, in the owner's absence.

In dismissing charges of obstructing a cross-walk, parking more than 6 inches from the curb, and failing to change the address on the driver's permit, Judge Gus Schulat said that he was not required to comment on police methods of law enforcement.

Shapiro told the judge that he had parked his car at Eighteenth and Biltmore streets Wednesday afternoon. When he returned he could not start the machine, and a bystander told him that a policeman had been tinkering with the machinery.

He said that he went into a nearby apartment house to telephone a complaint to headquarters, but before he could do so was "jerked out" of the booth by Policeman B. R. Torrence, and taken to the station house in the police patrol wagon. He said that he found a ticket on his car notifying him of the cross-walk obstruction charge and when he got to the station house he found the two other charges lodged against him. The $7 collateral that he was required to post was returned to him in court yesterday. Policeman Torrence admitted in court that he had disabled the car.

Shapiro said that he would formally complain to Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police.

Driver Is Arrested In Automobile Death

A coroner's jury will today fix responsibility for the death yesterday of Benjamin E. Marshall, 27-year-old truck driver, of 33 T street northwest. Marshall died at Casualty Hospital after an automobile accident on June 6 at Second street and Massachusetts avenue northeast.

Putnam Rogers, 23 years old, of T street near Second street northeast, said to have been the driver of the other car involved in the accident, was arrested yesterday and held at the Ninth Precinct pending the outcome of the inquest.

Dr. Paul Kaufman Joins Atlantic University

Dr. Paul Kaufman, head of the department of English at American University, has accepted an appointment as professor and head of the department of English at Atlantic University, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. Kaufman is considered one of the outstanding Shakesperean scholars of America and is editor of the Shakespeare Association of America. He formerly was a member of the faculty of Yale and Harvard Universities. Besides these connections he has performed important duties for the United States Government, having prepared a program for English instruction for the Army and acted as editorial specialist for the Tariff Commission.

GERMAN MINE TOLL OF 162 NOW FEARED

Hope Wanes for 70 Men Still Trapped by Explosion; 92 Bodies Found.

FUMES SPREAD QUICKLY

Neurode, Germany, July 10 (A.P.). A death list of 162 miners seems a certainty as rescue work in Wenceslaus coal mine, where the worst gas disaster in the history of German mining occurred yesterday, progresses.

With 92 dead recovered, those in charge of rescue crews hold out but scant hope that 70 men still imprisoned in the gas-filled shafts may be found alive.

Swiftly spreading lethal gas, the ever lurking enemy of this Silesian mining district, tonight still hampered the work of recovering bodies.

The death dealing gas was not only swift but incredibly silent in its rushing conquest of the mine. The only man who was near enough to hear and see what happened, at first could not make anybody believe that anything was wrong, for the mine sounded normal and the machinery in the gassed portions was running as usual.

This eyewitness' tale was all the more difficult to believe as the periodical gas survey had been completed only a few days before. Engineers thought they had solved the problem of guarding against gas fumes, since 35 manifestations of carbon dioxide last year had failed to cause a single death. The last accident of note in this mine dated back to 1928, when eight miners perished.

Yesterday's explosion occurred when a large gas pocket was tapped during blasting. The fumes spread so rapidly that only 49 of the 211 miners in the shafts were rescued.

The fact that faces of the dead were blackened from swirling coal dust led to early report of disfigurement according to attending surgeons but most of the victims wore singularly peaceful and even smiling expressions.

TWO KILLED AS PLANE FALLS IN MARYLAND

of motorists and residents of the district also saw the tragedy.

Because of the demolished condition of the plane, authorities were unable to determine exactly what caused the accident. It is believed that the breaking of the wing caused the wreck.

Mr. Sabine, who is believed to have been at the controls, was not flying his own airplane, but one from Hamden Airport. His own plane was in a hangar at his father's farm. The wrecked plane was registered as belonging to E. Williams, of New Haven.

Mr. Sabine had recently notified his parents that he was coming home for a visit and was bringing a student friend with him. The Sabine family had been informed that the visitor was Mr. Bennett and in this way he was identified together with papers found on his person.

Mr. Sabine was a graduate of Central High School and graduated in 1928 from the Dallas Flying School. For a year after this, he engaged in barnstorming in various parts of the country. He then entered the Hamden Airport as an instructor. Mr. Bennett was one of his most recent students.

The scene of the tragedy is about 30 miles from Washington, 5 miles from Gaithersburg and 15 miles from Rockville. The Sabines are among the best-known families in the county. As an aviation enthusiast, Mr. Sabine had attracted the attention of the countryside. He made frequent visits by plane to his home and while there made daily air excursions over the Maryland farm country.

Besides his parents, Mr. Sabine is survived by two sisters, Eleanor and Elizabeth Sabine, and two brothers, Walter and George Sabine. The brothers and sisters, together with the parents, had formed the party of welcome and witnessed the tragedy.

The bodies were removed to the Ray Barber Undertaking Co. at Laytonsville. Funeral arrangements are pending.

Housebreaking Charge Laid to Arrested Man

John Smith, colored, 22 years old, of Fifteenth street near Q street northwest, was charged yesterday with housebreaking at the Seventh Precinct. Smith, police say, was found in the house at 1460 Twenty-ninth street northwest early Sunday morning, shortly after reports were received of several old Georgetown mansions being ransacked.

It is said that nothing was missing from the other houses, though valuables had been collected, apparently ready to be removed. Smith, when charged, gave the alias of Steve Outlaw, it is said.

MISSING DEB

MARY FRANCES M'CLENNY, 20-year-old society girl, of Richmond, Va., who is being sought throughout the country since she mysteriously disappeared from her home on July 1.

week, when neighbors saw her rushed into an automobile that overtook her own car on a city street.

The two men were arrested late today by county authorities, called in on the case today, after the missing girl's family first appealed to private detectives and later to Richmond city police.

Today's developments followed a Statewide search early this week that revealed little information as to the girl's whereabouts.

Dr. McClenny, who has been with police constantly in their search for his daughter, who left home with a "few trifles" in a suit case, has asserted he believed the girl was "kidnaped."

Police tonight were questioning the two arrested men in an effort to learn the whereabouts of both Harry Dickinson and the girl who is alleged to be with him.

Would Stop Marriage.

Neither of the missing pair has been traced since their sudden departure. The father on the night of the girl's disappearance appealed to local police to stop his daughter from "marrying a Richmond garage man." Police then informed him they could do nothing to stop the girl from marrying the man, or to bring them back to the city, since she was of legal age.

Later a warrant was sworn out by the father for his daughter charging her with larceny of a suitcase. Police in Norfolk, Baltimore and other nearby cities were notified of the warrant and asked to "hbld and notify."

The girl left home telling her parents she was going to say good-by to a friend, Anne Ragland, leaving for Columbia University summer school. Private detectives developed the fact that she had said farewell to the friend earlier in the day.

A part of the "mystery car" license number supplied by the Rev. Philip Nathans, a Neighing Charity Mission preacher, who saw the girl rushed away in another car, has been one of the few tangible clews furnished officers.

Both of the men arrested denied they know anything concerning the disappearance of the McClenny girl, and Dickinson said he did not know his brother's whereabouts.

Leadbetter was released late tonight under $3,500 bond for his appearance in police court at 10 a. m., July 18. Dickinson was held in bail.

Training School Boy Drowned in the Severn

One youth was drowned and three others narrowly escaped a like fate during an outing of inmates of the District Training School at Laurel, Md., on the Severn River Wednesday. The dead youth is Ernest Smith, 18 years old, of 69 L street northwest.

No sooner had the boys arrived at the river than four of them rushed into the water, stepping into a deep hole. Dr. Kenneth Jones, superintendent of the institution, managed to pull one of them from the water and two others saved themselves, but Smith's body was not recovered for 45 minutes, when a pulmotor proved ineffective. The dead youth had been recommended for a parole and would have been released in a few days, it is said.

MAN IN HOLDUP CASE GRILLED BY SHERIFF

Farmer Reporting Robbery Near Annapolis Refuses to Amplify Story.

STILL KEPT IN HOSPITAL

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 10. — Sheriff Michael F. Carter today interviewed Clifton Broneman, 30-year-old farmer, whose report that he was held up last Saturday morning and robbed has held the interest of the community for nearly a week now. Following the conversation with Broneman at the hospital, Sheriff Carter reported that there were no new developments, and the case continues in the category of the mysterious. It is the belief of authorities that the true circumstances of the case are submerged within the conflicting statements.

Many reports have come to the sheriff's ear, and he has done a lot of investigating in a quiet manner. In his interview with Broneman at the Emergency Hospital today he told the man that word had reached him that the entire report of the attack was a hoax. To which the sheriff reports Broneman as replying, "Let them talk until I get out; then I'll tell them something."

While Broneman greeted the sheriff in an affable manner today, he was not inclined to make a detailed story of the affair, and most of his remarks were the result of direct questioning. Broneman still claims that he received $300 from an Annapolis bank. "He told me this morning that a man named Connolly cashed the check for him," the sheriff stated. This afternoon Sheriff Carter again interviewed bank officials relative to the check.

In his remarks this morning Broneman still contended that he was held up on Saturday morning at Pasadena when he was returning to Baltimore for his wife. He stated to Sheriff Carter that he does not recall an incident from the time some one swung on him until the time he became conscious en route to the hospital and demanded that he be returned to his home.

June Traffic Accidents Show Gain Over 1929

There was a greater number of traffic accidents in Washington in June this year than in June last year or the year before, according to statistics made public yesterday.

There were 695 accidents reported to the police in June this year. In June last year accidents reported numbered 519, and in June, 1928, the number was 350. A partial explanation of the increase, traffic authorities declared, was to be found in the fact that a larger percentage of trivial accidents is being reported now than in the past. Seven persons were killed in traffic accidents in June this year. Nine were killed in June last year. Six were killed in June, 1928.

Ceremonies Will Pay Honor to Dr. Tindall

Dr. William Tindall, who entered the District service shortly after the Civil War, is to be honored at ceremonies which are to be held in the board room in the District Building at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, president of the Board of Commissioners, is to preside at the gathering, and Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, chairman of the Senate District committee, is to make an address. Dr. Tindall has passed the retirement age, but under provisions of the appropriation act for the current year was given a life-time tenure on his job as a District employe. He is recognized as an authority on District affairs.

Man Hurt by Fall Leaves Hospital.

Allen Duval, 40-year-old electrician of Hyattsville, Md., who was thought to have been seriously injured when he fell from a ladder Wednesday, was yesterday discharged from Casualty Hospital, where he was taken. His only injury was a broken wrist, though it was at first thought that he might have a fractured skull. He was injured while at work at Fifth street and Florida avenue northwest.

SENATE DEMANDS PAPERS.

The Senate now asks President Hoover to transmit, if not incompatible with the public interest, the papers pertaining to the negotiation of the London naval treaty. The words "if not incompatible with the public interest" were inserted in the resolution after a spirited debate, by a vote of 38 to 17. The vote of 53 to 4, by which the Senate asks for the papers, is very significant, as it discloses the fact that the Senate is virtually unanimous in asserting the right to possess all documents relating to the negotiation of the treaty. Several senators who voted for the qualifying clause made it very plain that they would regard a denial of the papers as a stumbling block in the path of ratification. They supported the qualifying clause for courtesy's sake, without admitting that they would be contented with a refusal to send the papers to the Senate.

On the question of disclosing the contents of the papers in case they should be placed in the custody of the Senate, it seemed to be generally understood that if the President should ask that the papers be kept confidential his request would be respected. But the Senate would not give this assurance, because it holds that no conditions should be attached to the exercise of its rights.

The Secretary of State, in refusing to send the papers to the Senate committee, made it very plain that a public disclosure of the contents of the papers was to be expected as a matter of course if they should be placed in the hands of senators. Since it is now unmistakably manifest that senators do not propose to break a seal of confidence, it may be that President Hoover will transmit the papers under an injunction of secrecy.

That there is some danger that secret papers sent to the Senate may become public can not be denied. Documents pertaining to treaties, and even the texts of treaties, have been prematurely published in spite of the injunction of secrecy, beginning in Washington's administration and running down to recent years. Sometimes this publicity has been of the most explosive and damaging character. Senator Reed has disclosed enough to make it quite certain that Ambassador Dawes' spicy comments on the propensities of foreign personages concerned with the treaty negotiations would, if made public, cause an uproar here and abroad, and might even result in the rejection of the treaty by some foreign signatory. Mr. Hoover doubtless is strongly impressed by the suggestion that the transmission of these papers to the Senate is incompatible with the public interest.

Conditions, however, are quite unusual, and Mr. Hoover would be warranted in sending the papers to the Senate, at the risk of a contretemps, for the sake of securing early ratification of the treaty. A bare quorum is present. Senators are anxious to depart. A denial of the papers would not silence those who insist that they be produced, but would merely furnish fuel for further debate, and might alienate senators who are now inclined to support the treaty.

For the practical purpose of expediting ratification the President may decide to overrule his Secretary of State and send the papers to the Senate. His refusal to transmit the papers would be construed to mean that he agrees with the Secretary of State in the opinion that the Senate can not be trusted to keep state secrets.

THE TARIFF COMMISSION.

President Hoover is giving a good deal of thought to reorganization of the Tariff Commission. It is one of the most important duties immediately confronting him. The tariff act makes it mandatory that the new commission be set up within 90 days, but unless the appointments are sent to the Senate before adjournment of the special session, they must wait until December for confirmation.

Establishment of the new tariff policy outlined by Congress will not be complete until the new commission has taken office. In view of the many requests for investigation of rates already received since enactment of the new bill, the reorganization may be considered urgent. It will take some time for the new commissioners to acquaint themselves with their work, and unusual demands will be made of them. No doubt President Hoover will make his selection as quickly as possible.

It is generally assumed that the President will choose virtually a new commission. The tariff act requires him to appoint only such members as are "possessed of qualifications requisite for developing expert knowledge of tariff problems and efficiency in administering the provisions" of the act. The commission has been placed on a new basis. Its powers have been enlarged and it has assumed a far more important role in the making and adjustment of rates. Its duties demand the attention of experts. Appointments for political reasons will not fill the bill. It is well known that President Hoover regards the flexible provision as one of the most important sections in the act, and he must have a strong and able commission to do the research it calls for and to advise him in the adjustment of rates.

The President is seeking out eminent men in the field of economy and public service. He has been successful in inducing men of high standing to sacrifice large salaries for other important governmental posts, and it is to be hoped that he can fill the Tariff Commission with experts who will command the confidence of American producers as well as foreign business interests. Any distinguished citizen who makes a personal sacrifice to serve on the Tariff Commission will be compensated by the great opportunity for service that will come to him.

It is understood that the President will retain Chairman Edgar B. Brossard and Vice Chairman Alfred P. Dennis. Mr. Brossard is a trained economist, his special field being that of agriculture. Mr. Dennis was formerly a professor of history, but more recently Commercial Attache of the American Embassy in Rome and an investigator for the Department of Commerce. Mr. Brossard is a Republican and Mr. Dennis a Democrat.

Congress has enacted a tariff law that is in keeping with American policy. President Hoover may be expected to iron out inequalities in the act, and to afford protection to American industry, agriculture and labor against any sudden invasion of foreign goods by reason of changes in competitive conditions. To this work the President can give only cursory attention. He must rely for his facts and background for judgment upon the commission. It is highly important that the most competent men available be designated for this service.

BLACK CANYON PROJECT.

Work has begun on the Black Canyon Dam amid wild enthusiasm in southern California and gloomy misgivings in the surrounding territory. Secretary Wilbur gave the order to proceed with the preliminary work of building a railroad to the site and laying out a town immediately after President Hoover signed the deficiency bill containing an initial appropriation of $10,660,000. The Government is definitely committed to this project, no matter how costly or unwise it may prove to be.

The Colorado River Commission of Arizona announces in response to Secretary Wilbur's order that a suit to protect the rights of that State in the river will be filed in the Supreme Court. New Mexico is protesting against arrangements that will make it virtually impossible for that State to secure electric power from the project. Nevada is dissatisfied with the allocation of power, and Utah and Wyoming are alarmed at the prospects of cheap power in southern California, because they fear that all industrial development in the West will be attracted to that area.

The international angle of the Colorado River controversy is dormant while negotiations are going on for division of the waters between the United States and Mexico. The States have divided the water up among themselves with little consideration for the rights of Mexico in the stream.

The cost of the dam has been estimated at $165,000,000, but the ultimate cost probably will be far in excess of that sum. Since the power contracts were let on a basis that would merely repay the cost of the dam, without building up a surplus from which other projects on the river can be constructed, the States on the upper reaches of the river demand that Congress make funds available for other dams that will give them the benefit of cheap power. The Government has established a precedent that will give weight to the arguments of every locality for special favors to be financed from the Federal Treasury.

REPUBLICAN PLEDGES.

Senator Capper's statement on the farm situation is significant in that it marks the return to a policy of aggression on the part of the Republican national committee. The statement was issued through that body. It asserts that the Republican campaign pledges to the farmer have been carried out in full measure.

The Republican platform adopted in Kansas City in 1928 promised aid to agriculture in four directions: (1) By creating a board to assist farmer owned and operated cooperative associations in the more efficient marketing of crops; (2) by adjusting the tariff to favor agricultural commodities; (3) by improving inland waterways to provide cheaper transportation of farm products; (4) by increasing Federal highway aid. The entire program has been carried out. The Federal Farm Board has been created and endowed with large funds. The tariff law increased the schedule on agricultural products from an average of 22.37 per cent to an average of 33.94 per cent. A most liberal rivers and harbors bill was passed just before the adjournment, and the Federal road aid contribution has been substantially increased.

The energetic Democratic national committee, however, has been working for a year to discredit the Hoover administration. Day after day it has dinned out the story that the Federal Farm Board is a miserable failure and that the project of farm relief is about to collapse. The tariff it characterizes as directly opposed to the interests of farmers, and the rivers and harbors act is called a "steal." So intense has been its campaign in opposition to these measures that it has not felt called upon to mention the increased road aid appropriations.

The statement of Senator Capper marks the first definite refutation of the Democratic propaganda. Great damage has been done as a result of the Republican committee's protracted silence. It will take a lot of work to counteract the effect of the Democratic committee's attacks.

MAJ. GEN. NEVILLE.

The body of Maj. Gen. W. C. Neville, late commandant of the Marine Corps, will be laid to rest this afternoon in the soil of Arlington, where lie the bodies of the Nation's hero dead. Veteran of two wars, two punitive expeditions, a rebellion and other military episodes, Gen. Neville died last Tuesday in Maryland, when the stout heart that had carried him through many adventures finally failed.

Gen. Neville was a great soldier. For conspicuous bravery at the battle of Guantanamo he was brevetted a captain. From the Spanish-American War he was sent to China, where he participated in the subduing of the Boxer rebels. In 1914 he commanded the Second Regiment, when that famous organization entered and occupied Vera Cruz, and for two years he commanded a Marine detachment at Peking. In 1917 he set sail for France, where he commanded the Fighting Fifth in the Verdun and Chateau Thierry sectors and subsequently, the Fourth Brigade in operations near Soissons, St. Mihiel, the Champagne and the Meuse-Argonne. It was in France that "Whispering Buck" Neville, so-called because his voice could be heard above bombardments, became "Follow Me" Neville. He was a great soldier and a man of rare courage.

Gen. Neville will lie in a hero's grave. The greatest tribute to him is the grief of the Marine Corps over his death.

"Twenty-five mile loudspeaker startles residents of Berlin." They ought to go in training in an American apartment house.

UNDELIVERED MAIL

From the New York Times.

If one had to work in Washington this summer, one might prefer a post in the division of dead letters and dead parcel post, in the office of the First Assistant Postmaster General. Its superintendent tells that his divisionists are still up to their ears in undeliverable Christmas mail, most of it Christmas cards. What labor could be cooler or more innocent? A lot of pictures must have snow and ice in them. The verses jingle like sleigh bells, but the veteran employes may be deaf to the music and bored by all that gracious association and suggestion.

Last year some 3,250,000 undeliverable letters with Christmas cards in their insides turned up within three weeks of Christmas. "There seems to be an almost universal prejudice against the use of a return address on an envelope containing a greeting card." Shall we say that business is forgotten in "the Christmas spirit?"

Mr. Staley has no word about love letters. A writer of one to an addressee in a small town might well be shy of furnishing too much detail for local consumption.

Again, has the Valentine habit faded? If not, Mr. Staley's returners and throwers-away, when their Christmas is over, will have to deal with the scraps of the festival which, if antiquarians guess right, is "the feast of Lupercal."

Let us be exact and improving, even if the dog days are soon to bark. "We air a careless people, sir."

Of the 23,000,000 letters sent to the dead letter office last year, it was possible to return only 3,800,000, or about 16 per cent, the other 19,200,000 being destroyed.

We ought to be more careful, though we shan't. Let us keep in mind the Postoffice Department's injunction: "Put your return address on everything you mail." The money in one form or another loosely and vaguely intrusted to the mails amounted to millions years ago. The negligence of the parcel-posters helps a little to support the Government. Last year only 23 per cent of the undelivered parcels could be returned. The remainder brought something over $80,000 at auction. From this source, from the postage on parcels returned, from the 3-cent fee on each restored letter, from the money found in letters undeliverable, the office got nearly $250,000—within $20,000 of the cost of operation. A small fine on a large amount of haste, laziness or ignorance.

COUNSEL.

They will laugh when a trickster gets by with his trick
And chuckle when cheaters succeed;
To grin at deception the public is quick,
And books about crooks it will read;
But don't be misled by the smiles which you see;
A thief's still a thief although clever he be.

It may seem as you gaze at the throngs passing by
That honor is painfully slow;
That favor and flattery lift men up high
To the places which merit should know;
But just wait your time. You will find before long Men may favor a weak man, but can't make him strong.

You will see easy money being lavished about While you struggle your wages to earn;
But life has the habit of turning crooks out,
As the sharpest and smartest will learn.
And the cleverest trickster, whatever he gains,
Goes to prison at last, notwithstanding his brains.

So don't be deceived when they chuckle and grin
As fortune has prospered a cheat.
Who goes for the gains which men easily win
Is headed for certain defeat.
It's the hard way and long way that leads to the top;
No trickster gets far without having to stop.

A Prayer to the God of Our Fathers.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

GOD of our fathers, hear our plea for the salvation of our people.

We have become absorbed in the making of money and the quest for pleasure, and have forgotten the obligations of citizenship and parenthood.

Years of easy prosperity have robbed us of humility and made us scornful of the decent standards that made and preserved us a nation.

The habit of self-indulgence has blinded us to the evils encouraged by our indifference, and the lusts of the flesh have held us in thrall while the enemies of our civilization multiplied and made themselves masters.

Vice and crime too long tolerated have benumbed our moral sense so that we no longer are horrified by corrupt and indecent practices that once would have seemed intolerable.

Crimes and murders multiply and are forgotten in a day, as men forget the ordinary and commonplace, for we have lost the capacity to feel moral indignation.

Give us a new birth of decency.

Renew in us the ability to recognize the things that are right and manly and honorable, and to abhor and despise the things that are degrading and shameful.

Purge us of our callous and cynical indifference and give us again a clear perception of the sacred obligations that preserve and justify freedom.

Help us again to see the ugliness of evil and to abominate the evil ones who fatten on it.

Give us honest and fearless men to lead the way out of our degradation.

Give us men who prize honor above profit.

Give us men whose love of right is greater than their love of power and praise.

Give us men who can see the right and dare to do it though the heavens fall.

Give us a new pride in righteousness and a new love of decency for decency's sake, that we may have the will and the courage to destroy the evil things that now disgrace us and thus regain our birthright of respectability.

Hear us for our country's sake, and for our children and our children's children.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Reports of Republican Revolution in Spain Declared to Be Exaggerated.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read the telegram from Genoa which was published in your newspaper on June 29, and I am surprised at what it said about present-day Spanish politics, and especially at what it claims will happen with the change of the monarchy into a republic.

It is possible that some persons who know little about the character of the Spanish people and their love for century old habits and traditions, believe that the superficial agitation of those who want to establish the republic is a wide national movement which can change the form of government. The monarchist spirit is deepseated and sincere in Spain, and the popularity and democratic feelings of King Alfonso strengthen this general public opinion, which can not easily be altered.

The hereditary succession to the crown is insured in the sons of the king, and the constitution states how the crown is to be transferred from one king to the next. Therefore, I can not understand how this telegram from Genoa can give assurance that the present dynasty will end. The legitimate heir is the Prince of Asturias, who just became of age, and who officiated a few days ago at the closure of the magnificent Seville exposition, representing his father, the king, being received everywhere with manifestations of the greatest sympathy and enthusiasm on part of the Spanish people. All sons of the king are equally popular.

If a change from monarchy to republic were so easy to happen as stated in the Genoa telegram, with the king becoming president for life, it shows only that no one better than Don Alfonso of Bourbon can rule over Spain, be it as a king, as it is now, or as a president, as some people believe. If that is so, a change is unnecessary.

If the Spanish government sometimes prohibits political meetings which disturb the public order it is only doing what it rightfully can do and what it is obliged to do, as any other government would in its place, in order to avoid a spreading of the communist propaganda among the laboring classes, led by foreign elements, so as to produce a national catastrophe, as has happened in other countries. The Government of the United States by complying with its duty defends the cause of order and liberty of its citizens against the dangers of communism, and this is what the Spanish government is doing.

The republican parties have a legal state in Spain and send representatives to congress and senate, and the republican propaganda and societies are authorized in Spain within the general limits of the law. Before the law monarchists and republicans are equal, because they are all Spaniards with the same rights.

The next elections will be honest and legal, as Gen. Berenguer, premier of Spain, has said, and through its representatives the Spanish people will confirm its devotion to the monarchy and King Alfonso personally.

Old Capitol Prison a Reminder of British Ruthlessness in Burning Washington.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One by one the old historical reminders in Washington are disappearing. To me the demolishing of the old Capitol prison to make room for the new Supreme Court Building is one of the sad things in this changing life of ours. It stood there a reminder of the ruthlessness of the British army. During his career Napoleon was in every capital of Europe, except St. Petersburg and London. In none of them did he destroy a public building. Burning buildings was not one of his methods.

The British always claimed to be more civilized than France, yet where they conquered destruction followed. In Washington, the Capitol, the White House, the buildings occupied by the several departments were all destroyed, and destroyed without any excuse, except as an act of revenge. In later years the United States occupied the City of Mexico, Havana and Manila, but no destruction of public property occurred.

The building now being demolished on Capitol Hill had another claim for historical rememberance—its use as a prison for offenders during the Civil War, especially for those who took part in the assassination of President Lincoln. When I first came to Washington, in December, 1865, after being shown the White House, the Capitol, Ford's Theater and the Seward home on Sixteenth street, the next most interesting place to me was the old Capitol prison. Its history was related to me by Maj. O'Bierne, who was provost marshal of the District at the time of the assassination of Lincoln. In that old building, when it was new, gathered the great men of the country, their task being to rebuild a nation. It was in the days when John C. Calhoun and Henry Clay were rising to the heights of their leadership. It was in the "era of good feeling." For one, I regret to see the old building go.

Drys Made Slight Gains in Many States—Wet Candidates Poll Light Vote.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The wringing wet Literary Digest poll is over. Sensible men will not place any great significance in its returns.

In the recent primary elections in Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and a dozen other States, the wets made no gains, while the drys, who already had a 4 to 1 majority in both houses, made slight gains.

In Pennsylvania, where the Digest poll showed 72 per cent against the law as it now stands, the wet candidates, heavily supported by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, received but one vote in five.

As Will Rogers remarked concerning the wet candidate for governor in the Keystone State, "He carried his family and two friends unanimous."

FARMERS HEAR HYDE ON GRAIN REDUCTION

Secretary, Kansas Governor and Legge Carry Fight to Wheat Belt.

FEDERAL BOARD SCORED

Dodge City, Kans., July 10 (A.P.). The Federal Farm Board's gospel of wheat acreage reduction today was formally presented to southwest Kansas for discussion. Invading the heart of this hard winter wheat area, the Federal spokesmen, Secretary Arthur M. Hyde of the Department of Agriculture and Alexander Legge, chairman of the Far Board, and an opponent of the acreage reduction program, Gov. Clyde M. Reed, renewed a debate begun yesterday in Hays, Kans. They addressed a crowd of approximately 1,500 business men and farmers.

Secretary Hyde, while advocating the voluntary withdrawal of acreage from wheat, assured his hearers there was no disposition on the part of Chairman Legge or himself to "compel the Kansas farmer to do something he doesn't want to do."

Chairman Legge, answering a challenge by the Kansas Governor that the board act to increase the level of wheat prices, said the board was spending $1,000,000 a month to carry over 60,000,000 bushels of last year's surplus crop and that the board would not buy any more of the grain.

Warns Against Surplus.

Mr. Legge urged wheat farmers to "sit tight," expressing the opinion that if they would do so, the market would improve 25 cents a bushel.

Secretary Hyde pointed out industrialization of agriculture had resulted in many new farm problems and urged the farmers to plan for profitable production.

Asserting wheat acreage in the world since the last war had increased 40,000,000 acres, including 14,000,000 acres in the United States, the Secretary said that that was one cause of prevailing surplus and low prices.

Secretary Hyde warned against the continued production of large surpluses which threatened to lower the living standards here, due to competition of cheap labor in other countries. He urged the farmers to follow labor in organizing.

Governor Challenges Board.

Renewing his attack on farm board policies and calling upon the board to "do its job," Gov. Reed said, "It doesn't seem to have used all the powers with which it is empowered to solve the deplorable farm problem."

He characterized as "unsound and unnecessary" the proposals for wheat acreage reductions in this section, which he said would result in its depopulation.

The governor asserted that "never before this week had it been suggested that the way to eliminate a surplus was to limit production," adding, "if there had not been a surplus there would not have been any need for the farm board." The farmers, he said, "should be permitted to have their share of foreign trade."

PINCHOT IS TO RUN ON HIS OWN TICKET

candidate nominated by the Republican party in the primary.

In his statement Pinchot said that "the attempt of certain public utilities and gang politicians under the leadership of Atterbury to steal the governorship is too raw to be tolerated." It is a "scandalous effort," Pinchot said, to disfranchise the Republicans who voted for the winning candidates in the primary.

Atterbury, mentioned in the statement, is W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad and Republican national committeeman from Pennsylvania.

The present unprecedented situation in the Republican party in Pennsylvania was brought about by Francis Shunk Brown, Pinchot's principal opponent, challenging the legality of ballots used in Luzerne County, the third most populous county in the State. The Luzerne County Court permitted the ballots used in the county to be perforated with a set of figures on the margin such as are used in canceling bank checks. This was done to detect counterfeit ballots that might be stuffed into boxes in the interest of some candidate.

The Brown supporters contended the perforation of the ballots constituted mutilation. Under election laws mutilated ballots are invalid and can not be counted.

Ballots Held Legal.

The Luzerne County Court declared the ballots legal and the Brown supporters have taken an appeal to the State Supreme Court. Pinchot carried Luzerne County by 26,000 and the entire State by 20,000 plurality. If the Supreme Court should decide the ballots illegal, the Luzerne vote would be thrown out and Brown would be in the lead for the Republican nomination.

The Supreme Court has fixed September 29 for hearing argument in the Luzerne case. Fears were expressed that the court might act too late for an effective campaign for governor and reports were in circulation that Pinchot may decide to run independent.

Pinchot's announcement that he would preempt a party title "at the proper moment" was taken to mean that he would not wait for a court decision on the Luzerne County ballots.

political calamity howlers who pin their hopes to the continuance of national adversity are destined to have their fond expectations blasted."

Of the foreign policy, the Indianan said the United States "covets nothing belonging to other nations, but their friendship and respect," adding that the London naval treaty is based on a spirit of amity that will stand "as a landmark in the record of the Hoover administration."

Senator Watson praised the "prompt and statesmanlike course" of the President after the stock market decline last fall, which "can not by any stretch of the imagination fairly be attributed to any fault of the Hoover administration."

He recapitulated the accomplishments of the President's various commissions, credited the party now in power with having reduced taxes $1,986,000,000, lauded the Chief Executive's attitude toward the merchant marine and concluded with the plea that the people "back President Hoover to the limit."

"They should give him a congressional majority in both branches that always will try to help and not hinder in the development of his plans for the welfare of the American people and the fulfillment of the high destiny of our Republic," Mr. Watson said.

214 Mafiosi Go on Trial In Italy for 43 Murders

Fear of Dreaded Organization Causes Difficulty in Selecting Jury, Which Must Sit at Least Six Month in Island's Greatest Hearing.

Sciacca, Sicily, July 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.). Iron cages, behind the bars of which glowered 214 men and women charged with 43 murders and 24 attempted murders, filled one entire side of the courtroom here today when the trial of members of the dreaded Mafia, formally opened July 4, was resumed.

Around the cages of the bronzed defendants, the ferocity of whose scowls seemed heightened by their black hair and coarse features, in many cases scarred by knives, was ranged a cordon of alert military police with bayonets fixed on their guns. Swarthy peasants, glancing apprehensively at the prisoners, took up every seat and every bit of standing space in the court.

The proceedings today were taken up entirely by the difficult task of finding twelve men ready to serve as a jury. The reluctance to serve expressed by almost every talesman called up was attributed to one of two reasons. The first of these was a dislike, amounting often to terror, of having anything to do in any shape or form with proceedings against the leaders of the local Mafia. The second objection was that jurors must sit for at least six months.

Cavaliere Allocati, president of the tribunal, warned jurors today that for the duration of the trial they will have to sacrifice all their personal interests, cut themselves off from home ties, give up their leisure and neglect their business interests. He added that the taking of testimony will probably consume half a year, as the indictments alone fill 69 bulky volumes and there are thousands of witnesses to be examined.

The prisoners all belong to the once powerful mafia which twenty years ago terrorized the regions around Lucca, Villa Franca and Burgio. Among the crimes of which they are accused are the killings of two mayors, murders of members of their own and rival gangs and the extermination of entire families.

The present trial is the largest ever held in Sicily, not excluding that at Termini Imerese on October, 1927, when 153 Maffioso were brought to judgement on orders from Premier Benito Mussolini.

Some of the Sicilians attacked by the present defendants escaped to America, but were murdered on their return to their native land years later.

When the jury had finally been chosen today and sworn in, the court at once heard the pleas of the prisoners. All loudy and emphatically declared their innocence.

The crimes of which they stand accused were committed over a stretch of 21 years and began when two rival Maffiosi families, the Genovas and Cascios, quarreled over money matters and marriage contract.

of the welfare of those of the white race.

"The journey will be a severe tax on those making it as it will take them into strange surroundings and away from families and friends for a period of about six weeks. The War Department has been motivated by the desire to relieve this strain in so far as possible by not disturbing normal contacts of individual pilgrims. It would seem natural to assume that these mothers and widows would prefer to seek solace in their grief from companions of their own race.

Groups May Converge.

"A request has been made that these colored mothers and widows be placed in groups with white mothers and widows. The War Department, of course, has no objection to members of one group joining other groups provided they are welcome by the groups concerned. Without such welcome it can be understood that this action would not be conducive to peace and comfort of the pilgrims of either race. If evidence is furnished of any member of any group wishing to join another group and who will at the same time be welcome by that group, the War Department will be glad to make necessary arrangements. It must be understood, however, that any change must be predicated on the ability of the War Department to make satisfactory arrangements with transportation companies and hotels.

"No plan for conducting the pilgrimage has been proposed which, after careful analysis, gives the same assurance of success as does the plan of the War Department. The War Department is already in receipt of many letters from pilgrims who have completed the trip, all commending the present plan and full of praise for the manner in which it is being executed."

Plans for New Church Of Friends Are Filed

Plans for a third and larger meeting house for the Society of Friends in Washington, to the building fund of which President and Mrs. Hoover were contributors, were filed with the office of District Building Inspector Oehmann yesterday by Washington Friends Meeting, Inc., which applied for a permit to erect the structure.

It is described as a one-story and attic brick, stone and concrete church building and will be erected at 2109 Decatur place northwest. The building will be approximately 43 feet wide, 73 feet deep and 44 feet high. Its estimated cost is given as $66,000. Samuel J. Prescott Co., Inc., of this city, is the builder and Price & Wilson, of Philadelphia, the architects.

Condition of Shot Victim Unchanged

Alleged Assailant Held as Well as Two Girls in Case.

The condition of Dennis Collier, colored, 36 years old, of 411 Elm street northwest, who was shot yesterday by a colored assailant, remains unchanged at Emergency Hospital. Meanwhile the man who, police say, was his assailant, Condee Harris, colored, 26 years old, of Vermont avenue near M street northwest, is being held at the Second Precinct station on a technical charge of investigation.

Harris was captured by Private Francis B. Ash, of the Second Precinct, a few minutes after the shooting at Thirteenth and R streets northwest. Ash chased the man from the scene of the fight, on Thirteenth street near S street, though Harris fired at the policeman several times.

The fight between the two colored men is said to have started over a girl, and two girls are being held as witnesses. Collier was shot in the stomach and is expected to die.

Fire Rescue Squad Loses Bunch of Keys

The Fire Rescue Squad lost a bunch of keys while responding to a call on Fenton street near First street northwest early yesterday morning, they reported to police. The keys included one for the White House gates, one for a police patrol box, and a key to fit fire boxes.

The squad was called to treat Clarence Johnson, 50 years old, of 17 Fenton street, who was overcome by gas escaping from a gas stove. He was taken to Freedmen's Hospital, where it was said his condition is undetermined.

book, was his brother Charles, aged 10 years, and before he was taken into the firm of Marsh Brothers, Printers, was known just as "Billy's printer's devil."

"You young gentlemen are starting a publishing house pretty early, aren't you?" the President asked, beaming down upon his small callers. In the background were Mr. and Mrs. William J. Marsh, sr. They, too, were beaming.

"Yes, Mr. President, I suppose so," responded Billy, author of the book and senior member of the firm, in an obviously nervous voice.

Then the President accepted the book. It was one of the less than a hundred copies which Billy and Charles had turned from their ancient press, which their father had picked up from a junk dealer for 50 cents. Of course there are to be hundreds, even thousands, more of Billy's book. Trust the grown-up publishers for that. And one of the representatives of the favored company was with the Marsh family all day.

"The publicity? Ah, yes. Well——"

Later Billy, Charles, Father and Mother Marsh and the grown-up publishing company's agent called on Mrs. Hoover in the White House. In the afternoon they went to see those senators whom Author Billy had roundly criticised in his book.

"What did you think of the President?" Billy was asked.

"He is a bully fellow," the young author replied.

"And Mrs. Hoover?"

"A very nice lady."

Then some one questioned him on the burning political problem of the day at the Capital—Claudius H. Huston, besieged chairman of the Republican national committee.

"Oh," said Billy, looking up quickly, "I don't know so much about him. You know how it is," he added, in a very grown-up sort of a way.

15,000 in Parade Of Convening Elks

Rupp, New Grand Ruler, and Other Officials Review Marchers.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 10 (A.P.). Fifteen thousand uniformed Elks attending the sixty-sixth annual reunion of the grand lodge paraded on foot, on horseback and in automobiles through the city streets today.

Turning in to the boardwalk at Arkansas avenue, the Elks marched to the auditorium to be reviewed by the newly elected grand exalted ruler, Lawrence H. Rupp, of Allentown, Pa., and the other new officers. Harry Bacharach, who became Mayor of Atlantic City today for the third time, was one of the marchers.

The meeting of the grand lodge came to a close today with a memorial service and the installation of officers.

SUTRO & CO. BARRED BY STOCK EXCHANGE

Suspension Follows Charge "Wash Sales" of Issue Were Allowed.

ALLEGED POOL'S ECHO

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—The New York stock exchange's investigation of the pool operation in the stock of Manhattan Electric Supply Co. resulted in the suspension today of the membership of the old San Francisco house of Sutro & Co.

The brokerage firm was suspended for violation of the stock exchange rules in failure to exercise proper diligence in preventing "wash sales" by a customer of the firm's uptown New York office in Forty-fourth street.

The house was founded in 1858, but has been a member of the New York stock exchange only since January, 1929, when it absorbed the New York firm of Robertson & Co. It also is a member of the San Francisco and Los Angeles stock exchanges.

State Starts Inquiry.

What appeared to be the collapse of pool manipulation early in May, when Manhattan Electrical Supply crashed from $55.12 a share to $14, brought an investigation by Assistant Attorney General Watson Washburn, in charge of the State Bureau of Securities, and shortly thereafter, an investigation by the stock exchange.

The customer dealing through Sutro & Co., was identified by the firm as Charles H. McCarthy, against whom Mr. Washburn obtained a court order restraining him from further dealings in the stock. The order also restrained W. J. Goldman & Co., of New York, and five other individuals, three of whom were customers' men for other stock exchange firms.

After announcement of the suspension of Sutro & Co., Mr. Washburn stated that he had conferred with officials of the stock exchange regarding the case, and that he was looking into the activity of the brokerage firm.

"Wash Sales" Alleged.

The announcement added, "The substance of the charges and specifications was that through the manner in which the Forty-fourth street branch office of Sutro & Co. was conducted, transactions to buy and sell the same security were executed at the same time, and at the same price, and in the opinion of the governing committee did not involve a change of ownership." This is what Wall street knows as "wash sales."

A statement issued by Sutro & Co. stated that the Forty-fourth street office had been in charge of a former partner, Brinton Buckwiater, who resigned June 24. The firm explained that the charges against it, first to the effect that it knew the transactions were improper, were changed to read, "should have known" they were improper. The firm asserted it had no knowledge at the time that would indicate the impropriety of the McCarthy transactions.

The activity of McCarthy was explained as having amounted to the placing of both buying and selling orders at the same price, to make the stock appear active and attract attention.

These orders are said to have been placed through a number of stock exchange firms, although nothing could be learned as to whether any further disciplinary actions are likely.

Kiwanis Club Bids For 1932 Conclave

Appropriates $1,000 for Drive to Make Capital Conference Host.

An appropriation of $1,000 has been made by the Washington Kiwanis Club for use in the campaign to bring the Kiwanis international convention to the National Capital in 1932, it was announced at a meeting of the club yesterday. The appropriation was made by the local Kiwanians on motion of Eugene R. Woodson, vice president of the club, who is chairman of the 1932 convention committee.

In bringing the 1932 convention to Washington, the local Kiwanis Club is receiving competition from three other cities, Detroit, Cleveland and Toronto, Canada. Members of the Washington Club point out that each of these cities has entertained an international convention, while the National Capital has never done so. The convention city for 1932 will be decided at the Miami, Fla., convention in 1931.

Charles W. Pimper, chairman of the orthopedic and welfare committee of the local club, reported yesterday that 109 cases of crippled and underprivileged children are now receiving attention by the local club.

White House Enlivened by Dinner Party

Senator Smoot and Bride Also Hoover Guests at Breakfast.

By JEAN ELIOT.

THE President and Mrs. Hoover entertained at dinner last night. The guests were:

Senator and Mrs. Reed Smoot.

Senator and Mrs. Tasker L. Oddie.

Senator and Mrs. Gerald P. Nye.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg.

The Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Walter E. Hope.

The Minister to El Salvador, Mr. Warren D. Robbins.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Campbell.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Jardine.

Mr. J. R. Nutt.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smoot.

Mrs. Charles D. Walcott.

Miss Susan L. Dyer.

Mrs. Stark McMullin.

The President and Mrs. Hoover were hosts at a breakfast party yesterday morning, entertaining in compliment to Senator and Mrs. Reed Smoot, who are guests at the White House. Having canceled—or at any rate postponed—a honeymoon trip to Hawaii in order that Senator Smoot might return to Washington to aid the fight in the Senate for ratification of the naval treaty, Senator Smoot and his bride, formerly Mrs. Alice Taylor Sheets, were invited to visit the White House and have been staying with the President and Mrs. Hoover since their arrival in town.

While Mrs. Smoot has occasionally visited the Capital, where her daughter, Mrs. J. Willard Marriott, makes her home, many members of the

Miss Wrenn Is Bride of Mr. Russell

Nuptials Take Place in Presence of Large Guest Group.

A large number of wedding guests witnessed the marriage of Miss Hylda Mae Wrenn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. Clyde Wrenn, and Mr. William Irvine Russell, son of Mrs. Robert Lee Russell, which took place last night at 8 o'clock at St. Stephen's and Incarnation Episcopal Church, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. J. J. Queally.

The matron of honor was Mrs. George Reginald Heine, whose gown was of yellow crepe worn with a tulle hat and slippers and gloves to match. Miss Davis Lee Stutz, who is a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a gown like that of Mrs. Heine and carried talisman roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Hamette Rissler, Miss Alma Miller, wearing green crepe with tulle hats and carrying pernet roses, and Miss Margaret Armentrout and Miss Carolyn Brash in orchid crepe with matching hats and bouquets of ophelia roses.

The bride's dress was a lovely model of ivory satin made on princess lines and falling to a long train. Long tight sleeves gave a mediaeval note. The tulle veil fell from a cap of rose point lace edged with sprays of lilies-of-the-valley and she carried white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. She was given away by her father.

Mr. George Reginald Heine was best man. The ushers were Mr. James Neale, of Bethlehem, Pa.; Mr. Francis Stephens, Mr. Charles Bishop and Mr. Paul Doerr.

After the ceremony the bride's parents received. Mrs. Wrenn wearing powder blue embroidered crepe with a bouquet of talisman roses. Mrs. Russell's gown was of orchid chiffon and she wore a corsage of orchids.

After a wedding trip of four months Mr. and Mrs. Russell will be at home in Allentown, Pa. The bride attended George Washington University, where she affiliated with Chi Omega Sorority. Mr. Russell is a member of Kappa Alpha and was graduated from the University of Maryland.

Guests from out of town were Miss Frances Robinson, of Wytheville, Va.; Mrs. E. Milert, of Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Robert Sanford and Mrs. O. R. Hard, of Richmond.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Alexander, of Cincinnati, are sojourning at the Dodge Hotel while in Washington.

Daughter of Mrs. Pope Awaiting Call in Juvenile Court.

Miss Frances Hampson, daughter of Mrs. Francis H. Pope, will linger in Washington through July, having been called to jury duty. In the District of Columbia, it will be remembered, it is optional with a woman whether or not she will serve on a jury, if called. So Miss Hampson is serving because she chooses to serve and is finding the experience most interesting, her one complaint being that the work is not continuous enough. She was one of the panel called for duty in the Juvenile Court, which is not so crowded as some of the other local courts, and, although she reported for duty on Monday, she has so far spent most of her time waiting to be called.

In August Gen. and Mrs. Pope and Miss Hampson expect to go to Atlantic City for a short stay. Miss Hampson has but recently returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Rozier Dulany and their daughter, Mrs. Frank Hayne, at their country home near Upperville, Va. Capt. Hayne is stationed at the Army War College and this summer Mrs. Hayne is dividing her time between Washington and Upperville.

The Assistant Naval Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. W. C. Horton entertained a few friends on Wednesday evening at the dinner dance at the Plage Deauville at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Smith, of Los Angeles, Calif., have been visiting in Annapolis and are now sojourning at the Cavalier Hotel.

Gilberts May Again Live in Washington

Post as Head of Tariff Commission May Go to Him.

It's important—if true—this story going the rounds that Mr. S. Parker Gilbert, jr., is being considered by President Hoover for the post of head of the Tariff Commission and of especial interest to Washington, since it would mean the return of the Gilberts to Washington. However, not even those who claim to know that the President wants Mr. Gilbert for this important post can say whether it has been offered to him or whether it would be accepted if it were. Indeed, Mr. Gilbert's friends say that he has "practically decided" to enter the J. Pierpont Morgan firm.

So we shall see—what we shall see. Certainly if the Gilberts did come back here they would be right warmly welcomed. Although they have lived abroad ever since their marriage, Mr. Gilbert serving as agent general for reparations under the Dawes plan, Washington still feels a proprietary interest in this distinguished young couple. Mr. Gilbert first came into the public eye when he was serving in the Treasury Department, the post of Undersecretary of the Treasury being created for him; and Mrs. Gilbert, who was Miss Louise Ross Todd, spent much of her girlhood here with her aunt, Mme. Christian Hauge.

Those who are boosting Mr. Gilbert for the post of head of the Tariff Commission feel that foreign governments would have confidence in him because of his experience abroad and that his appointment would be a most happy one at a time when trouble is brewing abroad over recent tariff legislation.

Mr. R. C. Kirby Tells How Cuticura Healed Itchy Eruptions.

"Some time ago I began breaking out with small, red pimples. They bothered me at night, itching until I could hardly sleep, and when I scratched them it caused eruptions. They bothered me about two months.

"I tried several different remedies but was not successful until I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using them a few times, as per directions, the itching stopped, and in two or three weeks I was completely healed." (Signed) R. C. Kirby, R. D. 4, Manchester, Tenn., June 28, 1929.

Motorists of WASHINGTON

We congratulate you

In the conflicting swirl of gasoline claims, it is sometimes difficult to know which brand is "better."

But Washington motorists have shown a sure-fire instinct for superior quality. In four years they have lifted ESSO from scratch to the leadership of the whole field.

A recent, impartial, traffic check proved that today more Washington motorists use ESSO than any brand of gasoline or motor fuel sold at any price in the District of Columbia.

To the man who has not yet tried ESSO, the Giant Power Fuel, we offer these facts:

ESSO is more powerful than any gasoline.

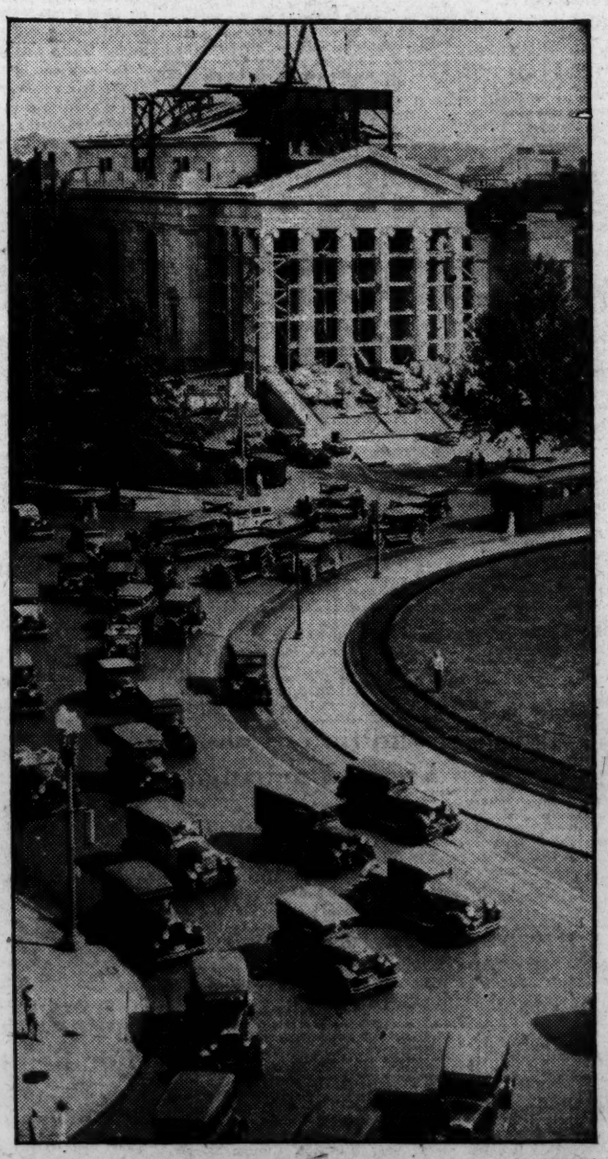
Its base stock is the best straight gasoline that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey can manufacture.

To that finer stock is added Ethyl fluid—the most effective anti-knock ingredient known.

Because it costs more to make, ESSO sells at a 3-cent premium . . . those who use it know it's more than worth the difference.

We take this occasion to thank Washington motorists for their quick response to extra quality . . . And we invite new thousands to try ESSO today, at the nearest ESSO pump. Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

One of the investigators asking a charming young Washington motorist, "What gasoline do you use?" —at Madison Place, east side of the White House.



One out of every 5 of the hundreds of cars that swing round Thomas Circle every day is powered by ESSO . . . Washington's favorite motor fuel.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

CULTIVATION MUST NOT CEASE.

THIS is the time when roses are so likely to show sings of mildew, so get out your blower gun and go over each bush or vine and cover the foliage with powdered sulphur. Peonies at this time will be benefited by an application of liquid manure or bonemeal.

Cultivate your garden during July and August to keep down weeds and retain soil moisture. Stake your dahlias and other tall plants before they blow over. Cut your columbine back so as to induce a second crop of flowers and keep your coreopsis cut closely, so as to tempt more flowers to open.

Pick your sweet peas regularly, for if you permit seed pods to form, the plants will be sure to stop producing. Keep them well watered; if the vines begin to turn yellow they will soon cease to set buds. This is a good time to pinch out the young shoots of evergreens, in order to increase the bushiness. Pinch the terminal ends from the alternanthera every time you cut the grass. It is also well at this time to begin pinching back your coleuses and continue pinching back your hardy chrysanthemums until August 1.

Remember, from now until Labor Day, to water all young trees. Also water your shrubbery at least twice each week. Bushes that were set out this year will require water at least three times a week. This is the time to prune all spring-flowering shrubbery. Also prune your climbing roses as they pass out of bloom.

In transplanting annuals at this time, take care that their roots never become dry. It is best to puddle them in a pail of mud before planting.

Water your pansies frequently at this season, and if they cease to produce buds, try cutting them back.

This is a good time to begin collecting seeds from your perennials. Allow them to dry for about fifteen days before planting. Plant the last of your gladiolus bulbs at this time. If you wait any longer frost will have overtaken them before they have produced any flowers.

July 2 is a good time to take cuttings from hardy pinks. Cut these with a heel and place them in damp sand in a shady place.

Keep up the good work of cultivation. This is especially necessary in the case of gladiolus and dahlias, as it not only keeps down the weeds, but aids in the conservation of moisture.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

RICKETS CAUSED BY LACK OF SUNLIGHT.

(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

Rickets is a disease of growth, affecting the whole body, but most strikingly the bones. In hot climates, where children are out of doors in the sun throughout the year, rickets is little known; in temperate climates, where children are indoors a large part of the year, rickets is prevalent. Since rickets is a disease resulting primarily from lack of sunlight it can be prevented and cured by sunlight.

To ward off rickets preventive measures must be begun very early in an infant's life, for rickets makes its appearance in very young infants. These preventive measures are the giving of sun baths and the administering of codliver oil, the so-called "bottled sunshine."

Jane Interprets the Mode

Paris, July 10.

ONE of Paris' large department stores has the most amusing idea in tablecloths! Can't you just see yourself having your friends in for tea or dinner and telling them all about your trip to Paris and through France, the while you illustrate your lecture, as it were, by pointing to the delicately outlined map of France which is embroidered on your table cover!

It's a novelty to be sure, on a par with the one I told you about a long time ago in lamp shades—you 'member the man who had a lamp shade painted for his den which represented a voyage that he took through several countries? But even as a novelty the map isn't so obvious that you won't enjoy eating off of the tablecloth for its own sake!

And then don't forget that amusing little habit that men have of illustrating their table talks with penciled illustrations on your table linen. If you and hubby have had a trip to Europe, it might not be such a bad idea to invest in two or three of these map-embroidered tablecloths—yes, there are other countries represented besides France!

• • • •

Vivid blue and white they were, and with an unusual and very snappy cut! And each trouser leg has its inverted pleat at the side, in this Marynowitsky beach pajama which I just had to sketch for you today. The pajamas went on right over the vivid blue bathing suit underneath, with its white stripe, as you can see, and the white hat, also linen as were the pajamas (did I forget to tell you), had nifty blue incrustations!

• • • •

For Him.

This summer finds cheviotte material, in designs in all light colors, very fashionable for travel and sport. Then a soft hat, turned down in front, or even turned down all around, the same color as the suit. The shirt will be flat, attached collar low in front, with long and rather open points, and plain cuffs with two buttons. The most elegant shirts will be in linen-cambric or in silk with very small stripes, in a color matching the suit.

Sports coats and knickers will be of light-colored tweed, especially beige. The shirt of white or colored wool taffeta or English twill mixture. The cap of English shape is rather wide and of the same material as the coat.

Did you forget to get the proper kind of a play hat for little sister? Is sonny's beach robe already getting a little worn from active service? Better send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make a smart beach robe for him, a cunning play hat, a wee bathing suit, a little girl's play overalls and several other wee things for the kiddies that are not only summer things but all-year-round things for little folks.

• • • •

And then an unusual bathing costume from Heim, for-them-as-could-wear-it, I have illustrated on the right. Green and white silk broadcloth this was, and very nonchalant and vagabondish looking as to line. Like it?

There are things you will like, also, in Dare's weekly fashion letter. It's always in The Sunday Washington Post.

FRANCES M'DONALD

DEAR MISS McDONALD: I am an ardent reader of your psychology of modern love. I naturally turn to you for advice.

Two girls are in love with me at present and both pursue me diligently. Unfortunately, although both are beautiful and popular, neither appeals to my esthetic taste. I like them both, but can love neither. Both are extremely wealthy and persist in sending me lavish presents (one gave me a car). I am embarrassed, and at the same time, I do not want to hurt their feelings. With your wonderful fund of common sense I know you will give me a solution to this perplexing problem.

I am a young man of 22 years, with no mother and with little or no experience. I am considered rather handsome by my friends of both sexes. I am six feet tall and have a build which enables me to maintain a berth on the football team. I have a deep appreciation of classical art and music, but I do not care for modern jazz. My favorite authors are Thucydides, Voltaire, Johann Wolfgang von Goethe and Sax Rohmer, to say nothing of Mary Roberts Rhinehardt. Please tell me what type of girl would attract me, as like Rudy Vallee I have not yet found my "dream girl." I hope I have not bored you with my case, which is worrying me so much that I often can not sleep.

C. C.

Why worry about the feelings of people who have so little regard for your feelings as a man?

From your letter head I take it you are an Annapolis man, and for that reason, if for no other, I hope you will refuse to be purchased and added to the belongings of some woman who will soon rob you of every feeling common to manhood.

I have often wondered why women regard Annapolis men as an animated uniform—pretty boys that some one must keep nicely dressed and supplied with spending money. True, as in any university, there are weaklings at Annapolis, but there are also real men—even heroes. For that reason I, for one, resent the attitude taken toward them.

You exemplify the attitude. Women have no fear that you will be insulted by their treating you as they would dare treat a plumber or the grocer. If you do not soon assert yourself, you will be offered an allowance, if indeed that has not yet been done.

For the honor of the U. S. A. show a little of the courage you will need in time of war. Be something more than ornamental.

How do you rate above the shoulders? High enough to make women keep their gifts? Or shall we call on the army to help?

If you continue being subsidized by girls who buy what they want even when it happens to be a man, you will never be attracted to any girl, for your natural reactions will be lost in the general wreck of your manhood.

Build up your self-respect instead of your self-love, and some day some real woman will see in you a man and a man of courage, instead of just a uniform on a good pair of shoulders.

I am strong for Annapolis men, and your letter makes me just about froth at the mouth.

What Today Means to You

"CANCER."

IF July 11 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. and 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. to 5:30 p. m.

Influences on this date will tend to make one overconfident and daring. There will be an inclination to be led into things which will only lead to regret. Complete travel, work and business before 4:30 p. m. if possible, as dangerous forces will prevail after that hour.

Children born on this date will be inclined to fluctuating moods. They will have inquisitive natures and a great respect for knowledge and persons of position, learning or authority. They will excel in any pursuit depending upon energy and force of character.

You are unconsciously one of the joygivers of the world. You never leave people depressed or bored. You study your audience, and try to interest them. If sympathy is needed you have plenty to spare; if a helping hand is wanted, yours is readily extended. You can clothe the smallest incidents, the every-day happenings, with words of humor and appeal. You can rob a truth of its commonness or sordidness. You take the pains to be always courteous, to please, to pat the other fellow on the back—no matter how much it may bore you.

You are a superior being, who shows no signs of being conscious of the fact. Your own accomplishments and bits of good fortune surprise as well as please you. You are always more than anxious to hand the honors to some one else. You do not hate your competitors, and are anxious that they win with you. The sufferings of others grieve you. You will never be old in spirit, and will always keep in contact with the visions and outlook of youth. You do not hang on to outgrown idols. From choice, your companions will always be younger than yourself, and they will help to keep you up to date. You will never engage in strife without good cause, and never bear malice. You will have a long and useful career.

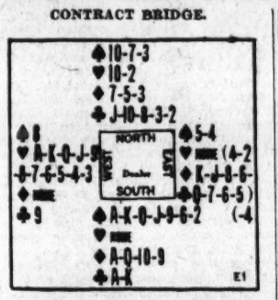
WORK ON BRIDGE

CONTRACT BRIDGE.



The freakishness of Goulash distributions is well illustrated by the following hand recently played in Boston.

South opened with a bid of six Spades over which West, more as a saving device than with the hope of fulfilling his contract, bid seven Hearts.

After North and East passed, South could have doubled and defeated West by two tricks as it turned out; but a Goulash business double is dangerous when success depends upon winning with side Aces. As far as South knew, West might have thirteen Hearts; so South, whose valor lacked the "better part"—discretion—bid seven Spades.

In the play, West led a Heart and when East refused, Declarer knew that West's hand had been composed of eleven Hearts and two other cards; but as yet he did not know what suit or suits those two other cards represented. Declarer's best scheme seemed to be to finesse Diamonds, which would require three Diamond leads from North. These could be obtained with North's three trumps if the adverse trumps were divided 2-1, and the singleton were the Eight. Of course the odds were long against such distribution, and it is probable that after his preliminary view of the situation the Declarer would have been glad to call the deal off; but there being no way to arrange that, he had to try the most probable road to success. So South trumped the first trick with an honor and led the Nine of Spades, overtaking with dummy's Ten; and the fall of West's Eight on that trick was a welcome sight. This left one small adverse trump, doubtless held by East.

When dummy led a Diamond to trick 3, West could have only one card which was not a Heart. If that card were the Diamond King, South's play was the Ace; if the Diamond Jack, South's play was the Queen; if a smaller Diamond, or a Club, South's play was the Ten or Nine. Declarer guessed the Nine, and when West refused all was over. Dummy was put in twice more with the Seven and Trey of trumps to lead two more Diamonds, the first for a second double finesse (the Ten) and the third for the Queen finesse which must produce the big slam.

White House Enlivened by Dinner Party

Senator Smoot and Bride Also Hoover Guests at Breakfast.

By JEAN ELIOT.

THE President and Mrs. Hoover entertained at dinner last night. The guests were:

Senator and Mrs. Reed Smoot.
Senator and Mrs. Tasker L. Oddie.
Senator and Mrs. Gerald P. Nye.
Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg.
The Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Walter E. Hope.
The Minister to El Salvador, Mr. Warren D. Robbins.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Jardine.
Mr. J. R. Nutt.
Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smoot.
Mrs. Charles D. Walcott.
Miss Susan L. Dyer.
Mrs. Stark McMullin.

The President and Mrs. Hoover were hosts at a breakfast party yesterday morning, entertaining in compliment to Senator and Mrs. Reed Smoot, who are guests at the White House. Having canceled—or at any rate postponed—a honeymoon trip to Hawaii in order that Senator Smoot might return to Washington to aid the fight in the Senate for ratification of the naval treaty, Senator Smoot and his bride, formerly Mrs. Alice Taylor Sheets, were invited to visit the White House and have been staying with the President and Mrs. Hoover since their arrival in town.

While Mrs. Smoot has occasionally visited the Capital, where her daughter, Mrs. J. Willard Marriott, makes her home, many members of the

Nuptials Take Place in Presence of Large Guest Group.

A large number of wedding guests witnessed the marriage of Miss Hylda Mae Wrenn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. Clyde Wrenn, and Mr. William Irvine Russell, son of Mrs. Robert Lee Russell, which took place last night at 8 o'clock at St. Stephen's and Incarnation Episcopal Church, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. J. J. Queally.

The matron of honor was Mrs. George Reginald Heine, whose gown was of yellow crepe worn with a tulle hat and slippers and gloves to match. Miss Davis Lee Stutz, who is a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a gown like that of Mrs. Heine and carried talisman roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Hamette Rissler, Miss Alma Miller, wearing green crepe with tulle hats and carrying pernet roses, and Miss Margaret Armentrout and Miss Carolyn Brash in orchid crepe with matching hats and bouquets of ophelia roses.

The bride's dress was a lovely model of ivory satin made on princess lines and falling to a long train. Long tight sleeves gave a mediaeval note. The tulle veil fell from a cap of rose point lace edged with sprays of lilies-of-the-valley and she carried white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. She was given away by her father.

Mr. George Reginald Heine was best man. The ushers were Mr. James Neale, of Bethlehem, Pa.; Mr. Francis Stephens, Mr. Charles Bishop and Mr. Paul Doerr.

After the ceremony the bride's parents received, Mrs. Wrenn wearing powder blue embroidered crepe with a bouquet of talisman roses. Mrs. Russell's gown was of orchid chiffon and she wore a corsage of orchids.

After a wedding trip of four months Mr. and Mrs. Russell will be at home in Allentown, Pa. The bride attended George Washington University, where she affiliated with Chi Omega Sorority. Mr. Russell is a member of Kappa Alpha and was graduated from the University of Maryland.

Guests from out of town were Miss Frances Robinson, of Wytheville, Va.; Mrs. E. Milert, of Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Robert Sanford and Mrs. O. R. Hard, of Richmond.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Alexander, of Cincinnati, are sojourning at the Dodge Hotel while in Washington.

Daughter of Mrs. Pope Awaiting Call in Juvenile Court.

Miss Frances Hampson, daughter of Mrs. Francis H. Pope, will linger in Washington through July, having been called to jury duty. In the District of Columbia, it will be remembered, it is optional with a woman whether or not she will serve on a jury, if called. So Miss Hampson is serving because she chooses to serve and is finding the experience most interesting, her one complaint being that the work is not continuous enough. She was one of the panel called for duty in the Juvenile Court, which is not so crowded as some of the other local courts, and, although she reported for duty on Monday, she has so far spent most of her time waiting to be called.

In August Gen. and Mrs. Pope and Miss Hampson expect to go to Atlantic City for a short stay. Miss Hampson has but recently returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Rozier Dulany and their daughter, Mrs. Frank Hayne, at their country home near Upperville, Va. Capt. Hayne is stationed at the Army War College and this summer Mrs. Hayne is dividing her time between Washington and Upperville.

The Assistant Naval Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. W. C. Horton entertained a few friends on Wednesday evening at the dinner dance at the Plage Deauville at the Wardman Park Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Smith, of Los Angeles, Calif., have been visiting in Annapolis and are now sojourning at the Cavalier Hotel.

Gilberts May Again Live in Washington

Post as Head of Tariff Commission May Go to Him.

It's important—if true—this story going the rounds that Mr. S. Parker Gilbert, jr., is being considered by President Hoover for the post of head of the Tariff Commission and of especial interest to Washington, since it would mean the return of the Gilberts to Washington. However, not even those who claim to know that the President wants Mr. Gilbert for this important post can say whether it has been offered to him or whether it would be accepted if it were. Indeed, Mr. Gilbert's friends say that he has "practically decided" to enter the J. Pierpont Morgan firm.

So we shall see—what we shall see. Certainly if the Gilberts did come back here they would be right warmly welcomed. Although they have lived abroad ever since their marriage, Mr. Gilbert serving as agent general for reparations under the Dawes plan, Washington still feels a proprietary interest in this distinguished young couple. Mr. Gilbert first came into the public eye when he was serving in the Treasury Department, the post of Undersecretary of the Treasury being created for him; and Mrs. Gilbert, who was Miss Louise Ross Todd, spent much of her girlhood here with her aunt, Mme. Christian Hauge.

Those who are boosting Mr. Gilbert for the post of head of the Tariff Commission feel that foreign governments would have confidence in him because of his experience abroad and that his appointment would be a most happy one at a time when trouble is brewing abroad over recent tariff legislation.

"Some time ago I began breaking out with small, red pimples. They bothered me at night, itching until I could hardly sleep, and when I scratched them it caused eruptions. They bothered me about two months.

Motorists of WASHINGTON

We congratulate you

In the conflicting swirl of gasoline claims, it is sometimes difficult to know which brand is "better."

But Washington motorists have shown a sure-fire instinct for superior quality. In four years they have lifted ESSO from scratch to the leadership of the whole field.

A recent, impartial, traffic check proved that today more Washington motorists use ESSO than any brand of gasoline or motor fuel sold at any price in the District of Columbia.

To the man who has not yet tried ESSO, the Giant Power Fuel, we offer these facts:

ESSO is more powerful than any gasoline.

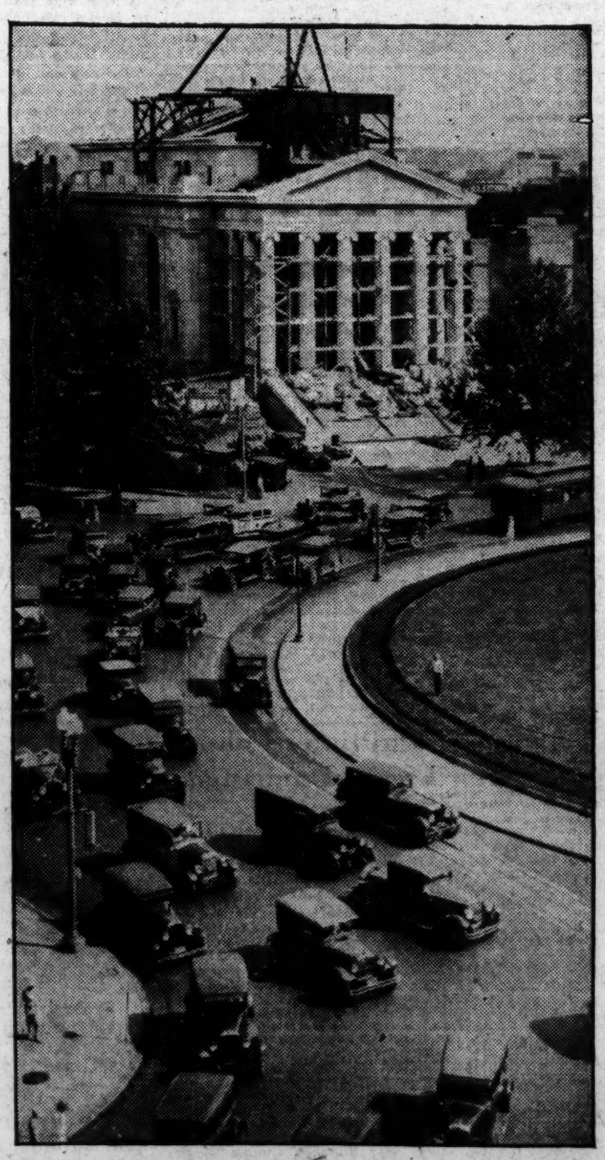
Its base stock is the best straight gasoline that the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey can manufacture.

To that finer stock is added Ethyl fluid—the most effective anti-knock ingredient known.

Because it costs more to make, ESSO sells at a 3-cent premium . . . those who use it know it's more than worth the difference.

We take this occasion to thank Washington motorists for their quick response to extra quality . . . And we invite new thousands to try ESSO today, at the nearest ESSO pump. Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

One of the investigators asking a charming young Washington motorist, "What gasoline do you use?" —at Madison Place, east side of the White House.



One out of every 5 of the hundreds of cars that swing round Thomas Circle every day is powered by ESSO . . . Washington's favorite motor fuel.

CULTIVATION MUST NOT CEASE.

THIS is the time when roses are so likely to show sings of mildew, so get out your blower gun and o over each bush or vine and cover he foliage with powdered sulphur. eonies at this time will be benefited y an application of liquid manure or onemeal.

Cultivate your garden during July nd August to keep down weeds and etain soil moisture. Stake your ahlias and other tall plants before hey blow over. Cut your columbine ack so as to induce a second crop of flowers and keep your coreopsis cut closely, so as to tempt more flowers to open.

Pick your sweet peas regularly, for f you permit seed pods to form, the plants will be sure to stop producing. Keep them well watered; if the vines begin to turn yellow they will soon cease to set buds. This is a good time to pinch out the young shoots of evergreens, in order to increase the bushiness. Pinch the terminal ends from the alternanthera every time you cut the grass. It is also well at this time to begin pinching back your coleuses and continue pinching back your hardy chrysanthemums until August 1.

Remember, from now until Labor Day, to water all young trees. Also water your shrubbery at least twice each week. Bushes that were set out this year will require water at least three times a week. This is the time to prune all spring-flowering shrubbery. Also prune your climbing roses as they pass out of bloom.

In transplanting annuals at this time, take care that their roots never become dry. It is best to puddle them in a pail of mud before planting.

Water your pansies frequently at this season, and if they cease to produce buds, try cutting them back.

This is a good time to begin collecting seeds from your perennials. Allow them to dry for about fifteen days before planting. Plant the last of your gladiolus bulbs at this time. If you wait any longer frost will have overtaken them before they have produced any flowers.

July 2 is a good time to take cuttings from hardy pinks. Cut these with a heel and place them in damp sand in a shady place.

Keep up the good work of cultivation. This is especially necessary in the case of gladiolus and dahlias, as it not only keeps down the weeds, but aids in the conservation of moisture.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

(Children's Bureau, Department of Labor.)

Rickets is a disease of growth, affecting the whole body, but most strikingly the bones. In hot climates, where children are out of doors in the sun throughout the year, rickets is little known; in temperate climates, where children are indoors a large part of the year, rickets is prevalent. Since rickets is a disease resulting primarily from lack of sunlight it can be prevented and cured by sunlight.

To ward off rickets preventive measures must be begun very early in an infant's life, for rickets makes its appearance in very young infants. These preventive measures are the giving of sun baths and the administering of codliver oil, the so-called "bottled sunshine."

Ann Interprets the Mode

Paris, July 10.

ONE of Paris' large department stores has the most amusing idea in tablecloths! Can't you just see yourself having your friends in for tea or dinner and telling them all about your trip to Paris and through France, the while you illustrate your lecture, as it were, by pointing to the delicately outlined map of France which is embroidered on your table cover!

It's a novelty to be sure, on a par with the one I told you about a long time ago in lamp shades—you 'member the man who had a lamp shade painted for his den which represented a voyage that he took through several countries? But even as a novelty the map isn't so obvious that you won't enjoy eating off of the tablecloth for its own sake!

And then don't forget that amusing little habit that men have of illustrating their table talks with penciled illustrations on your table linen. If you and hubby have had a trip to Europe, it might not be such a bad idea to invest in two or three of these map-embroidered tablecloths—yes, there are other countries represented besides France!

• • • •

Vivid blue and white they were, and with an unusual and very snappy cut! And each trouser leg has its inverted pleat at the side, in this Marynowitsky beach pajama which I just had to sketch for you today. The pajamas went on right over the vivid blue bathing suit underneath, with its white stripe, as you can see, and the white hat, also linen as were the pajamas (did I forget to tell you), had nifty blue incrustations!

• • • •

For Him.

This summer finds cheviotte material, in designs in all light colors, very fashionable for travel and sport. Then a soft hat, turned down in front, or even turned down all around, the same color as the suit. The shirt will be flat, attached collar low in front, with long and rather open points, and plain cuffs with two buttons. The most elegant shirts will be in linen-cambric or in silk with very small stripes, in a color matching the suit.

Sports, coats and knickers will be of light-colored tweed, especially beige. The shirt of white or colored wool taffeta or English twill mixture. The cap of English shape is rather wide and of the same material as the coat.

• • • •

Did you forget to get the proper kind of a play hat for little sister? Is sonny's beach robe already getting a little worn from active service? Better send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make a smart beach robe for him, a cunning play hat, a wee bathing suit, a little girl's play overalls and several other wee things for the kiddies that are not only summer things but all-year-round things for little folks.

• • • •

And then an unusual bathing costume from Heim, for-them-as-could-wear-it, I have illustrated on the right. Green and white silk broadcloth this was, and very nonchalant and vagabondish looking as to line. Like it?

• • • •

There are things you will like, also, in Dare's weekly fashion letter. It's always in The Sunday Washington Post.

DEAR MISS McDONALD: I am an ardent reader of your psychology of modern love. I naturally turn to you for advice.

Two girls are in love with me at present and both pursue me diligently. Unfortunately, although both are beautiful and popular, neither appeals to my esthetic taste. I like them both, but can love neither. Both are extremely wealthy and persist in sending me lavish presents (one gave me a car). I am embarrassed, and at the same time, I do not want to hurt their feelings. With your wonderful fund of common sense I know you will give me a solution to this perplexing problem.

I am a young man of 22 years, with no mother and with little or no experience. I am considered rather handsome by my friends of both sexes. I am six feet tall and have a build which enables me to maintain a berth on the football team. I have a deep appreciation of classical art and music, but I do not care for modern jazz. My favorite authors are Thucydides, Voltaire, Johann Wolfgang von Goethe and Sax Rohmer, to say nothing of Mary Roberts Rinehardt. Please tell me what type of girl would attract me, as like Rudy Vallee I have not yet found my "dream girl." I hope I have not bored you with my case, which is worrying me so much that I often can not sleep.

C. C.

Why worry about the feelings of people who have so little regard for your feelings as a man?

From your letter head I take it you are an Annapolis man, and for that reason, if for no other, I hope you will refuse to be purchased and added to the belongings of some woman who will soon rob you of every feeling common to manhood.

I have often wondered why women regard Annapolis men as an animated uniform—pretty boys that some one must keep nicely dressed and supplied with spending money. True, as in any university, there are weaklings at Annapolis, but there are also real men—even heroes. For that reason I, for one, resent the attitude taken toward them.

You exemplify the attitude. Women have no fear that you will be insulted by their treating you as they would dare treat a plumber or the grocer. If you do not soon assert yourself, you will be offered an allowance, if indeed that has not yet been done.

For the honor of the U. S. A. show a little of the courage you will need in time of war. Be something more than ornamental.

How do you rate above the shoulders? High enough to make women keep their gifts? Or shall we call on the army to help?

If you continue being subsidized by girls who buy what they want even when it happens to be a man, you will never be attracted to any girl, for your natural reactions will be lost in the general wreck of your manhood.

Build up your self-respect instead of your self-love, and some day some real woman will see in you a man and a man of courage, instead of just a uniform on a good pair of shoulders.

I am strong for Annapolis men, and your letter makes me just about froth at the mouth.

What Today Means to You

"CANCER."

IF July 11 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. and 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 9 a. m. to 10 a. m. and 4 p. m. to 5:30 p. m.

Influences on this date will tend to make one overconfident and daring. There will be an inclination to be led into things which will only lead to regret. Complete travel, work and business before 4:30 p. m. if possible, as dangerous forces will prevail after that hour.

Children born on this date will be inclined to fluctuating moods. They will have inquisitive natures and a great respect for knowledge and persons of position, learning or authority. They will excel in any pursuit depending upon energy and force of character.

You are unconsciously one of the joygivers of the world. You never leave people depressed or bored. You study your audience, and try to interest them. If sympathy is needed you have plenty to spare; if a helping hand is wanted, yours is readily extended. You can clothe the smallest incidents, the every-day happenings, with words of humor and appeal. You can rob a truth of its commonness or sordidness. You take the pains to be always courteous, to please, to pat the other fellow on the back—no matter how much it may bore you.

You are a superior being, who shows no signs of being conscious of the fact. Your own accomplishments and bits of good fortune surprise as well as please you. You are always more than anxious to hand the honors to some one else. You do not hate your competitors, and are anxious that they win with you. The sufferings of others grieve you. You will never be old in spirit, and will always keep in contact with the visions and outlook of youth. You do not hang on to outgrown idols. From choice, your companions will always be younger than yourself, and they will help to keep you up to date. You will never engage in strife without good cause, and never bear malice. You will have a long and useful career.

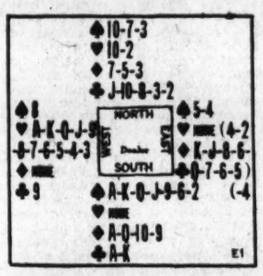
WORK ON BRIDGE

CONTRACT BRIDGE.



The freakishness of Goulash distributions is well illustrated by the following hand recently played in Boston.

South opened with a bid of six Spades over which West, more as a saving device than with the hope of fulfilling his contract, bid seven Hearts.

After North and East passed, South could have doubled and defeated West by two tricks as it turned out; but a Goulash business double is dangerous when success depends upon winning with side Aces. As far as South knew, West might have thirteen Hearts; so South, whose valor lacked the "better part"—discretion—bid seven Spades.

In the play, West led a Heart and when East refused, Declarer knew that West's hand had been composed of eleven Hearts and two other cards; but as yet he did not know what suit or suits those two other cards represented. Declarer's best scheme seemed to be to finesse Diamonds, which would require three Diamond leads from North. These could be obtained with North's three trumps if the adverse trumps were divided 2-1, and the singleton were the Eight. Of course the odds were long against such distribution, and it is probable that after his preliminary view of the situation the Declarer would have been glad to call the deal off; but there being no way to arrange that, he had to try the most probable road to success. So South trumped the first trick with an honor and led the Nine of Spades, overtaking with dummy's Ten; and the fall of West's Eight on that trick was a welcome sight. This left one small adverse trump, doubtless held by East.

When dummy led a Diamond to trick 3, West could have only one card which was not a Heart. If that card were the Diamond King, South's play was the Ace; if the Diamond Jack, South's play was the Queen; if a smaller Diamond, or a Club, South's play was the Ten or Nine. Declarer guessed the Nine, and when West refused all was over. Dummy was put in twice more with the Seven and Trey of trumps to lead two more Diamonds, the first for a second double finesse (the Ten) and the third for the Queen finesse which must produce the big slam.

Summer bridgers, get this valuable free new, twelve-page booklet, "Correct Bridge Play," a vacation time Guide Book of Auction and Contract laws clearly explained in nontechnical language and illumined with graphic examples by Milton C. Work, the world's preeminent authority on Bridge and chairman of the rules committee of the American Bridge League. This booklet will decide all the moot points and many important conventions so frequently discussed at Bridge parties. It is yours with the compliments of The Washington Post upon request accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed, return envelope. Address Milton C. Work in care of The Washington Post.

MACARONI SHRIMP SALAD.

1 package elbow macaroni
1 can shrimps (cut up)
½ cup walnut meats (cut fine)
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ cup stuffed olives (cut up)
1 cup mayonnaise
1 head lettuce
2 hard cooked eggs
3 fresh tomatoes

Boil the macaroni for 9 minutes in 4 quarts rapidly boiling water to which 1 tablespoon salt has been added. Drain and chill.

Combine macaroni, shrimps, walnut meats, salt, pepper and olives. Blend in enough mayonnaise to hold it together. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves, garnished with the sliced hard-cooked eggs, tomatoes, cut into eighths and the remaining mayonnaise.

senatorial group now in town will have their first opportunity to meet the most recent acquisition to their little coterie during Senator and Mrs. Smoot's stay here.

The breakfast party at the White House yesterday morning, numbering sixteen, included Mrs. Smoot's daughter and members of Senator Smoot's family. However, the most important member of the family, the senator's great granddaughter, Miss Alice Chambers, was not present, being a bit too young for such festivities. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Chambers and a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smoot.

In entertaining at a garden party for the wounded veterans of the World War in service hospitals in and near Washington, as they propose to do next Wednesday afternoon, the President and Mrs. Hoover are carrying on a tradition established in the Wilson administration. With an occasional interruption by reason of illness at the White House this garden party has been given annually since then, and it is an event to which the veterans look forward with enthusiasm.

The fete will have special interest this time, as it will mark Mrs. Hoover's resumption of her place as White House hostess after prolonged illness. Presumably, members of the President's official family, the Gray Ladies of Walter Reed and representatives of various veterans' welfare groups will assist, as they have at previous garden parties of this character.

Miss Billie Carmichael, daughter of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Roderick Carmichael, will return to Washington today after making a series of visits at Governors Island and in Norfolk. She will be accompanied by Miss Clara West, of Norfolk, who will be her guest for a few days.

Lieut. and Mrs. Gordon Hall are now established at the Riverside, 2145 C street. Mrs. Hall is the daughter of Col W. B. Ladue, Engineer Commissioner of the District of Columbia, and Mrs. Ladue.

Mr. Albro Parsons is at the Asheville Biltmore in Asheville, N. C.

Senator D. O. Hastings has returned to the Wardman Park Hotel after a trip to Wilmington, Del.

Representative and Mrs. William R. Eaton closed their apartment at the Wardman Park Hotel yesterday and left for their home in Denver, Colo.

Vice Consul Hogan Returns to His Post.

Mr. Leo B. Hogan, American Vice Consul at Rio de Janeiro, will sail this afternoon from New York for his post in South America, making the journey on the S. S. American Legion. Also sailing on the ship will be Mr. Graham H. Kemper, American Consul at Bermuda, and Mrs. Kemper.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gainor have gone to Asheville, N. C., where they are passing some time at the Asheville Biltmore.

Miss Gilmore to Be Wed To R. N. Williams 2d.

Gen. and Mrs. Quincy A. Gilmore, of New York and Rumson, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances West Gilmore, to Mr. Richard Norris Williams 2d, of Philadelphia, noted tennis player. The wedding will take place in New York late this month.

Miss Gilmore attended a private school in Philadelphia, where her family formerly lived, and later was a pupil at the Brearley School in New York. She was presented to society in New York three years ago and is a member of the Junior League.

Miss Huckstead Feted At Bridge and Shower.

Miss Anna Pearl Thomas and Mrs. Thomas J. Quinn entertained on Wednesday evening at a bridge-shower in honor of Miss Erma Jean Huckstead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Huckstead, of Junction City, Kans., whose marriage to Mr. Harold A. Payne, of Warrenton, Va., will take place at the home of the bride in August.

Among those present were Miss Anne Dewees, Miss Emily Clarke, Miss Esther Colvon, Miss Elna Anderson Miss Olive Ford, Miss Jesse Stratton, Miss Georgie M. Gingell, Miss Hilda Neister, Miss Margaret Kane, Mrs. Harold F. Snyder, Mrs. George B. Warren, Mrs. Artie Shoemaker, Mrs. Jerome B. Lawler, jr., and Mrs. James McAllister.

Mr. and Mrs. William Reinhard Bolten, of Lexington place, are spending the month of July at Skyland, Va.

Miss Mary Maroney and Miss Helen Mason are at the Park Central in New York for a few days.

Representative and Mrs. S. Wallace Dempsey sailed Wednesday on the Olympic for Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Atkinson have left for an extended trip to the Pacific Coast and Canadian Rockies.

Mexican Ambassador Is Luncheon Host.

Entertaining in honor of Senor Don Luis Montes de Oca, Minister of Finance of Mexicofi the Mexican Ambassador, Senor Don Manuel Tellez, was host at a luncheon at the embassy yesterday. The Secretary of State, Mr. Henry L. Stimson, was a guest, as were Senator Arthur Capper and Senator Robert M. La Follette. Other guests were the Commissioner of the Mexican-American Claims Commission, Mr. F. K. Nielsen; Comptroller of the Currency, Mr. J. W. Pole; commissioner general of immigration, Mr. Harry E. Hull; agent before the Mexican-American Claims Commission, Mr. C. L. Bouve; chief of Mexican division, Department of State, Mr. Herschel V. Johnson; Assistant Comptroller General, Mr. L. R. Ginn; director general of the Pan-American Union, Dr. Leo S. Rowe; secretary Mexican-American Claims Commission, Mr. B. English; secretary American Roads Builders' Association, Mr. Charles Upham; Commissioner Dr. Fernando Gonzalez Roa, agent before Mexican-American Claims Commission, Senor Bartolome Carbajal y Rosas; director National Railways of Mexico, Senor Javier Sanchez Mejorada; consul general in New York City, Senor Enrique D. Ruiz; vice president Bank of Mexico, Senor Luciano Wiechers; chief of department, Senor Roberta Lopez; assistant director national properties, Senor Gustavo R. Velasco; secretary Mexican-American Claims Commission, Senor Jose Romero; secretary board National Railways of Mexico, Senor Ricardo D. Francisco Aguilar; Third Secretary Mexican Embassy, Senor Fernando Lagarde y Vigil; Capt. Blas Tijerina Cardenas, and Mr. Manuel Echeverria.

The Minister of Hungary, Count Laszlo Szechenyi, has returned to Washington from Newport, where the legation is established for the summer, and will be in town for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Mayo Sojourn in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mayo, who have been spending the early days of their honeymoon at Hot Springs, Va., are in New York for a brief visit before going to Lake Sunapee, N. H., where Mrs. Mayo's parents, the Alien Property Custodian and Mrs. Howard Sutherland, have a cottage for the summer. Before her recent marriage Mrs. Mayo was Miss Katherine Sutherland. Mr. and Mrs. Jules Glaenzer entertained at dinner on Wednesday evening at the Central Park Casino for Mr. and Mrs. Mayo. Mrs. Glaenzer was matron of honor at the wedding of Miss Sutherland and Mr. Mayo.

Mrs. Henry Price Wright has been made chairman of the woman's committee of the Annapolis Roads Club, having been appointed by Mr. Charles Denby, president of the organization.

Mrs. George Akerson, wife of the Secretary to President Hoover, has returned from a motor trip through New England, having gone there primarily to attend the educational conference at Wellesley College. Accompanied by Mrs. John L. Williams, of Elizabeth, N. J., Mrs. Akerson motored to Bar Harbor, Me., also touring Acacia National Park and motoring back through the White Mountains to Atlantic City, where she joined Mrs. Gertrude Bowman, of Washington, for a week's stay.

The sons of Mr. and Mrs. Akerson, George Akerson, jr., and Frederick Akerson, are passing the summer in Colorado, where they are at a boy's camp in the Rocky Mountains.

Mr. Edmund Burke entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton, his guests being the Bolivian Minister, Senor Don Eduardo Diez de Medina; his daughter, Senorita Maria Hortensia de Medina, and Miss Phyllis Hight.

WEATHER CONDITIONS

U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Weather Bureau. Washington, Thursday, July 10—8 p. m.

Forecast—For the District of Columbia and Maryland, generally fair and warmer Friday, followed by local thundershowers Friday night or Saturday; gentle south, shifting to northwest or north winds.

For Virginia, generally fair, with slightly warmer in north portion, Friday; Saturday partly cloudy with local thundershowers; gentle shifting winds.

The disturbance that was central over Maryland Wednesday night is now centered southeast of Massachusetts, Nantucket, 29.76 inches, with a trough extending southwestward to Georgia, Augusta, 29.78 inches. Another disturbance is moving southeastward over the Hudson Bay region to Ontario, Cochrane, 29.68 inches, and pressure remains low from the northern Rocky Mountain region eastward to Wisconsin, Bismarck, N. Dak., 29.68 inches. Pressure is relatively high over Manitoba and off the Pacific Coast, and from Newfoundland eastward and southward over the ocean and over the Greenland-Iceland area. Prince Rupert, British Columbia, 30.16 inches, and Cape Race, Newfoundland, 30.14 inches. Local thundershowers have occurred within the last 24 hours in the North Atlantic States, the northern portion of the Middle Atlantic States, Wisconsin, the Lake Superior region, and at scattered points in the plateau and Rocky Mountain region. Fair weather has prevailed in practically all other sections. The temperature has fallen slightly in the upper Ohio Valley, the Middle Atlantic States, and the Rocky Mountain and northern plateau regions, but the weather continues abnormally warm almost generally east of the Rocky Mountains, except in the Northeastern States, many sections from the Dakotas southeastward to the interior of the South Atlantic and east gulf States reporting maxima of 100° or slightly higher. The following stations report a maximum of 104°: Birmingham and Montgomery, Ala.; Augusta, Ga.; Little Rock, Ark.; Omaha, Nebr.; Sioux City, Iowa, and Huron, S. Dak. No July records were broken, except at Birmingham, Ala.

The indications are for local thundershowers in the lower lake region, northern New York and northern New England Friday, in the Ohio Valley Friday and probably Saturday, and in southern New England and the Middle Atlantic States Friday night or Saturday. Otherwise generally fair weather is probable during the next two days in the Washington forecast district. The temperature will be somewhat higher Friday in the Northeastern States, and the weather will continue warm through Saturday, except possibly along the Canadian border.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

One-sided flared fullness makes it very distinctive. It gives the figure height! It's youthful and wearable in printed batiste.

It's the one-piece type all smart folk are wearing for general daytime occasions.

The scalloped collar carried diagonally across the skirt in trimming band contributes further impression of length.

An interesting thing about it is the partial tied belt. The kimona sleeves repeat the scalloped banding.

Style No. 602 may be had in sizes 16, 18, 20 years; 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust. The medium size takes 3 yards of 39-inch material, with three-quarters of a yard of 35-inch contrasting.

Flowered chiffon cotton voile, polka dotted sheer linen, dimity print, pastel flat washable crepe lend themselves perfectly to this becoming summery model.

Price of pattern, 15 cents. Address Fashion Department, Washington Post, 259 Fifth avenue, New York City.

THE GIRL IN THE AIR - -

BY JULIE ANNE MOORE

CHAPTER XXVII.

The nightmare had passed.

After ages and ages of mental struggle Janet understood that she was in Tolbert's car, that Tolbert was sitting beside her, that Tolbert's arm was about her * * * that her head was resting heavily against him.

Not all in one brilliant flash of intelligence did these facts come to her, but bit by bit as she went back laboriously over the time that had elapsed since she had left Tolbert to go to the Frenda house and came at last by a logical process of thought to the present.

She knew that she was in Tolbert's car, though she hadn't any idea how she knew it; she knew that it was Tolbert sitting by her because she heard his voice, low and tender and anxious; there being no one else in the car, she knew that it was Tolbert's arm that encompassed her, and she knew that her head rested upon Tolbert's heaving chest because under the circumstances it seemed the logical place for her head to be.

But where were they? * * * There was only an impenetrable blackness outside the closed glass of the car. * * * What a little fool she was! * * * When she might have been frightened to death, she had kept her head reasonable well, acutely conscious of all that was going on about her. And then, when it was all over and there was no conceivable excuse for doing such a thing, she had grown suddenly cold and weak, and had, as she told herself viciously, "passed out, like a ninny."

Somewhere behind them, she guessed, was that awful house to which she had gone a short time before wholly innocent of what awaited her there. * * * Why hadn't she suspected something? * * * But, then, there was nothing to warn her. Why should she have suspected anything? * * * Leaving Tolbert, she had gone directly to the lonely house. She remembered distinctly how carelessly she had run up the steps and knocked on the door and waited * * * waited * * * and——

"Janet, darling * * * What a beast I was to leave you there alone! If you would only open your eyes and talk to me, sweetheart * * * Don't you know——"

Tolbert's voice had been but a low, unintelligible murmur; but now she heard him distinctly, every word. * * * "Darling" * * * She was positive he had said the word. And * * * "sweetheart" * * * But why? Was he excited? Didn't he know what he was saying? * * *

But there it was again * * * "Janet, my own, please——"

Why? Why? Why? * * * She shut her eyes very, very tight and pretended that she was still unconscious. She wanted to understand it. * * * Tolbert * * * talking as Dick might have done; as Dick had done, but would never do again. * * * But Tolbert was Dick's father, an old man. * * * No, not an old man. She hadn't meant that. But so much older than she. He shouldn't be talking to her like this * * * even if he did think she didn't hear him.

He was talking like a passionate lover; he hadn't any right to talk to her so. He was old enough for her father. Oh, easily. It was absurd to think that he might have fallen in love with her. Of course, it was absurd. Of course—but there had been moments before when she had wondered. Once as they were flying toward New York. Once in this same car as they drove to the field.

Strangely enough she had no inclination to draw away from him, to protest against his intimate phrases. It was all impossible, of course, but he was an adorable old thing. How differently she might have felt if she hadn't known him as Dick's father. And suppose he had fallen in love with her; suppose she, if only in a minute degree, returned his love? What would Dick think of her? What?

Her little jaws set firmly. What did it matter what Dick thought? He had had his opportunity and deliberately and ruthlessly thrown it away. He had brought her almost to the altar, only to throw her aside carelessly, cruelly, for another woman. Melodrama! The heroine relegated to the dump. How she hated him! Suppose his father did offer her the things he had promised and then denied her? Suppose.

Nerves. The reaction to an agonizing experience. She tried to quiet the storm raging in her brain, but the lone tear that had started slipped down her cheek and fell on Tolbert's hand.

"Janet!" She felt the car come to an abrupt stop and raised her head slightly. "Janet, are you all right?"

She looked up at him then and smiled assurance.

Without a word, he put a hand under her chin and put his lips to hers.

She wanted to cry out, to push him away, to be harsh and cruel with him. He shouldn't have kissed her. He knew he shouldn't have kissed her. He was no young lover; he was Dick's father. He——

But she did not resist him. She lay quietly in his arms with her eyes closed and listened to his deep, perturbed breathing. He was in love with her; and somehow she couldn't hurt him. She wanted very much not to hurt him.

"You don't mind, Janet?"

His face was so very close to hers. She opened her eyes for an instant; then closed them again.

She thought he was about to kiss her again; but he did not. He only held her close to him, talking rapidly in a low, hoarse voice. Yes, as she had once heard Dick talk to her.

"I can't keep it to myself any longer, Janet, dear. You don't know how I've wanted to tell you. I don't know when it happened. Years and years ago, it seems now. I've never seen you since but what I've wanted you—wanted you desperately, wondering sometimes if I could go on without you. Are you laughing at me, Janet? Are you saying to yourself that the old fool has completely lost his senses?"

What could she say? Of course, she wasn't laughing, but how would he interpret it if she told him as much? How could she discourage his ardor without hurting him?

And if she did let him think that his eager love had found a response in her own heart?

"Can't you tell me something, darling? . . . Anything. I don't want to take advantage of the fact that you're hardly yourself after . . . whatever occurred at that place . . . But I do want you to know I love you, Janet. Perhaps I shouldn't. Perhaps I ought to be ashamed of myself for telling you. But . . . there it is, sweetheart. It's something beyond my power to control. I love you, and I want you, my darling, but—but say the word and I'll go back into my shell."

"And forget that you ever loved me?" The question was spoken the instant it formed in her mind. She hadn't meant to ask it. She had only wondered in her troubled heart if his love was something that could be put away and forgotten. She wanted it so. Then she could tell him gently, but firmly, that he was . . . so much older than she . . . that he was Dick's father . . . that . . .

"Would you want me to forget that, Janet?"

"I . . . don't . . . know." She had to go through with it now. Perhaps she would think of some way out . . . "You understand, of course, that you've taken me completely by surprise . . .?"

"Of course I do. And I shouldn't have. I know that, too, Janet . . . But what was I to do? I began by telling myself that I was showing unmistakable signs of senility by considering the possibility that a young woman of your good sense could possibly love a man of my age . . . that you would laugh in my face and that I should deserve nothing less . . . I've fought it, darling. I've argued the question from your side, the little that you would gain, the happiness that you might lose by not marrying a man nearer your age . . ."

Janet said curiously, "Marrying—?"

"Yes, Janet . . . Even I haven't the courage to propose a courtship. I love you and I want you. I want you to be my wife, dear . . . If you do love me, even a little, Janet, we can go off quietly to New York, or Boston, or—anywhere; it doesn't matter. And then we can go abroad and stay over there for several months; for a year if you like . . . and when we come back all the gossips will have grown weary of the subject, and——"

"Do you really think I'd care what people said if—if we did, Mr. Tolbert?"

"Good Lord!" Tolbert exclaimed; "even if it's only for tonight, can't you call me something less—less formal? Would you find it a tremendous effort to call me Richard? My friends all do."

It seemed almost like blasphemy. Richard . . . Could she ever say it?

She discovered that she could, and rather easily once the word had formed on her lips.

"Would you understand . . . Richard," she asked presently, "if I reminded you that you haven't asked what took place at Mrs. Frenda's before you came?"

"You mean you want to get away from, the other subject?" he asked quietly.

"I want time to get my thoughts together," she told him quickly. "What would be the use of getting away from such a subject until it was settled? I'm not a coward; but I don't mind telling you I need a few minutes to get over the shock." She sat up slowly, and Tolbert withdrew his arm. "Besides," Janet added; "I should think you'd be interested in what happened at Mrs. Frenda's."

"Certainly I am, Janet. It's simply a matter of comparative interests, and just now only one thing in the world matters. . . . But don't misunderstand me. I shan't go back to the . . . to the subject until you suggest it. . . ." He lit a cigarette and his flushed face was like a painted mask in the glow of the lighter. Let's see, now," he said after a moment; "you left me and went straight to the house. Did you ring?"

"You're a lot of help," Janet told him, smiling; "but they haven't a bell. I knocked half a dozen times. But no one answered. I thought perhaps Mrs. Frenda had gone to the back of the house for something and I decided to wait a minute or two, and then knock again. . . . It was beginning to get spooky out there on that big porch with the dark, quiet woods all round and not another light in sight except the beam from the beacon that swept overhead every little bit. . . . Does the country give you a weird feeling . . . Richard?"

Tolbert nodded, beaming with delight that she had voluntarily called him by his first name. "It does," he said, "when I'm alone. That's how far we are away from nature."

"I suppose so. But it wasn't the country altogether. The quiet in the house was beginning to get on my nerves. I had knocked quite loud at first; but the second time I fairly banged on the door. Then the quiet again. Gosh! I'd have given a lot to see you riding back about then.

"Well, no answer, and me getting more timid every second. Then—my heart almost stopped beating—the light in the front room went out. Mind you, there I was just on the other side of the door and hammering away and no one answering—and then, plick! complete darkness inside.

Tolbert said: "Right then you should have raced for the highway."

"Don't think I didn't want to. But you know what struck me? I don't know why, but something told me Mrs. Frenda was in trouble. . . . I felt it in my bones, if you know what I mean. . . . But you mustn't get the idea that it was courage that caused me to open the door and step into the dark room. I was shaking so hard my knees were bumping. Really. I was scared within an inch of my life.

"Anyway, I pushed the door open and stepped inside cautiously. 'Mrs. Frenda,' I called, hardly above a whisper. I didn't have any voice. She didn't answer. Then I took another step. 'Mrs. Frenda,' I cried again, and that time my voice cracked.

"I lost my nerve then, and started backing up toward the door. All I could think of was getting out of there and running as fast as I could. But when I backed up to the door it was shut. I hadn't closed it when I went in and I hadn't heard it shut. Lord, what a sensation! . . . I slipped my hand down the edge of the door until I felt the knob. The door was locked!

"I wanted to scream, but I couldn't. I couldn't do anything but stand there and shake and pray. How I prayed! . . . And then the light came on. . . .

"Not the room light, but a little spot light, very small, and very bright. The hand that held it was invisible. It might have been swinging in the air by itself for all I could see."

"Janet," Tolbert declared with feeling; "I don't know how your nerves stood it. Talk about your chambers of horror!"

"You don't know the half of it," Janet assured him. . . . "At first the light flashed in my face and blinded me. Then it began to move about the room slowly, slowly, up and down, to one side, then the other. . . . Suddenly it swept over to one corner of the room and stopped, and I saw her . . ."

"Mrs. Frenda?"

Janet nodded. "She was sitting in that straight chair by the table. It took me a second to realize that she was bound to the chair with rope, and that she was gagged. She couldn't see me in the darkness, of course, but she had seen me when the lights had played on me, and her eyes seemed to be straining to tell me to get away as quickly as I could. . . . Unconsciously I started to her; but the spotlight suddenly flashed in my face and I stood still. I knew somehow that it was a warning."

Tolbert suggested: "I think you must have been out of your mind, Janet."

"I wouldn't be surprised. You can get so scared, you know," Janet told him, "that nothing seems to matter much. That was my fix. I was numb with fright. . . . The light started moving again, up and down, left and right . . . I backed up against the wall, not knowing what else to do, and my right hand touched something familiar. It was the telephone. . . . Can you imagine how I felt then?"

"I could kick myself all over Connecticut for letting you go there alone," Tolbert declared contritely.

"Don't talk like that," Janet told him; "it's all over now. . . . What hurt," she resumed after a moment, "was the fact that while I had the telephone in my grasp I couldn't use it. I supposed that the moment I spoke I'd be throttled, or have my throat cut. . . . One thing I could do, though, and did. I took the receiver off the hook and let it hang. Goodness knows what good I thought that'd do then, but at the time I felt I'd accomplished something wonderful."

"But how," Tolbert asked, "did you ever manage to call me?"

"Wait. There was the light swinging around from wall to ceiling, blinding me, and off again on a trip along the ceiling. . . . He was trying to break my nerve. I could see that, and I'd an idea he'd succeed pretty soon if it kept up. . . . Then the beam dropped to the floor, crept slowly up the floor past me and stood still. I saw him then. Oh! . . ."

"That's enough, Janet," Tolbert coaxed. "I saw the rest and I can imagine the little you haven't told."

But Janet hardly heard him. "He was lying on his back, his head turned to one side, and—and—you know. . . . It was just a red line across his throat at first, but gradually I began to understand. And still I hadn't recognized him. It was just a corpse, then; but enough to bring me around to that phone crying the airport number again and again and again. The receiver had been hanging for a full minute then, and I was sure the operator wouldn't be listening, but it was all I could do.

"The light was on me in an instant and coming at me. I don't know how I did it, but somehow I got the strength and I kicked with all my strength. The light shot up to the ceiling, came down with a big noise and was out. That was when I screamed, Richard. I couldn't hold in another second. I was mad with fright. . . . The scream helped, because I realized in an instant that if I didn't shut up and get a move on I'd be murdered that much sooner.

"I had a rough idea where the door to the dining room was and I began to edge toward it. The silence in the living room was deafening. Just every now and then I could hear a soft swish, like the noise a whip makes when you swing it in a circle around your head. . . . The dining room door was open and I eased through it, moving very, very carefully and slowly to avoid the furniture. I got as far away from the living room door as I dared and stood still, glued to the wall. . . . Then something came through the door, and there was the swishing again. I figured this was the finish. I knew I'd never been so close to death before and probably never would be again, and I gritted my teeth and waited.

"Something played on the living room window an instant and with the strangest feeling I ever had in my life, I realized that you were coming. I know now, Richard, how a condemned man feels when he receives a pardon just as they're strapping him in the chair. . . . It was the light from your cars, and it cast a thin glow over the room I was in just in time for me to see a vague shadow dart through the kitchen door."

Tolbert said: "And then we walked in and spoiled the party. . . . I'll never forget how you looked when you stepped into the living room and looked at us, Janet. You were white, but you were magnificent."

"But do you know what I think knocked me out of the picture?" Janet asked suddenly. "It was seeing him."

"But you'd seen him once, hadn't you?"

"He was, I told you, just a corpse, then. But you see I'd had my own idea about who was responsible for all the racket, and when I looked down after you'd come in and saw it was Crell—well, things got dark and I flopped."

"Into my arms, thank heaven," Tolbert whispered.

Leaving Janet at her door, Tolbert said to her: "This mess will start the police all over again, Janet. We'll have little or no opportunity to talk alone for days, I suppose."

Janet held out her hand. "Some time tomorrow," she told him, "I'll expect you to see me alone whether there's an opportunity or not. I'm going to do lots of thinking between now and then; and I'll—I'll tell you yes or no before I sleep tomorrow night."

District Road Aid Stays in Service

J. W. Dare, 48 Years on Job, Continues Despite Retirement Age.

J. W. Dare, assistant construction engineer of the District Highways Department, familiarly known as "Nubby," is to be continued in the District service for two more years despite the fact that he has passed more than 48 years in service of the District and has passed the usual retirement age.

The District Commissioners have approved a recommendation of Capt. Herbert C. Whitehurst, chief engineer of the Highway Department, that Mr. Dare be kept in active service and the recommendation has been sent to the Civil Service Commission for formal approval.

Mr. Dare is 74 years old and has achieved a national reputation because of his ability to lay out gradings of streets and highways. Several years ago he set a precedent when he insisted that the roadway about Iowa Circle be laid at what seems a level. It was the first time such a thing had been done. Another time he proposed and got approved a plan to raise the street level of Washington Circle 2 feet. The result is that every street entering the circle drains away from it, but the grade is so adjusted that traffic entering or leaving the circle seem to pass over level roadway.

Field Marshall Lord Roberts in a speech before the English House of Lords created a sensation when he stated the English army was totally unfit to uphold Great Britain as a world power.

Ten deaths and 40 cases of heat prostrations resulted from a continued heat wave in New York.

Walter "Death Valley" Scott's special train is ahead of its schedule in its attempt to go from San Francisco to Chicago in 48 hours. Scott still remains the man of mystery. Where his money comes from no one knows, but it is believed he has a gold mine out in "Death Valley."

A temperance fanatic dynamited and blew up three saloons at Iola, Kans. The damage was estimated at $100,000.

Twenty-three mutineers, who took part in the recent outbreak at Libau, Russia, were shot to death by a firing squad.

Ten men were found dead in "Death Valley." The meager reports received here say that they died of thirst.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

WHITE FLOUR AND WHOLE WHEAT.

THE battle between the advocates of white flour and of whole wheat flour is waging on a somewhat new front. The millers have always contended that they could not market whole wheat flour as they now market their products. The germ in the flour would become musty and rancid, and the commodity would be infested with insects before the barrel of flour had reached the ultimate consumer.

Furthermore, they say, that milled flour is a good carbohydrate food and that there is no better or cheaper source of energy than the starches and sugars from grains. Present-day opinion accepts both statements as correct. However, they say we must have certain food elements which are found in wheat germs and other grain germs, and a way must be found for the consumer to get this germ in good condition.

One way proposed is for the consumer to provide himself with a simple mill built like a coffee mill, in which he can grind enough whole grain to supply his family need in his own kitchen. Another is to have grocery stores market whole grain flours and meals produced by local mills, to be consumed within a month after grinding. A third, is to mix grain germs in with other ingredients to make a dough to be cooked into a cracker and sold in a package while reasonably fresh.

The growing demand for a germ food is based on the knowledge that vitimins B and E abound in the germs of grain, and the present-day diet is often deficient in these elements. The belief now is that what is called vitimin B is a combination of several elements or qualities. The something which Goldberger called vitamin Pp, that something which protected against pellagra and which also cured it, is now recognized as one of the qualities or parts of vitamin B. Possibly the need of protection against pellagra is the most important reason for eating grain germ. Another quality, or part, is that which protects against beriberi, and also against a lot of neuralgic pains, which are poor relations of beriberi.

The other vitamin found in the germ of grains is called vitamin E. It is this vitamin which promotes child bearing. The people and the animals that get enough of this vitamin tend to have large families, to bring strong babies into the world, and to maintain them in vigor, strength, and health.

REDUCING A TEMPERATURE.

Mrs. M. D. C. writes:

1. Is nitre good for reducing a person's temperature?
2. What is good to do so?
3. Does sitting in the hot sun or getting overheated make one's temperature go up?

REPLY.

1. It has no material effect on temperature although it is a time-honored remedy used for that purpose.
2. Baths are effective. Cold baths are most so, though tepid ones have some effect. There is a line of synthetic drugs for reducing fever that are in extensive use. It is not always advisable to reduce fever without removing the cause.
3. Yes. In sunstroke the temperature is very high.

FOODS TURNING TO ACIDS.

Miss B. writes: What foods, when digested, turn into acid?

REPLY.

Speaking generally, the acid ash foods are those made from grains and the meats. Among the grain foods are: Breads, pastries, and cereals. Among the meat foods are all meats, including fish and eggs. Milk foods are almost on the fence. Some sour vegetables and fruits do not always cross over. Pie plant or rhubarb generally does not. Plums, prunes, cranberries and pineapple sometimes do not.

BUCK ROGERS, 2430 A. D. — Rocket Guns Threaten — By Phil Nowlan and Dick Calkins

KING INJALDO'S ATTITUDE CHANGED WHEN HE FOUND THE TWO MUTINEERS I HAD PUNISHED WERE HIS OWN FUTURE SONS-IN-LAW, TALLAN AND LT. BURK. HE TRIED TO TWIST THINGS AROUND THE WAY HE WANTED THEM.
OF COURSE YOU COULD PUNISH ORDINARY MUTINEERS - BUT THE FUTURE HUSBANDS OF MY DAUGHTERS - THEY ARE NOT —.
THEY ARE NOT YOUR SONS-IN-LAW YET/ AND THEY ARE MEMBERS OF MY CREW. I INSIST ON MY RIGHTS.
COPYRIGHT JOHN F. DILLE CO. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
THINGS WERE COMMENCING TO LOOK BAD WHEN JOE MARTIN SUDDENLY ENTERED AND REPORTED TO ME. BYRON HAS TAKEN THE SHIP ALOFT/ HIS GUNS COMMAND THE CITY.
GOOD/ THAT GIVES US COMMAND OF THE SITUATION/ NOW, KING I'LL TALK TERMS WITH YOU.
KING INJALDO DROVE A MEAN BARGAIN. WE ARGUED FOR HOURS.
YOU MAY DESTROY MY CITY, BUT MY AIRCRAFT WOULD GET YOU WHEREVER YOU TRIED TO LAND. NOW, HERE'S MY LAST OFFER. GIVE TALLAN AND BURK HONORABLE DISCHARGE, AND LEAVE MARS AT ONCE - FOREVER!

BLUEGE HERO WITH BAT IN NATS' 7-2 VICTORY AT BOSTON; ARMOUR AND MAC SMITH SNATCH NATIONAL OPEN LEAD

VETERAN SCOTS BETTER JONES AND COX BY ONE STROKE WITH 70'S IN SENSATIONAL FINISHES

Armour Has Brilliant 33 on Home Nine, Birdie on 18th.

H. Smith, Hagen and Cooper Tied for Fifth With 72's.

noustie Smiths, put on a spectacular series of recoveries and an exhibit of putting that gave him four birdies in five successive holes.

Mac had old man par staggering. He missed a putt by inches for another birdie on the 262-yard seventeenth and then faced the home hole, 402 yards, needing only par 4 for a 69 and the undisputed lead. He caught a trap with his second, came out short and just failed to get his fourth down, taking a 5 that forced him into a tie but gave a remarkable total of 70 to the stylist who tied for the American open crown as far back as 1910, the year his brother, the late Aleck Smith, emerged the winner.

With this melodramatic stuff to top off a sweltering day, the boys mopped their brows, pulled in their belts and prepared for a wide-open continuation of the battle tomorrow, in the second 18 holes, and again in the concluding 36-hole grind Saturday for the greatest golf prize the Jones' Exhibition Brilliant.

Jones, facing as stern a challenge as he ever has had for the crown, was forced out of the spotlight that he shared most of the day with Cox, but he nevertheless served notice that he is strictly "on" his game and prepared to fight it out for the rest of the bunkered battle with the best of them. The great Georgian's 71 represented as fine an exhibition off the tees and through the fairways as he has ever given.

He exhibited no trace of staleness, following his triumphant British invasion, and if his famous putter, Calamity Jane, had been doing its stuff a little more effectively he might very well have shot a 67 or 68 and been sitting out in front position this evening. Only a few inches on at least a half dozen holes stood between Jones and a string of birdies that would have given him the best U. S. open championship score of his career.

Cox, matching strokes with Jones all the way as he shot steadily and at times brilliantly, sustained his reputation for par cracking and established himself in the very front rank of the contending brigade.

H. Smith and Hagen Score 72's.

With a double tie existing for first and third places in the Armour-Smith and Jones-Cox duets, fifth place found another group with par figures, 72 to their credit. This list included the big boy from Missouri, Horton Smith, along with the dangerous Walter Hagen, Light Horse Harry Cooper, John Rogers, of Denver, who also had an incoming 33 to his credit, and George M. Smith, of Chicago, bobbing up unheralded as a threat.

Thus nine of the remaining field of 140 contestants produced par scores or better in spite of the sizzling heat that sapped the endurance of many an entry and despite the hazards of Interlachen.

On their heels, within striking distance, were six rivals with scores of 73 each, including the long-hitting Craig Wood, ten more with totals of 74 each and five with figures of 75. Half the field had 78 or better, indicating it would take double that figure, 156, to get into the select company of 60 low men and ties allowed in the 36-hole finals Saturday.

Johnny Goodman Sensational.

Of the beter known stars, Johnny Farrell, Jim Barnes and Ed Dudley were at 74, along with the youthful Nebraska amateur, Johnny Goodman, of Omaha, who shared some of the most spectacular work of the day with Farrell.

Goodman, out in an amazing 33, three under par, and actually four under perfect figures at the eleventh, cracked wide open to lose six strokes to par in the last seven holes and ruin a great chance to add to the fame he gained by beating Bobby Jones in the national amateur last September at Pebble Beach.

Farrell, with his disastrous 1929 showing in mind, started out with a glaring eight on the first hole, four over par, as the result of two wretched approach attempts and a wind-up of three putts. This might have broken the competitive spirit of any one

Houghton, With 78, Tops 3 Washington Pros in Open

Capital's Hopes Dim, With 79 by Shorey, 82 by Thorn.

Special to The Washington Post.

INTERLACHEN COUNTRY CLUB, Minneapolis, Minn., July 10.—Although far back of the pace set by the leaders who toiled over the hilly Interlachen course under a blazing sun, two of the three Washington professionals competing for the national open championship today remained possible finalists as the first eighteen holes of play ended.

Al Houghton, competing unattached, with 38—40—78 was the better of the two. Mel Shorey, of East Potomac Park, was a stroke behind him with a 39—40—79. A. B. Thorn, of the Woodmont Club, ran into enough early difficulties to take a 42 on his first nine holes, and although he shot the same 40 on the last nine as Houghton and Shorey, his early mistakes boosted his total to 42—40—82.

The sixty low scorers at the end of tomorrow's round, which will mark the halfway point in the 72-hole route, will qualify for the 36-hole championship competition which opens on Saturday.

Must Shoot in Low Seventies Today.

With scores in the middle seventies very plentiful, Houghton and Shorey have a fair chance to break into the list of qualifiers by shooting in the low seventies tomorrow, but it is not likely that Thorn can trim his card low enough to get over the qualifying hurdle.

Houghton was away to a very poor start in his round today, taking an extra stroke on the long first hole, and another on the third after he had made the second in par 4. A six on the long par 5 fifth lifted his total again, but he braced remarkably to play the next four holes in even par, and then got a long straight drive, was on the green and close to the cup in three strokes, and was down with a single putt for a birdie 4 on the 485-yard ninth that put him only two strokes over par as he started on his second nine holes.

Falters at Start Of Inward Nine.

He lost another stroke on the tenth, took a par 5 on the 484-yard eleventh and went a stroke too high to take a six on the 530-yard twelfth, the longest hole on the course. An extra stroke on the fourteenth and another on the sixteenth raised his total to 78.

Shorey started in much more promising fashion, playing the first two holes in par 4s, taking an extra stroke for a 4 on the third and then dropped enough up to the eighth to put him four above par. Just as Houghton had done, however, he clipped off a stroke by getting a birdie 4 on the long ninth.

His first mishap coming in was a six on the par 5 twelfth, and after two par holes in a row he took another six on the par 4 fifteenth. A 4 on the short seventeenth, when his iron shot off the tee failed to find the green cost him the final stroke of his round.

Thorn was unable to get down to

KELLY GIVEN RELEASE BY REDS

First Baseman, Long Star in Majors, Without Job.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, July 10 (A.P.).—George Kelly, first baseman of the Cincinnati Reds for the last three years, was released unconditionally today by Manager Dan Howley.

"Long George," as he was known to the fans, will be supplanted at first by Joe Stripp, who has been playing third, and Tony Cuccinello, recruit third baseman obtained last winter from Columbus in the American Association, will hold down the hot corner, Howley said.

Kelly was born in San Francisco on September 10, 1895. He joined the New York Giants in 1915 and went to the Pittsburgh Nationals in 1917 on a waiver loan. He soon was sent to Rochester in the International League, but rejoined the Giants in 1919 and remained with John McGraw until 1927. He had a major league lifetime batting average of about .297.

Kelly probably will return to the Pacific Coast, where he indicated he may join a Coast League team.

U. S. Davis Cup Team Practices in France

Paris, July 10 (A.P.).—America's Davis Cup tennis players got their first real practice in France today on the courts of the Roland Garros Stadium at Auteuil, where the challenge round will be played.

All took it rather easily except George Lott, who played three fast sets with Karel Kozeluh, Czechoslovakian professional. Kozeluh is coaching the team members.

With the exception of John Van Ryn, whose shoulder seemed a bit tender from a strain suffered at Wimbledon, the men were in perfect shape, but Capt. Fitz-Eugene Dixon did not want them to make their first day too strenuous.

Dixon has received no word as yet of any change in Bill Tilden's status, but said the actual team selections would not be made in any event until after the European zone finals between Japan and Italy at Genoa, commencing tomorrow. Intensive training will begin here tomorrow.

Hornsby Will Report To Cubs on July 16

St. Louis, July 10 (A.P.).—Under instructions from his physician, Rogers Hornsby, slugging Chicago second baseman, who suffered a broken ankle Decoration Day, plans to report to the Cubs July 16 to start working out, he said today. Hornsby, at his home here, branded as absolutely false reports that he would be out for good. He said he expects to be back in the Cubs' line-up in about three weeks.

Shamrock V to Shun Friday Sailing Date

Belfast, Northern Ireland, July 10 (A.P.).—There will be no sailing of Sir Thomas Lipton's fifth America's Cup challenger, Shamrock V, on Friday.

If the yacht has not been made ready to sail for the United States next Thursday she will sail on Saturday, it was made known today, when members of the crew voiced their prejudice against starting a voyage on Friday.

The Shamrock V will cross the ocean under a yawl rig, convoyed by the Lipton steam yacht Erin, on which will travel R. A. Barbour, secretary of the Ulster Yacht Club, and Col. Duncan Neill. The Erin will coal at the Azores.

Sir Thomas Lipton will sail July 26 on the Berengaria and Col. Sharman Crawford, who will represent the Reuter Agency on the defender, will travel to America on the steamship Scythia, sailing the same day.

Mother and Daughter Play for W. Va. Title

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., July 10 (A.P.).—Mother and daughter will play for the women's golf championship of West Virginia tomorrow. Miss Fritzi Stifel, nationally known in tournament play, and her mother, Mrs. E. W. Stifel, of Wheeling, will meet in the final, having disposed of their opponents in the semifinals today.

3-HIT GAME PITCHED BY EARNSHAW

Mack Right-Hander Subdues Yankees, and Wins, 9-1.

NEW YORK, July 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—George Earnshaw, one of baseball's men of wealth—he is reputed to have more dough than Babe Ruth—attended to the case of the New York Yankees in a very workmanlike manner today. They had taken the lead on the Athletics, Earnshaw's team, in the series at the Stadium, two games to one, and it was a matter of concern to Manager Connie Mack as to whether he could keep pace with the Washington Senators.

So Earnshaw, who was born with a gold spoon in his mouth, was chosen above Bob Grove, the alleged "fire ball" left-hander, to subdue the Yanks. Earnshaw did it in a most convicing manner. He showed a wealth of speed, a profusion of curves and he was rich in strategy, so that the Yanks could make no headway at all against him.

Error by Haas Brings Run.

The final score was 9 to 1. The Yankees got a run in the ninth on an error by Haas, the A's center fielder. Three hits were all that could be shown against large George, and two of these might be labeled lucky. The error by Haas was all that saved the Yanks from their third whitewash in a week's play. They fell before Sam Jones and George Walberg recently.

The Yanks used up three pitchers. Herb Pennock attempted to keep Earnshaw's dizzy pace, but he was bunted out of the game early—in the third inning, when the Mackmen scored four runs. Owen Carroll and Ken Holloway came along here, Carroll giving his usual grist of runs. Holloway was the best of the lot, but two star-spangled catches by Harry Rice in center saved him a lot of trouble. He robbed Simmons of a three-bagger by a juggling capture, after a hard run in the seventh, and on the next play took Foxx's short fly at his shoe tops.

Yanks' Offense Lacking.

As to the Yank's offense, there was none. With Earnshaw throwing with precision there couldn't be. Cooke was passed in the second and stole, but Dickey lined to McNair—a blistering drive. After Combs hit in the third, Lary walked, but Gehrig fanned. Combs walked again in the sixth, this time to open the frame, but again Lary, Gehrig and Lazzeri were helpless.

It wasn't until the ninth that the Yanks got to the plate, and then a flaw in the Mack defense gave them the opening. Lary singled for the second hit off Earnshaw and went to third when Haas let the ball get away, Gehrig's Texas leaguer scored him. Lazzeri hit to Earnshaw, who threw into center field, and Gehrig reached third; but then Earnshaw settled and retired Rice, Cooke and Dickey in order.

Weetamoe Wins Again In U. S. Yacht Finals

Newport, R. I., July 10 (A.P.).—In the closest race since the start of competition for the honor of defending America's cup, Enterprise beat Yankee today and Weetamoe won from Whirlwind by the narrowest of margins.

It was Weetamoe's fourth straight victory. Enterprise, in the opening match of the day, scored her second victory of the series by finishing 34 seconds ahead of the Boston boat. Harold S. Vanderbilt was at the wheel of the Enterprise and Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, sailed Yankee.

Yankee was surging along bow to bow with the Aldrich-Vanderbilt boat on the last leg of the 30-mile triangle course when a long rent appeared in the Boston boat's big jib. Yankee lost the race during the next few minutes, for the time she lost getting in the torn canvas and sending up new head sails was far more than the narrow margin by which she was beaten. It was an exciting finish, but a heart-breaking one for Charles Adams and the others aboard the Yankee.

THIRD BASEMAN DRIVES 4 RUNS IN WITH HOMER AND 2 DOUBLES; HADLEY STEADIES, GIVES 7 HITS

In the Wake of the Game

Special to The Washington Post.

FENWAY PARK, Boston, July 10. Both lead-off men opened for their respective teams with clean singles and both scored, Myer poling one to left and Oliver driving one to right.

Joe Cronin pulled an exceptional play in vain in the Soxs' first, when he took the return peg following Todt's triple and made a wheeling throw from deep center directly to Bluege, the ball being only a whisker late.

Hadley helped himself out of a hole in the first when, with the aisles packed with Red Sox and only one down, he raced over toward the third base foul line to grab Miller's topped roller with his gloved hand, following through with a toss to Spencer to make a killing at the plate.

Hadley was much too generous with his passes. He walked both Webb and Regan to fill the bases with one gone in the first and his frank to Miller also packed the runways in the third.

Spencer came through with a good catch in round three when, with three Sox on, Myer made a poor peg home on Rhyne's grounder. The Nat catcher caught the ball on the halfhop with his foot on the home plate. This was the second alien nipped at the registering station at this early stage of the proceedings.

Miller made a brilliant stop and throw of Harris' hard-hit roller in the fourth.

MacFayden did not issue a pass until two Nats were dead in the fourth. Then West watched four wide ones pass him and Bluege poled out his homer over the left-field garden wall.

Cronin went over the foul-line behind Bluege to make a pretty grab of MacFayden's foul in the fourth. Rice ended the round with a fine one-hand catch of Miller's drive.

MacFayden struck out Cronin, Harris and Judge in rapid order in the Nats' sixth. It was the second time the Nats' captain had hit nothing but the ozone.

West hit one on the nose opening the seventh, but Webb was after it at the crack of the bat and just managed to snare the liner close to the stands in right.

Cronin made a fine try for Oliver's liner in the seventh, just managing to reach it with the end of his glove after a high jump for it.

West chased all the way back to the fence in deepest center to grab Todt's liner ending the seventh.

After Rice had walked in the eighth, the Sox ended the round with their second twin-murder of the game.

Myer turned in a nice stop opening the home eighth. He had to go back and over toward first to take Scarritt's low liner on the first hop.

GALLANT FOX LIKELY 2-5 CHOICE FOR $80,000 RACE

Star Checked By Sande in Workout

Muddy Track Would Boost Chances of Several Horses.

Ned O. Gains Backers by Clever Victory Yesterday.

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY.

CHICAGO, July 10 (A.P.).—Gallant Fox, the superhorse of the year, probably will go to the post a 2-to-5 favorite in the $80,000 Arlington Classic at a mile and a quarter to be decided at Arlington Park Saturday afternoon.

This was the guess today, after the Fox, already proclaimed the 3-year-old champion, because of his five successive victories in rich stake events in the last 60 days, went through his final training gallop. The Fox, with Earl Sande up, did a slow gallop twice around the mile-and-an-eighth track, which was a trifle heavy due to a drizzling shower. He will be sent through an exercise dash of 3 furlongs tomorrow, in the nature of a tightening-up sprint.

In today's workout, Sande at no time allowed the great thoroughbred to have his head, but stood upright in the stirrups, and permitted Gallant Fox to bob along at a canter. The marvelous 3-year-old appeared to be as sharp as steel, and ready for the richest 3-year-old event of the season.

Fox Has Not Run in Mud This Year.

Gallant Fox has not run this year on a muddy or heavy track, but won both the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes on a slow track. His handlers naturally want fast going, but say that no track conditions will stop him Saturday. A heavy, muddy track might make considerable difference in the number of starters in the Classic, but the prospects tonight were that the field would number ten, including two fillies.

Gallant Knight, winner of two derby stakes this year, and second in two more, rules second choice to Gallant Fox. Gallant Knight will have a three-pound advantage, packing 123 pounds to the top weight of 126 pounds shouldered by Gallant Fox. These two horses ran one-two in the Kentucky Derby at equal weights—126 pounds.

Snowflake, the speedy filly owned by Walter J. Salmon, of New York, will not start if the track is other than fast. She demonstrated in the Arlington Oaks last Saturday that she shudders every time she steps on a wet track and can not do her best unless the racing strip is fast. She was beaten by that speedy Kentucky filly, Alicibiades, which looms up as a dangerous threat in the classic.

Kentucky Group Hopes for Rain.

While the Easterners are predicting that the classic will be only a parade with Gallant Fox and Sande in the lead every step of the way, the "hard boots" of Kentucky, are praying for rain. They figure Alicibiades will certainly have a chance if the track is muddy. She is getting in the race with 118 pounds along with Snowflake, and the Harry Payne Whitney filly Dustemall.

High Foot and NO appear to be certain starters, and it is probable that Swinfield, Caruso and Black Majesty will go to the post. Black Majesty, however, favors a heavy track and may not start if the going is fast. Among other eligibles with a possible chance to start are Uncle Luther, also a mudder; Plucky Play, Dark Sea, Sidney Grant, Breezing Thru, Gala, day, another Kentucky filly, and Maya.

The greatest crowd that has witnessed a race in Chicago since the revival of the sport four years ago will turn out for the classic. A throng of 50,000 or larger is anticipated if the day is fair.

Trainer "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons arrived today to handle Gallant Fox. Owner William Woodward, New York banker, will bring a party of friends to see his pride and joy run.

Three prominent eligibles for the classic hooked up today in a trial race, the Wilmette Purse. Ned O., High Foot and Swinfield finished in that order in a 7-furlong dash over a slow track.

Ned O., usually a slow beginner and a horse that was supposed to need a route beyond a mile, sprang a surprise by always being close up and after whipping High Foot on the far turn he came to the front to win by two and a half lengths.

Boots and Saddle's

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Arlington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE Admiral Richard Byrd Handicap, $2,000 added, features the Arlington Park card of eight races today, the management desiring to be prompt in honoring the explorer, and to possibly improve the breed of dogs for sleds in the polar regions. That is to say, that the handicap has not attracted the best horses. Stars and Bars is the best of the small field, and Islam also is a fair sort, but the others do not measure up. Mrs. Payne Whitney's horse, Stars and Bars, appears to be a kind of standout, with Islam the contender. Fair Ball should be close enough to the leaders to get third money. All can go in the slop.

FIRST RACE—The New York horse, SQARER, should beat the large field of 2-year-olds in the first race. TRYOR has been prominent through the Chicago season, and is a beaten favorite, and should be a keen contender. DRYDOCK is the pick of the others for third money. WATER PORT and DORIS JEAN are other good ones.

SECOND RACE—The Blue Ridge claiming steeplechase $2,000 added, is the best jumping race so far offered. AUTUMN BELLS should repeat he is topweight with 153 pounds. BROWN STOUT, beaten in his last start, may improve, and should be second any way, and is coupled with ASTRONOMY which was third in his last start. BOLD KNIGHT, twice a winner in New York, will at least be third, that is, if Lambert rides him.

THIRD RACE—The Rancocas entry of CHARMER and HYMAN is selected to win the third race, an allowance affair for 2-year-olds. CHARMER is the better of the entry. UPRIGHT will be a dangerous contender, and won last time out. DON ALVERADO is the best prospect for third.

FOURTH RACE—Maiden 3-year-olds and upward go in the fourth race. CAESARION is better than his races show and should beat this field with ease. TAYSTEE looks like the contender, and won last out. LAWYER, very ordinary, is tabbed for third. CAESARION, from the W. R. Coe Stable, is in top form and ran well in the East.

SIXTH RACE—SCOTLAND is liked in the sixth race. The mud and the distance suit. THE TARTAR is one to beat and if he is right he is exceptionally good in the mud. GOVERNOR PRATT is outclassed, but may figure in the race, probably third.

SEVENTH RACE—PAGAN LADDIE, not only a superior mudder but good on no other kind of track, looks like the natural favorite in the seventh race, which has a very large field. MEDLEY may be the contender. These two are top weights. BLEWAWAY should be next best, and is in light.

EIGHTH RACE — CLOVER CLUB has the best chance in the eighth race, with QUIBBLER the contender. SUNNY SAINT may be better than his recent races has shown. He has been a disappointment so far, but at one time was highly rated.

Cheshire and Garrity Suspended at Arlington

Chicago, July 10 (A.P.).—Jockeys V. Cheshire and P. Garrity will do no more riding at Arlington Park this summer. Both yesterday were suspended for the remainder of the meeting, Cheshire for an unsatisfactory ride on Juggler in the third race, and Garrity for an incompetent ride on Brown Wisdom in the fourth.

JOSEPHINE D., away fast, raced into strong lead and, displaying the most speed, made her own pace and won as rider pleased. ENTICE, always in closest pursuit of leader, drew out from remainder of field and kept her position safe, but could not threaten winner. ROSE VOLT was a close-up factor on the outside from the start, raced OUR PET into submission and closed well. SEGURO, badly outrun to the stretch, closed a gap and finished fast. MODERN MAIDEN tired.

EVADER	137	2	5	Lost rider							Harraway	†

† J. J. Nesbitt entry.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAIR CLASS, $8.64, $5.24, 2.68; BALLY WEAVER, $18.36, $4.20; VALOROUS, $2.46.

FAIR CLASS raced under restraint to final turn of field, always jumped well and command fast in mid stretch. BALLY WEAVER, in the stretch run and outfinished him in the final twenty yards. BALLY WEAVER challenged VALOROUS went to front when over the seventh obstacle, opened up a good lead and maintained it until over the final obstacle, but failed to withstand the winner in final issue. VALOROUS had command when he slipped at the seventh obstacle. He went to his knees and down on hind quarters, then recovered after a breathing spell, came fast in the last quarter to take third place. LADY GUINEVERE tired. EVADER lost rider.

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $1,500; allowances. For 2-year-olds, fillies. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:17. Off at 3:19. Winner, H. P. Whitney's b. f. (2), by Whiskbroom II—Panasina. Trained by T. J. Healey. Value to winner, $1,050; second, $300; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23, 0:47, 1:00.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PANASETTE, $3.34, $2.94, $2.30; GLADELIA, $3.96, $2.80; AUNT DEB, $2.72.

PANASETTE began somewhat slowly, but quickly rushed into contention on outside in first eighth, displayed high speed, proved much superior to her company, increased advantage steadily to win as rider pleased. GLADELIA broke fast and had speed throughout, disposed of AUNT DEB at far turn and, racing in closest pursuit of the winner thereafter, kept her position safe. AUNT DEB had her usual early speed, raced with Gladelia and held second place the final drive. CALA, outpaced for the first half mile, closed going fast. IN BETWEEN had no mishaps.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,600; allowances. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:45. Off at 3:46. Winner, G. W. Foreman's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—NED O., $7.78, $3.10, $2.20; HIGH FOOT, $3.10, $2.16; SWINFIELD, $2.22.

NED O., benefitted by a change in riders and with blinkers added, had a hustling ride, was fast from the start in close pursuit of HIGH FOOT, forced the pace and, heading the latter entering the stretch, easily drew away in the stretch. HIGH FOOT had speed and set the early pace, but could not withstand the winner. SWINFIELD, held to race wide on the outside throughout, losing much ground, outfinished FORTUNATE YOUTH, but was tiring at the end. FORTUNATE YOUTH was ridden all over the track and showed a good effort on his own courage. CAMP BOSS quit early.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $2,000. The Glenco Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:13. Off at 4:13. Winner, W. G. and E. W. Reicher's ch. h. (5), by Port Drapeau—Sceptre and Staff. Trained by J. Carter. Value to winner, $1,400; second, $350; third, $150; fourth, $75. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:46 4-5, 1:13 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MY DANDY, $11.64, $4.02, $3.06; VICTORIAN, $2.68, $2.60; BEAMING OVER, $3.44.

MY DANDY broke into the air, but strongly handled, quickly settled into his stride and, setting a fast pace, raced on the outside of ANGRY, losing ground, but finally taking command after long submission, drew out after reaching the final furlong and held VICTORIAN safe. The latter began slowly, was outrun to the stretch, then closed fast in the middle of the course under a strong hand ride, easily besting the remainder. BEAMING OVER saved ground wherever possible and staging a strong bid in the final sixteenth, outgamed ANGRY. ANGRY, favored by a light impost, forced the pace strongly to the final eighth before tiring.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,800. The North Chicago. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:40. Off at 4:40. Winner, E. P. Headley's ch. g. (5), by Hollister—Pigeon Pie. Trained by W. W. Taylor. Value to winner, $1,300; second, $300; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23 4-5, 0:47, 1:14, 1:38.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PIGEON HOLE, $5.62, $3.42, $2.52; JOCK, $4.14, $3.26; HAT BROOM, $2.94.

PIGEON HOLE went in his best form, made all his own pace and was restrained to stretch turn, then drew away to win as rider pleased. JOCK raced LIVE OAK into defeat, reached contention in closest pursuit of the winner, but could not threaten him. HAT BROOM raced restrained to stretch turn, got through on inside, closed well and made a game finish. HOT TODDY was on the outside and tired. LIVE OAK was used up forcing the pace in the early stages and stopped badly.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,500. The Poplar Grove. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good for all but Upsedaisy. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:06½. Off at 5:07. Winner, Serenato Farm's br. c. (3), by Morvich—Snuff. Trained by L. C. Veach. Value to winner, $1,050; second, $250; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:48 1-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:40 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MORSNUFF, $27.86, $12.06, $6.22; FLYING EXPRESS, $6.06, $3.78, HERENDEEN, $3.32.

MORSNUFF, going suddenly improved and showing a liking for the going, raced close up on inside under restraint to the far turn and, then coming fast on outside entering stretch, went into lead and drew away to win in a canter. FLYING EXPRESS, a close-up factor, held on strongly in the final quarter and kept HERENDEEN safe at end. HERENDEEN began slowly and was badly outpaced first half, closed strongly through final quarter. LEYLAND was gaining gradually. EASTER BOY had early speed, but tired in stretch run.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:35. Off at 5:36. Winner, G. W. Ogle's b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MOROCCO, $9.04, $5.22, $4.30; SEARINGTON, $15.02, $8.30; GENIAL HOST, $5.06.

MOROCCO, never far off the pace, followed leaders closely until around final turn and then coming fast with strong challenge entering the stretch, headed DUELIST into the van and, holding on well in long drive, just outlasted SEARINGTON. SEARINGTON was kept right at the leader throughout, disposed of DUELIST entering stretch, outrun early, came from well back of leaders in final quarter and outfinished RUANE. RUANE, never far off of it, tired badly in final drive. DUELIST showed early speed, but was done in the stretch.

CONSIDINE-MANGAN DEFEND DOUBLES TITLE TODAY

Pair to Meet Gill-Smith In Finals

Title Defenders Beat Van Vliet-Finley by 6-3 and 7-5.

Howard-Farrin Bow to Older Navy Duo, 6-1, 6-3.

By JACK ESPEY.

THE District of Columbia tennis doubles championship will be decided this afternoon on the courts of the Edgemoor Club with the defending champions, Bob Considine and Tom Mangan, meeting the Navy Leech Cup pair, Commander C. C. Gill and Lieut. G. S. Smith, starting at 4 o'clock.

In the semifinals yesterday Considine and Mangan eliminated the Army champions, Majs Robert C. Van Vliet, jr., and Thomas D. Finley, 6—3, 7—5, and Gill and Smith defeated Ensigns Bill Howard and Jimmy Farrin, 6—1, 6—3.

These results failed to fulfill predictions. Considine and Mangan had been expected to win more easily than they did, while Gill and Smith had been rated almost easy pickings for the youthful ensigns, who previously had conquered the second seeded team of Dooly Mitchell and Billy Jacobs.

Van Vliet and Finley, twice winners of the Army doubles title, staged a pulsating rally in the second set to pull from a 2—5 count to a deadlock. But the tseadier play of Considine and Mangan was asserted with telling effect in the eleventh and twelfth games, thus bringing the match to a close in two sets.

Howard Farrin Outclassed.

Commander Gill and Lieut. Smith knocked the dope for a row. Howard and Farrin were completely outclassed. Gill's twisting service and Smith's smashes a la Babe Ruth literally ran their foes ragged before they knew what it was about. Not until the seventh game was reached in the second set, did the favorites find themselves, but it was then too late to offset the damage already suffered.

With Mangan driving in rare form and Considine operating effectively at the net, Van Vliet and Finley were handily disposed of in the first set. Unsteadiness marked the play of the Army champions and numerous errors contributed points to the ultimate winners.

This situation was unchanged during the first four games of the second set which developed a lead of 3—1 for Considine and Mangan. Here, however, both Van Vliet and Finley aroused themselves and opened a rally that lasted for the next six games.

In the fifth Considine dropped his service as Finley went on a rampage at the net, while the sixth and seventh saw a continuation of fine work by Finley, although the games were won by Considine-Mangan after two deuces. The eighth game brought the best showing of the Army pair as they ran through for 4 points in succession and, heartened by this success, they broke through to win the ninth.

Finley's Serving Ties Set.

When Finley, aided by Van Vliet's placements, took the tenth game on his services to create a 5—5 tie, it began to look as if the match might extend to three sets. But the title holders were not to be denied any longer, which they speedily proved by grabbing the next two games.

Gill and Smith yielded only 4 points in running up a 5—0 lead in games against Howard and Farrin in the first set. The younger duo appeared to be handcuffed by the power of their opponents. However, in the sixth game Howard's service stemmed the rout momentarily.

Leading by 5—2 in the second set, Gill and Smith went to match point on the former's service, but with the deciding point in his grasp, Smith pounded the ball outside. Then followed a Howard-Farrin rally that netted this game. This only prolonged the set, for Howard couldn't control his serving in the next and final game.

The singles final match will be held tomorrow, starting at 4 p. m. Preceding both today's and tomorrow's contests, there will be exhibitions featuring prominent local players.

Yonkers Canoe Club May Compete Here

The possibility that the Yonkers Canoe Club, of Yonkers, N. Y., will be among the entrants in the Washington Canoe Club's Canoe Regatta tomorrow afternoon on the Potomac River has forced paddlers of the host club to work overtime during the last few days.

Although the Washington Canoe Club has captured first place in its own annual event for the last ten years, the Yonkers combination came within an ace of walking off with the honors last year, and the local team is leaving no stone unturned in an effort to be prepared for the hardest kind of a fight tomorrow.

At present five other clubs have entered teams in tomorrow's events, three of them from outside of the city. In addition to the Potomac Boat and the Old Dominion Clubs, the Cacawa Club, of Tacony, Pa.; the Philadelphia Canoe Club, and the Young Men's Association, of Bristol, Pa., will compete tomorrow. A team from the Tuscarora Club, of Bellville, N. J., may also send a team south.

The regatta will mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Washington Canoe Club and will start at 2 p. m. All races will be half-mile in length, with the finish line in front of the club.

N. CAROLINA NINE SEEKS FOE.

A North Carolina nine, composed of college players boasting a record of 17 victories in 20 games, is desirous of booking some strong local team. Write L. D. Honeycutt, manager, Raleigh Independent Ball Club, Raleigh, N. C.

CLAIM PLAYGROUND TITLE.

The Happy Hollow Unlimited Nine has claimed the playground championship of the city. Playground teams interested in challenging this team should call Coach Joe Mitchell at the Happy Hollow Playground.

Coming in he lost a single stroke on each of four holes, largely through inaccuracy on his approach shots, to take the 40 that brought his mark to 82.

Finley's Serving Ties Set.

When Finley, aided by Van Vliet's placements, took the tenth game on his services to create a 5—5 tie, it began to look as if the match might extend to three sets. But the title holders were not to be denied any longer, which they speedily proved by grabbing the next two games.

Gill and Smith yielded only 4 points in running up a 5—0 lead in games against Howard and Farrin in the first set. The younger duo appeared to be handcuffed by the power of their opponents. However, in the sixth game Howard's service stemmed the rout momentarily.

Leading by 5—2 in the second set, Gill and Smith went to match point on the former's service, but with the deciding point in his grasp, Smith pounded the ball outside. Then followed a Howard-Farrin rally that netted this game. This only prolonged the set, for Howard couldn't control his serving in the next and final game.

The singles final match will be held tomorrow, starting at 4 p. m. Preceding both today's and tomorrow's contests, there will be exhibitions featuring prominent local players.

Derby Runner Sues Pyle For 4th Place Money

New York, July 10 ((A.P.).—Samuel Richman, one of the cross-continent canters in C. C. Pyle's bunion derby of 1929, complained to the district attorney today that the promoter owes him $3,500.

The money, he said, represented what Pyle said would be fourth prize in the New York-Los Angeles run.

Richman started walking back to New York last November 7 from Los Angeles. He slept in jails, box cars and garages and stopped for a few days in Indianapolis to give an exhibition which earned him $400.

Along the way he collected photostatic copies of checks given to Pyle by chambers of commerce through whose cities the bunion derbyists ran. These he presented to authorities here today.

Assistant District Attorney McAuliffe said he would subpena Pyle, said to be in Los Angeles, to come to New York and tell his side of the bunion derby saga. Richman is 28 and was a salesman before he went in for long-distance loping.

Bill Werber Displaces Dunn as Albany Regular

The release of Bill Werber by the Yankees to the Albany Club of the Eastern League on option of recall proved sad news last week to Johnny Dunn, former Georgetown University shortstop, who had held down a regular berth with the team following his graduation at the Hilltop last month.

Werber, former Tech High School and Duke University star, immediately displaced Dunn at shortstop after appearing for a few games in the Yankee line-up during the absence of the injured Lyn Lary. Werber has hit sensationally in his first week with the Albany team, making 10 hits in 20 times at bat for an average of .500.

Richard (Red) Smith, Georgetown baseball coach, is catching for Albany and is the club's regular catcher.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

ALEXANDRIA, Va., July 10.—The Belle Haven Country Club women golfers will play their first match of the season tomorrow afternoon when they travel to Winchester, Va., to play the Winchester Country Club women golfers. Eight ladies from the local club will journey to the valley city tomorrow afternoon headed by Mrs. Robert Wheat, captain of the local club.

The team will line up as follows: Mrs. J. C. Howard, Mrs. Robert Wheat, Mrs. T. E. Seberell, Mrs. G. L. Boothe 2d, Mrs. R. A. Dawes, Mrs. L. S. Scott, Miss Margaret Warwick and Mrs. C. J. Robinson.

Tomorrow afternoon the Scholastic Juniors and the Potomac Juniors will play the deciding game in a fight to represent this city in the American Legion State championship to be held in Richmond on July 20. These two teams have battled once with the Scholastics coming out on top, while if they lose tomorrow the third game will have to be played.

The Belle Haven Country Club golfers will face the biggest test of the season this Saturday afternoon when they travel to Martinsburg, W. Va., to play Winchester over the Martinsburg course. Alexandria is now leading the Tri-State Association by 9½ points, while the winner of the match this week will capture the big cup given each year. This is the final tri-State match that is to be held this season. Purcellville Country Club battles Martinsburg over this home course. Capt. Louis Kane has now picked his team for this event.

One of the most exciting matches ever played over the Belle Haven Country Club course in a number of years was played this afternoon when Mr. C. C. Carlin, jr., defeated Mr. Charlie Rollins, one up in 22 holes. This was the semifinals for the Belle Haven Bowl, given each year. Mr. Carlin, after playing Rollins to a standstill for the eighteen-hole match, sank a long putt for a birdie four on the fourth hole, the only five par hole on the course. While this was going on, Mr. T. E. Seberell had little trouble defeating Herbert Bryant by a score of 7 up and 5 to play. The finals will be played off Sunday morning.

TO HEAR PROTEST.

A protest filed last Sunday by the Woodmen of the World Unlimited Nine against the St. Joseph's A. C. Team's ten-inning victory on the plaza will be heard tonight at a meeting in The Washington Post Building at 8 o'clock. Manager Frank Cinotti of the St. Joseph's Team and Manager Tony Burruto of the Woodmen are requested to attend.

PLAYERS ELIGIBLE.

Players Gordon and Harding, whose eligibility was protested last Sunday before the Hyattsville-Dixie Pig game of the Prince Georges County section of the Capital City League by the latter team, were found to have been signed by the Hyattsville Team prior to June 15, and both are eligible to play in the championship series.

VETERAN SCOTSMEN TAKE LEAD IN OPEN champion in 1928, who set out to achieve one of the great come-backs of the day.

Farrell Shoots Four Birdies in Row.

Despite another bad hole, a six on the fourth, Farrell shot five birdies, including four in a row up to the turn, where he was even with par at 36. Mistakes on two holes of the incoming journey, each costing a stroke, kept Johnny from the rare achievement of equaling par after spotting the old man four strokes at the start.

Don Moe, the young Portland, Oreg., amateur, started brilliantly, but wound up with 35—40—75 and found himself in such choice company as that of Leo Diegel, the P. G. A. champion, who had 37—38—75. Gene Sarazen, Bill Mehlhorn, Jack Burke and Denny Shute, all of whom figured to be well in the running at the outset, wound up with scores of 76 each and in positions where they must do something sensational to get back in the running.

The day's toll of victims, for various reasons, including the weather, numbered such prominent names as Cyril Tolley, the big British amateur; George Von Elm, of Los Angeles, and Chick Evans, of Chicago, two former amateur champions with Chick, also a former open king, and Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston, the present national amateur champion and hometown pride. Tolley, Von Elm and Johnston each scored 80, while Evans carded 81, marking the end of any faint hopes these simon-pure stars entertained at the start.

Even more disastrous was the fate of Jock Hutchison, the good-natured Scotsman who lost all spirit of lightheartedness as he fought his way through a series of troubles. Not even the inspiration of playing with Bobby Jones could help Jock, who took 42 each way for 84, a tragic total for the warrior who was first to bring the British open championship cup to America in 1921.

Divots From the National Open

INTERLACHEN CLUB, Minneapolis, July 10 (A.P.).—Old Man Par in his toughest and roughest days never was so relentless as Old Sol was today. The sun blazed away from the start to finish of the round and the golfers and gallerites alike wilted. Every shady spot on the course was densely populated, and the soft-drink stands, liberally scattered over the course, did a rushing business. It was 96 in the shade and about 102 on the sunny fairways.

When Bobby Jones finished, his necktie was so damp that he jerked out a knife, ripped it open and dashed into the shower.

The golfers had to stop before each shot to wipe their hands and clubs. Some forgot to do so at the start, and they shanked their irons tragically.

Horton Smith was out "gunning" for a friend who warned him to bring an overcoat to the tournament.

"He said it would be cold, and I believed him," he moaned.

Good shots were many today, but no holes in one were registered. Fred B. Morrison, of Monterey Park, Calif., came the closest. His tee shot on the 180-yard third rolled right to the pin, hesitated on the lip and rolled half an inch away.

The gallerylites agreed that the longest driver in the tournament was Jimmy Thompson, of Colorado Springs, Colo., who accompanied Walter Hagen. Thompson whacked tee shots consistently around 300 to 325 yards, but many of them got him into trouble. His best drive came on the 397-yard eighth. He slapped the ball 325 yards there.

The galleries were handled in such efficient style today that only one spectator was struck by a ball. Walter Hagen shot it and the unnatural stop saved him from an almost inextricable rough.

Pickpockets had a field day. Twenty-six gallerylites reported losses. Two South Dakotans, whose names were not revealed, lost between $75 and $100 each.

The best outward round was turned in by the same smiling "kid" who upset the great Jones in the 1929 national amateur—Johnny Goodman, from Omaha. Johnny whizzed out in 33, 3 under par, but broke under the strain to come home with a 41. Johnny has been playing hot golf all season. He has scored better than 70 eleven times on his home course at Lakewood.

"Wiffy" Cox hung up the putting gem of the day. On the 530-yard twelfth he sank a down-hill putt 50 feet from the pin. It gave him a birdie 4.

New York Referees Hear New Instructions on Fouls

Boxing Fathers Rule Fighters Must Lose Round in Which They Strike Low Blow; Referee Made Sole Judge.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, July 10 (A.P.).—The minions of the boxing law marshalled in New York State today for the supreme assault on the foul fighters and foul pretenders who have been grimacing and groveling main bouts into fiascos for the past year or more.

With due solemnity more than a score of the State Athletic Commission's licensed referees gathered in the offices of the fistic fathers to hear the fouls that come through low blows read completely out of boxing. In the future, they were told, there shall be no more of the painful endings that have marred $1,000,000 worth of fights since the epidemic started with Otto Von Porat and Phil Scott in Madison Square Garden in December, 1929.

Other Ways to Be Disqualified.

It will be possible, Commissioner James A. Farley told the arbiters, for a man to be disqualified for butting, kneeing, biting or any of the other time-honored means of evading further combat, but punches below the belt now are merely something to record on a slip of paper and turn into the commission. The gladiator who slugs low must automatically lose that round on the score sheets. If an offender slices out or bounds in three rounds in one fight the commission promised to suspend him anyway.

The 20-odd referees, listening officially for the first time to the new regulations promulgated following Max Schmeling's capture of the heavyweight championship on a foul over Jack Sharkey, nodded sagely as the rules were read and agreed that fouls would never again harass boxing in this State. Some expressed private opinions later, however, that some of the boys, being victims of habit, would find brand-new means of evading the issue when the going got hot.

"We are aiming to eliminate two kinds of fighters from New York rings," the veteran commissioner, 86-year-old William Muldoon, told the referees. "We are after the fellows who fall to the floor and make faces along with those who are behind in a bout and take the chance of evading a beating by dropping in low punches."

Fighters in Agreement Of No Fouls.

At a previous meeting, when the new code was drawn up, the commission decided to incorporate a clause in the fighters' contracts whereby both agreed that the contest could not end in a foul caused by a low blow. Fighters were given unlimited leeway in protecting themselves with defensive apparatus which has the approval of the fathers. Once in the ring they agree or stand or fall on the potency of their arrangements and if they fall—they can expect nothing but a count of ten.

One important change in the rules was revealed. In the future the referee alone can judge whether blows should be marked down as low. He can not call either of the two judges into consultation to aid him in reaching a decision on the validity of a blow.

If such a situation had prevailed prior to Schmeling's duel with Sharkey the result might have been different. Jimmy Crowley, referee that night, admitted that he did not see the finishing blow and called upon the judges for assistance. One, said he saw Schmeling struck low and upon that opinion the German was awarded the heavyweight title.

STOCKS RISE 2 TO 12 POINTS; SALES GAIN

Bear Drive Fails as Leaders Advance for Third Successive Day.

RAILS HEAD MOVEMENT

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—The largest rally of the month lifted stocks 2 to 12 points today in more active trading. Incidentally, it was the third day in succession that the list closed higher, a phenomenon not seen since late in May.

An intensive bear drive just after the irregularly higher opening brought out declines of 1 to 5 points, but the attack was short lived and the advance was soon back in its stride. During the late trading several large blocks of a few popular trading issues changed hands on a rising trend, suggesting that the covering movement had been accelerated by the resistance of the last few days. In this connection, Wall street heard reports that one or two prominent operators were taking the long side of the market. Rumors of a large banking pool, running as high as $100,000,000, were generally discredited.

Bonds continued their encouraging advance. Many financial observers consider the behavior of that market the most important current development, pointing out that a rising bond market normally precedes an upward swing in stocks. Prime railroad liens were strong, a trend that was paralleled by the carrier shares.

Wheat Declines at Close.

Wheat was firm in the early hours, but sold off later on forecasts of rain in the Northwest and bearish estimates of winter wheat. The close was about a cent and a half lower. Corn was irregular, while cotton finished 8 to 26 points higher.

The Government crop report, issued after the close, failed to disclose much of a variation from the forecasts. The winter wheat yield was placed 20,000,000 bushels below last year, as of July 1, and 7,000,000 above the 5-year average. All wheat was estimated at 1,000,000 bushels more than a year ago and 26,000,000 bushels under the average. The estimate on corn placed the crop 180,000,000 bushels over 1929 and about 100,000,000 bushels over the 5-year figure.

The decline of 91,163 tons in U. S. Steel's backlog was about as expected. This cut, reflecting the reduction in specifications during June, brought the unfilled tonnage total to 3,968,-064. In the past 18 months the volume has gone under the 4,000,000-ton mark only twice—in August and September of last year. The present backlog is sufficient to keep the steel corporation operating for some four months at the present ratio, and an improvement in demand is generally anticipated before that time elapses.

The $16,000,000 drop in brokers' loans—it was the fifth successive weekly reduction—brought the total down to $3,203,000,000, or $25,000,000 less than the 1929 low. The comparatively small size of the shrinkage was not regarded as surprising in view of the market's dullness during the past week.

Stock Exchange Borrowings Drop.

Total borrowings of New York Stock Exchange members against stock collateral on July 1 was equal to 5.83 per cent of the market value of listed shares, a decline of 0.50 per cent during June when the quoted value of all listed stocks diminished more than $11,000,000,000.

The morning selling movement coincided with the announcement that a brokerage firm had been suspended for three years for infractions of the trading rules. Air Reduction, Johns-Manville and National Cash Register broke to new lows for the year, while U. S. Steel and American Can yielded a point or two. The underlying firmness of the market leaders, however, discouraged the bear faction and the list moved upward rather promptly under the leadership of the rails, in which some of the largest net gains were shown.

Norfolk & Western closed 12 points higher. Atchison, at 221¾, was up more than 8 on the day and more than 27 points above the year's low, reached about ten days ago. Union Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio and New Haven rallied 5 to 6.

Air Reduction converted a 5-point loss into an advance of nearly 3. Allied Chemical, off more than 4, closed 9 points higher. American Can gained 3 net, U. S. Steel 2⅝, Eastman Kodak and J. I. Case 8, Westinghouse Electric 5, North American and Standard Gas & Electric 4, and Standard Oil of New Jersey, New York Central, Public Service of New Jersey, American Power & Light, Houston Oil, American Telephone, Gillette, American Tobacco B and Du Pont about 3 each. Standard Oil of New Jersey and radio were particularly active and their strength was accompanied by reports that operators frequently identified with the stocks were again working for an advance. Radio rose 1⅜.

Foreign exchanges were firm. The French franc came a shade nearer the gold point.

INVESTMENT BONDS RISE LED BY RAILS

Many Carriers Touch New 1930 Highs as Utility Index Hits Peak.

FOREIGN SECTION ACTIVE

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—The price of investment bonds on the New York Stock Exchange moved upward in brisk fashion today. Railroad Mortgage bonds again provided the leadership for the rise although all sections of the list, with the single exception of United States Governments, profited from the strong demand for fixed interest-bearing securities.

Activity, which has shown a gradual increase each day this week, received another boost and the volume of trading passed $11,000,000.

Railroad bonds found hearty support on the upswing and the competition was so keen that the progress of many issues was recorded in points instead of fractions. The few laggards were principally among the speculative class. A new list of new high prices for 1930 was made and the averages for 10 rails showed the present price level but three-tenths of a point under the high of the year established last March.

Atchison general 4s, one of the most reliable barometers of the trend of bonds, established a new year's high with a ½-point gain and the convertible 4½s soared 4 points. In reaching new high ground Atchison was joined by many other rail issues, among them being St. Paul 4¾s, up 1½; Chicago Northwestern 5s up 3½; Big Four 4½s, Cleveland Union Terminal 4½s, Pennsylvania 4½s which were heavily traded, and Southern Pacific collateral 4s.

The averages showed utilities surpassed the pervious high mark for the year established Monday. American Telephone 5s of 1960 and 1965, Detroit Edison 5s of 1955, Metropolitan Edison 4½s, sold at new tops for the year.

Activity in the foreign bond section increased and European bonds were in especial demand. Italian 7s, German 5½s, and Danish 4½s were extensively accumulated at slightly higher prices. Royal Dutch warrant 4s reached a new high. Sharp gains were made by several issues on thin sales, Berlin City 6½s, Austrian Government 7s, Bolivian 7s, Estonia 7s, Farnkfort City 6½s, and Sao Paulo 8s rising about 1 point. Cordoba City 7s scored 10 points.

The United States Government group, which was the first to reflect the easy money rates, was the dull spot in the market. Liberty first 4¼s was the only traded issue which did not close lower.

A large offering expected soon is an issue of $25,000,000 Canadian and Pacific Railway Co. 30-year 4½ per cent collateral trust bonds.

C. & O. to Split up Common Stock.

(Associated Press.)

A split-up of the common stock shares of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad was allowed yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The railroad will proceed to issue four new shares in exchange for each share of common stock it now has outstanding. The new issue will consist of 7,661,134 common shares with a par value of $25 each.

Broker Loans Drop $16,000,000.

(Associated Press.)

Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ending July 9, were announced by the Federal Reserve Board yesterday as $3,203,000,000, representing a decrease of $16,000,000 as compared with the preceding week.

ACACIA'S BUSINESS TOUCHES NEW PEAK

Insurance in Force Totals $352,000,000; Assets at $36,500,000.

FRAUDS HIT IN ADDRESS

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Another milestone in the development of Acacia Mutual Life Association was passed in June when the total of insurance in force went above the $350,000,000 mark, Acacia's business in force on June 30 aggregating approximately $352,000,000. Total business issued by Acacia for the past six months was approximately $35,500,000, which is in excess of the period in 1929.

Assets of Acacia now are at the highest point in its history. Standing at $33,865,579 January 1, its assets have increased during the first six months of 1930 to a total of $36,500,000, a gain of about $2,600,000. Figures for June include a total of $6,302,102 issued business, $5,211,026 placed and a net gain of $3,179,952.

A unique plan for life insurance men of Washington and vicinity was formed at a meeting of prominent underwriters yesterday when fifteen pledged themselves to become members of a coaching class leading up to the June, 1931, examinations to be offered here by the American College of Life Underwriters.

The class, which will meet every Monday night beginning October 6, at the office of the Mutual Benefit Life, of Newark, N. J., will consist of not to exceed 25 men, including as managers and general agents, David S. Bethune, John F. Cremen, Thomas R. Crowley, Harold D. Krafft, Joseph A. Marr, John L. McElfresh, Paul D. Sleeper and Frank R. Strunk, and as solicitors, J. Hicks Baldwin, Loren L. Cluster, J. Alan Maphis, Frederick T. Munsell and Frank J. Sobotka.

100 Degree Candidates.

A committee, consisting of Paul Sleeper, chairman, educational committee, District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association, J. Alan Maphis and H. Lawrence Choate, C. L. U., was appointed to recommend the study courses for the group. Washington is one of the cities which has taken the lead in connection with the American College, H. Lawrence Choate, H. Cochran Fisher, James A. DeForce, Frank D. Roach and Dwight T. Scott having already received the C. L. U. degree. It is expected that at least 100 local underwriters are in position to qualify within the next few years.

The most pathetic victims of the get-rich-quick security swindlers are beneficiaries of life insurance, who not only oftentimes lose their entire heritage, but the unwise investment destroys the time and ambitions of those who have passed on, declared Louis Rothschild, director of the Better Business Bureau, in a talk yesterday before the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association at Hay-Adams House.

Compared with other cities, Mr. Rothschild stated, Washington is comparatively free of such bad practices as rebating, which is the unlawful splitting of commissions by insurance salesmen; of contract raiding, high-pressure false promises in selling insurance, and other unethical practices.

The bureau anticipates working with the field practices committee of the association to prevent such standards from encroaching upon the city and to eliminate the few who may now be guilty in Washington.

Tri-Continental Corporation, stock of which is widely held here, reports for the six months ended June 30 net profit, after taxes and expenses, of $4,381,912. Income for the period was $4,758,770, including $577,525 from interest and $1,005,855 from dividends, exclusive of stock dividends received. The income from these two sources was $1,583,380. Preferred dividends for the six months period amounted to $1,300,950. Expenses were $254,496 and taxes $122,362, making total deductions from income $376,858.

Stock dividends received, at closing prices on the dates received, had a market value in excess of $230,000. Profit on syndicate participations was $120,844, and profits realized from the sale of securities, including stock dividends sold, amounted to $3,039,992. Miscellaneous profit was $14,554. The balance of income carried to surplus was $3,080,962. Surplus now stands at $29,434,815.

Directors of Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Co. have declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share on common stock and the regular semiannual dividend of $1.50 a share, both payable August 15, to stockholders of record August 4. An extra dividend of 50 cents a share was paid February 15.

Although sales in the six months ended June 30, were about 11 per cent less than in the corresponding period of 1929, business in June showed a very satisfactory improvement and sales for the month were well ahead of those for June, 1929.

F. George Clendaniel announces he has been appointed special agent of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. with offices in the Union Trust Building.

George A. Garrett, resident partner of F. B. Keech & Co., has returned from a vacation at his summer home at Newport, R. I.

Directors of the International Exchange Bank at their regular meeting yesterday declared the regular semiannual dividend of 3 per cent to shareholders of record as of June 30.

Air Lines Combined By Exchanging Stock

New York, July 10 (A.P.).—United Aircraft & Transport Corporation today announced it had acquired more than a majority of the outstanding common stock of Varney Air Lines, Inc., operator of air mail routes in the West, for exchange of common shares of United on the basis of one share of United for two of Varney. The shares obtained were owned by Walter T. Varney and Louis H. Mueller, chairman of the board and president, respectively, of Varney Co. No changes are contemplated in the management of Varney and within a short time formal offer will be made all remaining stockholders of Varney lines for exchange of their Varney stock on the basis of one share of United common for two of Varney.

Canadian Pacific Railway Company

Thirty-Year 4½% Collateral Trust Gold Bonds

To be dated July 1, 1930 — To mature July 1, 1960

Principal and semi-annual interest (January 1 and July 1) payable in gold coin of the Dominion of Canada of the present standard of weight and fineness at any branch of the Bank of Montreal in Canada (Yukon excepted) or, at the option of the holder, in United States gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness at the Agency of the Bank of Montreal in New York City. Coupon Bonds in the denominations of $1,000 and $500, registerable as to principal only. Fully registered Bonds in the denominations of $1,000, $5,000 and $10,000. Coupon and registered Bonds interchangeable.

Redeemable, at the option of the Company, in whole or in part, on any interest date, on 60 days' prior notice, at 104 on or before July 1, 1940; at 103 thereafter on or before July 1, 1945; at 102 thereafter on or before July 1, 1950; at 101 thereafter on or before July 1, 1955; at 100½ thereafter on or before July 1, 1959; and at 100 thereafter prior to maturity; in each case plus accrued interest.

THE ROYAL TRUST COMPANY, MONTREAL, TRUSTEE.

Mr. E. W. Beatty, K. C. Chairman and President of Canadian Pacific Railway Company, has furnished the following information:

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company Thirty-Year 4½% Collateral Trust Gold Bonds will be direct obligations of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and will be specifically secured by pledge with the Trustee of $30,000,000, principal amount, of Canadian Pacific Railway Company 4% Consolidated Debenture Stock.

The Consolidated Debenture Stock is authorized by Act of Parliament of the Dominion of Canada, passed in 1889, and subsequent Acts. By the terms of these Acts, the Consolidated Debenture Stock constitutes a first charge on the entire assets and undertaking of the Company, except lands received by way of subsidy, subject to certain priorities and to the payment of working expenses as defined in the Railway Act. The priorities, or underlying obligations, aggregate $38,641,724, principal amount, and cover only 1,642 miles of railroad, whereas the lines embraced in the Company's traffic returns aggregate 15,242 miles.

Interest on the Consolidated Debenture Stock is, therefore, a first charge, subject to the above priorities, upon the net earnings and special income of the Company, which in the year 1929 amounted to $58,376,764. The requirements of the securities underlying the Consolidated Debenture Stock amounted to $1,907,396, and the interest charges on the Consolidated Debenture Stock amounted to $11,061,795, which, together with rentals and other interest charges, resulted in total fixed charges, for the year 1929, of $16,149,003. Fixed charges were thus earned over 3.5 times. For the ten-year period ended December 31, 1929, such net earnings and special income have averaged over 3.5 times the average annual fixed charges.

The Company's Collateral Trust Gold Bonds have priority over $122,048,587, aggregate par value, of preference stock and $335,000,000, aggregate par value, of common stock, representing an equity at current market prices of over $700,000,000. The preference stock has received 4% dividends, without interruption since its issuance in 1893. The common stock has received dividends continuously since 1882, the rate since 1911 having been 10% per annum.

As of December 31, 1929, there was outstanding in the hands of the public $276,544,882, aggregate principal amount, of Consolidated Debenture Stock, in addition to which $77,500,000, aggregate principal amount, of the said Consolidated Debenture Stock is pledged under three issues of Collateral Trust Gold Bonds now outstanding in the aggregate principal amount of $62,000,000, and an additional $30,000,000, principal amount of Consolidated Debenture Stock will be pledged under this issue.

The proceeds of this issue will be used chiefly to reimburse the Company's treasury for capital expenditures made and being made.

Application will be made to list these Bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

Price 98 and accrued interest, to yield 4.62%

These bonds are offered when, as and if issued to and received by us, and subject to the approval of all legal proceedings by Messrs. Shearman & Sterling, of New York, and Messrs. Meredith, Holden, Heward & Holden, of Montreal. It is expected that delivery in the first instance will be made on or about July 24, 1930, in the form of temporary bonds.

The National City Company — Guaranty Company of New York

Bank of Montreal

Lee, Higginson & Co. — The Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh

The Royal Bank of Canada — Wood, Gundy & Co., Inc.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

ALEXANDRIA'S UNION SERVICE LIST DRAWN

Schedule, Starting in August, Is to Cover Protestant Churches of City.

HIGHWAY BODY ASSAILED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

A series of union services, the schedule of which has just been announced by the Alexandria Ministerial Association, will be held in the various Protestant churches of the city in August, each Sunday evening, the first being in the Second Presbyterian Church, August 3, with the Rev. E. R. Spencer preaching the sermon. On August 10 the services will be in the First Baptist Church, with the Rev. Dr. D. L. Snyder in the pulpit; August 17, Trinity M. E. Church, the Rev. G. Wilbur Shipley, preacher; August 24, the M. E. Church South, the Rev. Dr. Pierce S. Ellis, preacher, and August 31, at the Old Presbyterian Meeting House, the Rev. Ernest M. Delaney, preacher.

The Ministerial Association has requested that persons attending deposit their church envelopes in the collection plate, and at the close of each service representatives of the various participating churches will separate the envelopes and turn them over to the churches for which they are intended. The loose offering will be divided equally among the participating churches.

The Ministerial Association has chosen these officers for the year: The Rev. Ernest M. Delaney, president; the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, vice president, and the Rev. E. R. Spencer, secretary and treasurer.

The regular meeting of Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, which was scheduled for last Friday night, will be held at 8 o'clock tonight in Gadsby's Tavern, Commander Howard L. Arnold has requested a full attendance, since the annual election of officers will be held.

The post degree team, headed by H. B. Lemon, will initiate a group of Washingtonians tonight. The team holds the record in the eighth district for the number of initiations and general efficiency.

A resolution adopted by the City Council severely criticizing the State Highway Commission for its action in improving the River road between here and Washington only as far south as the north bank of Four Mile Run, was forwarded yesterday to Gov. John Garland Pollard and to the highway commission. The resolution calls upon the commission to correct the dangerous condition created at the Four Mile Run Bridge before the lives of Alexandria citizens or of strangers in the community "shall be sacrificed to inexcusable lack of foresight or wanton heedlessness."

The original plan was to improve the road to the Potomac Yard Bridge; but after Alexandria instituted proceedings to annex a portion of Arlington County, the work of improvement was delayed; and instead of continuing to the original city limits, it was stopped at the new corporation line. The Four Mile Run Bridge, however, was left in its original condition, although the line is the center of the run, and several accidents have occurred at the bridge due to its sudden narrowing.

Three robberies of houses were reported to the local police yesterday—Fairfax Jackson, who conducts a store at 1008 North Royal street, reporting that his store was robbed of 400 pennies in packages, 20 loose pennies, $1 in change, a .38-caliber revolver, and a quantity of cigars, cigarettes, chewing and smoking tobacco.

Herbert Rogers, of 521 North Henry street, reported that some one entered his establishment and stole three razors, four clippers, and other barber's supplies valued at $25. Entrance was effected by means of a duplicate key.

The store of George J. Nalls, of 535 South Fairfax street, was entered and merchandise valued at $8 stolen. Entrance was gained by breaking the glass in a rear window.

Roy H. Case was chosen a director of the Alexandria Kiwanis Club at its weekly luncheon yesterday, filling the vacancy created by the death of Hugh T. Clarkson. Roberr G. Carter, president, made a report on the reecnt national convention at Atlantic City. The program was in charge of Raymond Bailey.

The police have been asked to locate Miss Dorothy Lampkin, 22 years old, who disappeared Monday from the home of Melvin Baker, on Glebe road. She is desribed as being 5 feet 8½ inches tall, weighing about 130 pounds. She has a stepfather, Robert Curtis, living in California, the report states.

A party of 22 children, from the New York tenements, have arrived here for a two-weeks' vacation under the auspices of the New York Tribune fresh air fund. The children, of whom there are fourteen girls and eight boys, are housed in private homes in and near the city.

The local committee in charge is composed of Mrs. F. D. Kirk, chairman; Mrs. Mauchlin Nivin, Mrs. Henry B. Steiner, Mrs. Irvin Diener, Mrs. George W. Roop, Mrs. Edwin E. Davison and Mrs. Charles M. Sheperson.

Robber Escapes Despite Bullets From Sheriff

Police last night had made no arrests in their search for the daring colored robber who held up two homes in nearby Maryland and escaped with about $60 early yesterday morning. The men robbed were George Barry, of Sheriff road near the District line, who lost $8, and John Foster, living near Cedar Heights, Md., who was robbed of $52.

Deputy Sheriff David Jones said yesterday that he had cornered the man in a pool room at Fairmont Heights, Md., but that the robber escaped in a shower of bullets.

Bowman Is Unopposed In Republican Primaries

Special to The Washington Post.

Martinsburg, W. Va., July 10.—Representative Frank L. Bowman, of Morgantown, Republican, representing the Second Congressional District, is unopposed for renomination for his post in the State-wide primaries August 5, official announcement today after close of the filings showed.

On the Democratic side Jennings Rudolph, young instructor in public speaking at Davis and Elkins College, W. Va., and Joe V. Gibson, attorney, of Kingwood, are entered.

Confederate Veteran Dies.

Lynchburg, Va., July 10 (Special).—Jerry Shartzer, 81 years old, a Confederate veteran, died Tuesday at his home in Campbell County, and his body was taken yesterday to Salem for burial.

Court Rules Hogs Stray at Own Risk

Owner of Orchard Freed of Blame in Deaths and Allowed Damages.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 10.—In awarding 75 cents damages to a landowner, a Rockingham circuit court jury here yesterday held that hogs which stray from their own home do so at their own risk and that the owner of the land visited is not responsible for any mishaps to the swine.

W. S. Shover, well-known stockman and farmer, brought suit against Dr. J. H. Deyerle, prominent surgeon and orchardist, for $80 damages, the value of four hogs which died while "visiting" in the Deyerle peach orchard last October. The surgeon filed a countersuit, claiming $107 damages as a result of the hogs foraging on his peaches and corn. Mr. Shover claimed that the hogs died from overexertion as the result of being chased off the Deyerle property.

The jury, in its verdict, held that the owner of the hogs was not entitled to any damages, but that Dr. Deyerle should be paid for one-half a barrel of corn consumed by the swine. The verdict set a record here, court attaches being unable to recall when damages for a lesser amount ever were awarded.

BYRD DENIES BRITISH APPLE BAN CHANGE

Former Governor Is Notified Embargo Will Last Till November 15.

ARGENTINE LIFTS ORDER

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., July 10.—The British government will not change the embargo on American commercial grade apples which became effective July 7 and continues until November 15, according to "definite information" received tonight by former Gov. Harry F. Byrd, one of the largest apple growers in the United States. Mr. Byrd said his information came from a thoroughly reliable source, and was that there is to be no modification of the order of the British board of trade.

The embargo is designed ostensibly to prevent spread of the apple fruit fly, or maggot, to the British Isles, although there is no prohibition against apples from Canada, where disease is prevalent.

Under terms of the order, only certified "fancy" and "U. S. No. 1" grades can be shipped into British territory. Limited shipments of these will go forward from New York Saturday. Ashby Sprint, a local exporter, sent a carload Yellow Transparents, U. S. No. 1, out today. They will be inspected by Federal agents in New York and certified accordingly. Color specifications are not required of that variety. They will go to Liverpool.

Argentina Withdraws Ruling.

Thomas B. Byrd, president of the Virginia State Horticultural Society, received word late today that Argentina had withdrawn its ruling against honoring United States Inspection Service certificates, and also had withdrawn an order that required a solid division in barrels and boxes. It insists, however, on all imported fruit remaining in cold storage eight days after arrival for observation. Withdrawal of the former ruling means, growers and exporters said, continuation of shipments of immense quantities of Ben Davis and Delicious varieties to South America.

Despite the tight British embargo, good prices already are being reported for York Imperial varieties on the American market. A Pennsylvania grower today sold a large block of Yorks packed, 2¼ inches up, for $3.50 per barrel.

A general trend from the free trade principle to one of protection, as reflected by many leading Englishmen and the press, is rapidly taking place in Great Britain, according to Harry K. Barr, president of the Barr Shipping Corporation, New York, here to confer with apple growers and buyers. He had just returned from a tour of the apple markets of the United Kingdom and continental Europe.

Complete Reversal Noted.

During the last few weeks Mr. McKenna, chairman of the Bank of England, for years one of the active advocates of the free trade idea, has expressed the opinion in the British press, said Mr. Barr, that the time was fast arriving for tariff protection. This attitude, he noted, was a complete reversal of the idea he had held for years.

(Associated Press.)

The Farm Board will investigate the quarantine instituted against certain United States apples by England and Wales to determine whether it is in effect an embargo.

The decision was reached yesterday by C. C. Teague, member representing fruits and vegetables. He said he did not believe the action said by the British government to have been taken to prevent the introduction of apple pests was intended as an embargo. Such a policy, Mr. Teague said, would be shortsighted on the part of any government.

City Council Accepts Bid on Sewage Plants

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., July 10.—The city council has accepted the proposal of Paul N. Howard, of Greensboro, N. C., for the construction of two sewage disposal plants, the contract price being $63,700, and has authorized the city manager to sign the contract.

The North Carolina firm was previously awarded the contract covering the sewer program for the city, and was low bidder on the present work. There were thirteen bidders on the disposal plant work, ranging from $63,700 to $112,550.15. The sum of $7,000 was appropriated for an asphalt distributor and tank.

Girl Scout Officers Chosen.

Cumberland, Md., July 10 (Special).—Mrs. George W. Legge was elected chairman of the community committee for Girl Scouts, Miss Elizabeth Lloyd Lowndes was made vice president; Mrs. A. M. Lichtenstein, treasurer, and Mrs. Irving Rosenbaum, secretary. The committee and a number of Girl Scout leaders were at Midland last night to witness the investiture of Midland Scouts.

JUSTICE WILL SIGN JAIL COMMITMENTS

Prince Georges Police Court Judge to Act on Writs Rather Than Clerk.

BUS ROUTE BIDS TO OPEN

Although county officials still contend that the signing of commitments by the clerk of the Police Court is legal, J. Chew Sheriff, Police Court magistrate for Prince Georges County, in the future will sign all commitments to the House of Correction.

This decision was announced yesterday by Judge Sheriff following the release on a writ of habeas corpus of Fred H. Stroebel, of Baltimore, by Judge Walter I. Dawkins, who ruled that Stroebel had been illegally committed in that the State constitution requires that the committing magistrate sign the commitment papers except in a court of record. The Prince Georges County Police Court is not a court of record, the judge held, and therefore it was not legal for Thomas R. Renault, clerk of the Police Court, to sign the commitments.

Judge Sheriff said that he had been advised that the act of the State Legislature creating the county police court empowered the clerk to sign the commitments, but that rather than provide a possible loophole through which prisoners could escape he would sign the commitments himself until such time as the status of the court clerk had been settled by the higher courts.

The release of Stroebel caused considerable consternation in Upper Marlboro and throughout the county and remained the chief topic of conversation among the lawyers and other court officials.

The judge said that he did not believe it would be necessary for him to sign commitments to the county jail, but that he would allow the clerk to continue to sign such writs.

The police commissioners of Mount Rainier will meet tonight to formulate plans for a drive on speakeasies in the town. The meeting has been called by Mayor John H. Beall, who hopes to clean up the town.

County officials are investigating the claims of Nace Henson, colored, who lives in an old ark near Fort Washington, with a view to providing a county old-age pension. The aged colored man is said to be 100 years old, although there are no documents to prove his age. It is probable that a pension will be paid him by the county and that he will be permitted to remain in the little ark he calls home and not made to go to the county farm.

John Newman, 14 years old, Capitol Heights, Md., was fined $1 yesterday by Judge J. Chew Sheriff in county police court at Capitol Heights on charges of assault and battery. He is alleged to have struck James Romasa, 12, with a baseball bat in the course of an argument over whose turn at bat it was in a baseball game. The judge severely lectured the youth and then made the fine low, as he did not wish to punish the boy's people.

Bids on several open bus routes will be opened by the Prince Georges County Board of Education August 12, it was announced yesterday by Nicholas Orem, county superintendent. Several bus lines have been awarded.

Bids on the following routes will be called for: Largo to Landover and Bladensburg Junior High Schools; Riverdale Wildecroft to Riverdale School; District Heights to Bradbury Heights School; Woodward to Brentwood and Mount Rainier Schools; Lusbys Gate and Bonds to Brandywine School, and Wards Store and Friendly to Oxon Hill School. All contracts will be contingent upon seating room for the children conveyed, allowing 10 inches for each child. Alternate bids are to be filed, one if the contractor furnishes the chassis and body and another if the board is to furnish the body.

The following routes have been renewed: Marlboro, Lewis Branson; Maryland Park, E. M. Suit, sixth and seventh grades from Seat Pleasant School to be transported to Maryland Park and Capitol Heights Schools; Bowie, Norman H. Beckett; Baden, Clarence Thornburg and R. A. Naylor; Surrattsville, Thomas S. Gwynn, and Oxon Hill, William H. Moore.

The board has decided to discontinue the line from Sharpersville to Piscataway and has not decided whether transportation will be provided from Bryans Point to Accokeek, the latter contingent upon whether or not the Piscataway School is kept open.

The board will consider at its next meeting the possibility of closing Piscataway School and sending the children to Oxon Hill Consolidated School by bus, it having been intimated that the patrons would be in favor of such a move. The board announced that it has no present intention of closing Good Luck School.

The resignation of William H. Hutton as a trustee of the Takoma Park School was accepted by the board. Competitive examinations for scholarships to St. John's College will be held August 7 and 8.

Union Veteran Expires At 93; Thrice Wounded

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., July 10.—Funeral services were held this afternoon for Isaacs L. Hall, 93, the last Union veteran of Confluence, who was three times wounded in the war and lost all the toes of one foot by an operation six years ago.

He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Grand Army of the Republic and the Union Veterans Association. He served a term as county poor director. He leaves three sons and four daughters and ten grandchildren. Silas Hall, a son, was killed in a coal mine in West Virginia in 1926.

Danville, Va., July 10 (Special).—Funeral services were held today for W. G. B. Fitzgerald, retired contractor, who died here Tuesday night following a stroke of paralysis, at the age of 72 years. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ella Oaks Fitzgerald, also four sisters, of Richmond.

ROCKVILLE FACES WATER SHORTAGE

Mayor Calls on Citizens for Cooperation in Saving Present Supply.

LIQUOR CAR IS SEIZED

Faced with a serious scarcity of water, because of the recent hot weather, Mayor J. Roger Spates of Rockville has issued a proclamation asking the citizens and businessmen of Rockville to conserve the town's water supply. The mayor hinted that even more drastic measures will be taken if the present drought continues and makes the situation worse.

Rockville's water situation becomes extremely precarious every year toward the middle of summer and for some years past the mayor has found it necessary to ask the cooperation of the citizens. Watering of lawns and other uses of water, which are not absolutely necessary, are being frowned upon by the city fathers in the period of the drought.

The chief cause of anxiety is that the town's water supply is likely to become so depleted that a bad fire would have disastrous consequences.

Steps have been taken by the mayor and council to effect a hook-up with the water mains of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission in order that a sufficient supply of water can be made available, but this probably will not become effective this summer. Mayor Spates has written to the sanitary commission asking for rates and requirements necessary to effect such a hook-up and it is understood that the commission looks with favor upon the plan, but there is considerable red tape to be cut before the plan can be effected.

Montgomery County police yesterday captured a light roadster loaded with 72 gallons of alleged liquor on the Colesville road near Glenmont. A colored man, who gave his name as James Williams, Q street near First street northwest, was arrested and charged with possession of intoxicants with intent to sell.

Williams told police that he had been running liquor for a year, but that this was his first attempt through Montgomery County. The policemen blocked the road by parking their machine crosswise, and Williams made no attempt to escape. Sergt. Guy L. Jones and Policeman Charles Barnes made the arrest.

Approximately 5 per cent of the work of constructing the overhead bridge over the grade crossing at Gaithersburg has been completed, according to State Roads Commission officials. The bridge will be completed this season, they promise. The cost of constructing the bridge and approaches is approximately $118,000. The T. D. Claiborne Co., of Baltimore, being the low bidder, was awarded the contract.

Elimination of the Gaithersburg crossing, together with the elimination of those at Kensington and Rockville, are considered important projects by the State Roads Commission.

Commission officials announced yesterday that it is expected that the contract for the construction of the Kensington grade crossing bridge will be awarded this week or the first part of next week. The bids on the project have been opened, but the contract will not be awarded until Chief Engineer H. C. Williar has had an opportunity to study the various proposals. The Rockville grade crossing also is slated for removal this year.

Officers Lose War On Slot Machines

Two in Lynchburg Acquitted and Other Defendants Are Liberated.

Lynchburg, Va., July 10.—Another effort on the part of city and State officers to confiscate slot machines came to an end today in the corporation court after two of nineteen defendants, recently convicted in municipal court, had been tried and dismissed by the court. Commonwealth's Attorney W. T. Spencer, jr., then entered a nolle prosequi in the other seventeen cases.

Judge Christian ruled that slot machines are not unlawful per se, but G. C. Ballard and Malcolm Swift, of the Baldwin Felto Detective Agency, testified that they cashed tokens won from the machines.

Paul Coleman and Royston Jester, of counsel for the defense, severely arraigned the methods of the city in the use of undercover agents to secure evidence against the accused. They held that it is the duty of the city and State to prevent crime and not produce it.

Charlottesville Miller Dies.

Charlottesville, Va., July 10 (Special).—John W. Chandler, a miller in the employ of the Brown Milling Co., died yesterday at University Hospital, where he had been under treatment since July 4. Mr. Chandler was a son of the late Strother Chandler, and was born in West Virginia 59 years ago. He is survived by his wife and several children.

Cedar Rust Suits Receive Setback

One $15,000 Action Results in Judgment for Fraction of Amount.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., July 10.—The cedar rust suits which aggregated more than $300,000 received a setback today when Judge Rodgers, of the circuit court, rendered a decision giving one of the plaintiffs of the numerous suits a verdict of $416.

The amount claimed by the estate of Henry Martin, of Shepherdstown, in a suit against State Entomologist Rumsey was $15,000. The case was heard by Judge Rodgers without a jury about six weeks ago. The suit, with a number of others, grew out of the cutting of red cedars in Jefferson County, chiefly in the vicinity of Shepherdstown. The judge, in arriving at his decision, stated he had carefully weighed the evidence of both sides, had carefully viewed the premises, and after careful consideration, estimated the amount of damage suffered from the cutting of the numerous cedars, including the cleaning up of the large farm, at the amount given.

Counsel for the plaintiff gave notice they would appeal from the decision. The cases have attracted widespread attention in the newspapers in the East. Under the State law, under complaint of owners of orchards, red cedars can be cut by the State and reasonable damages can be obtained from the orchard tax.

LOUDOUN REELECTS SCHOOL OFFICIALS

Board Agrees to Reimburse Fairfax County for Tuition Costs.

NEXT MEETING AUGUST 4

Special to The Washington Post.

Purcellville, Va., July 10.—Officers of the Loudoun County School Board were reelected at a meeting held here. They are: William T. Smith, chairman; Charles J. Ford, vice chairman, and Miss Ruth Emerick, clerk. A leave of absence beginning about August 8 for three weeks was granted the superintendent of schools.

The board agreed to pay to the Fairfax County School Board for 1930-31 tuition at cost for all children from this county attending any elementary school in Fairfax County, provided that this board will not pay tuition for any children living nearer a school in Loudoun County than the school attended in Fairfax County. The board will not pay tuition for any child who lives near a school in Loudoun County, provided further there will first be deducted the amount of tuition upon the basis above named for any Fairfax children who may attend Loudoun County schools.

The officers of the board were directed, subject to the approval of the board of supervisors to arrange a temporary loan not in excess of $10,000 for five months or less at not over 6 per cent interest.

Trustees were authorized to employ janitors for 1930-31 at the salaries paid in 1929-30.

Mrs. Emile N. Windle, of East Radford, was appointed as rural supervisor at $2,025 for salary and traveling allowance for nine months.

The rules and regulations for teachers for 1930-31 were revised, approved and ordered printed.

The resignations of the following were accepted: Juliet Jones, history and Latin, Round Hill; Lucille Griffin, Clark's Gap and Cool Spring; Mildred Neale, Purcellville.

Colored teachers were appointed as follows: Ashburn, Helen Daly; Watson, Charles H. Willis; Hamilton, Clara Robinson; Waterford, Esther Randolph; Round Hill, Clarence Coles; Lovettsville, Milda M. Smith. Rock Hill, Lucille B. Clay; St. Louis, Laura Cook; Purcellville, primary, Harriet E. Tall; Hughesville, Bettie Coates.

The next meeting of the board will be on August 4, at which time the question of closing the Bluemont Colored School for lack of attendance will be considered.

BIDS ON ARLINGTON SCHOOL ARE OPENED

Board Rejects 13 Offers, but Holds Two in Abeyance for Consideration.

TAX COLLECTION PUSHED

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Bids ranging from $132,400 to $177,939 were opened by the Arlington County School Board at the courthouse yesterday for the alterations and additions to the Washington-Lee High School. The total number of bidders was fifteen.

Following the opening of the bids, Chairman Thomas J. DeLashmutt announced that the board would meet and make a study of the bids, returning the $5,000 certified checks accompanying each bid of those rejected.

After a careful study of all bids, Chairman DeLashmutt announced that all were rejected excepting those of J. H. Coleman, of Lynchburg, Va., whose bid was $132,400, and that of the J. J. McDevitt Construction Co., of Charlotte, N. C., $134,800, they still being considered by the school board.

According to the school board, the successful bidder will be announced by Wednesday of next week.

The plans and specifications which have been prepared by State Architect Raymond V. Long provide for the addition of 32 classrooms.

Both bids which are being considered provide for the completion of the work not later than January 15, 1931, with a penalty of $50 for each day work is not completed.

No announcement was made by the school board as to the date that bids for the enlargement to the school buildings in Lyon Park, Aurora Hills, Aurora Heights and Bon Air will be opened.

Pursuant to recent action taken by the county board of supervisors relative to the collection of delinquent real estate taxes, Commonwealth's Attorney William C. Gloth announced yesterday that he is now preparing to file approximately 200 suits in the county clerk's office in connection with the matter.

These suits are being filed in the county clerk's office in accordance with the acts of the General Assembly providing for collection of delinquent real estate taxes.

The "Ball for Congress Club," recently organized in the Ballston Precinct, will hold a special meeting tonight at the Firemen's Hall. All members and those interested in the selection of State Senator L. Ball as the Democratic nominee, to be determined at the Democratic primary August 5, are invited to attend the meeting.

Mrs. Margaret S. Tapp was installed as president of the Arlington Volunteer Fire Department Ladies Auxiliary at a largely attended meeting held last night in the new firehouse. Other officers installed are: Mrs. Elinor Scheffel, vice president; Mrs. J. E. Bamforth, secretary; Mrs. Carl Scheffel, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Rufus Trice, treasurer. The officers were installed by past vice president, Mrs. Emma S. Blackmer.

Addressing the meeting, Julian E. Tapp, president of the fire department, explained the plans made for the annual carnival to be given on the grounds adjoining the firehouse the week of August 2.

The meeting concluded with a buffet supper winding up in a surprise party in honor of Mrs. Jacob F. Scheffel, who is celebrating her sixty-ninth birthday next week.

Brady Brothers, of Cumberland, road contractors who last fall laid the black top surface on Wilson boulevard at the time the voulevard was widened, are now in the county making the necessary repairs where the surface has settled.

County Engineer C. L. Kinnier stated yesterday that all spots where any settlement is developed will be corrected at this time.

According to an announcement made yesterday from the office of Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, arrangements have been completed whereby the county school dentist, Dr. C. R. Boyland, will visit both the graded and high school during the summer classes.

This is the first time that students in the high school have had the opportunity of taking advantage of the services of the school dentist, Dr. Chichester stated, and it is hoped that they will avail themselves of the opportunity.

Dr. Boyland will visit the graded schools during the morning hours and the Washington Lee High School in the afternoon.

Following an illness of only two days, Mrs. Bertha Lena King, 58 years old, widow of Joseph M. King, died at her home, 448 Wilson boulevard, Clarendon, yesterday. Mrs. King leaves one son, Howard King. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Dr. Samuel M. Johnson, president of the National Boulevard Association, was in Arlington County yesterday. He announced that work of obtaining the needed rights of way for the 200-foot Lee Boulevard is progressing rapidly and hoped within the next ten days to have all in hand to carry the project from the Fort Myer Military Reservation to Fort Buffalo.

The Arlington County Medical Society will hold its quarterly meeting Monday night in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce at 8 o'clock.

Greeted with a large attendance, A. F. Thelander, newly elected president, presided at the meeting of the Arlington Rotary Club held yesterday at the Washington Golf and Country Club.

The club, beginning its second year, celebrated its first anniversary with a special program which included presenting of a past president's Rotary pin to the retiring president, Dr. Richard N. Sutton. The presentation was made by the secretary, J. Hammond Brewer, jr. To Col. Charles T. Jesse and M. B. Mitchell went special Rotary pins for 100 per cent attendance during the last year. The pins were presented by the vice president, Thomas W. Phillips.

Secretary Brewer gave a most interesting and detailed report of the club's activities during its first year.

President Thelander, who recently returned from Chicago, where he attended the annual National Rotary Conference as the representative of the local club, made an extensive report of the doings at the conference.

Among the club's guests were Dorsey Hyde and W. F. Benizer, members of the Washington Rotary Club.

Bailey Child Funeral Held.

Danville, Va., July 10 (Special).—Funeral services were held this afternoon for Clarence, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Bailey, of Pelham, Caswell County, N. C., who died at his parents' home Tuesday.

Forest Fire Rages In Virginia Lands

4,000 Acres Are in Peril; Blaze Near Hoover's Camp Burns Out.

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., July 10.—A baffling forest fire continued to rage tonight over the Blue Ridge Mountain slopes between Kimball and Elkeyville, Page County, in the heart of the Shenandoah National Park area. Strong winds today shecked the efforts of 100 to 150 fire fighters seeking to control the blaze.

Estimates were that the blaze has burned over 3,000 to 4,000 acres, some valuable timberland, since it started Tuesday. The mountain brush is dry as tinder, affording excellent fuel for the rapid spread of the flames and making the task of the fire fighters a difficult one. These fighters are battling over a six-mile fireline.

Another Page County fire near Blainsville, five miles southeast of Luray, and extending over the top of the ridge is reported to have burned itself out. This blaze was in the general area of the Hoover camp on the Rapidan.

SYDNOR PONY LEADS IN VIRGINIA SHOW

Miss Wood Is Expected to Be Awarded Cup at Warrenton.

MANY RESULTS LISTED

Special to The Washington Post.

Warrenton, Va., July 10.—With the exception of two classes and the awarding of the various championships, the eleventh Warrenton pony show has passed into history. It is generally conceded that Miss Woodford, owned by Florence and Eugene Sydnor, will be awarded the grand championship and the Blanche Ortman challenge cup, the most coveted prize of the entire show. It is given the pony or horse winning the most points. This good pony of the Sydnors swept both the early morning classes easily. Jane W. Stevenson's Atoka took the blue in the road hack classes with the Nesbit's Sportman second.

Helen Buchanan's Pocahontas was awarded the blue in a large class for jumping ponies. The competition was spirited in the little child's class and the youngsters fought hard for the coveted blue, which finally went to Jane Baldwin's Blackie. Thirty showed in the open jumping class and Miss Elizabeth Nesbit's Cathode Ray, with an excellent performance, was given the blue, with Spring Weather, from the Chilmark Hunter Stud, a good second.

George and Anthony Rives with Frosty took first in the pony handicap class and second with the same pony in the next class junior horsemanship. In the latter class, where riding and general appearance counts the most, Patches, owned by Robert H. R. Blickle and ridden by John L. R. Gaines, was the winner of the blue.

Spring Maid Takes First.

Again in the bareback class the Rives entry, Spring Maid, scored with a first over Miss Nesbit's Sportman. The Eastwood Plate, the handsome Blickle trophy, was taken by Mrs. Oliver Filly with her brown gelding Lovings. Miss Woodford placed second in this class.

Louise Sharp piloted her black gelding, Natty, to victory in the pony triple bar and in the next class for Shetlands took the red. Miss Charlotte Smith took the blue in this class.

Good weather prevailed throughout the day and both horses and ponies, made on the whole, excellent performances. The jumping was again, as on the first day, unusually clean. The judging appeared unduly slow again and set back the time table of the show about an hour, preventing the obtaining of the last few classes.

Summary of Events.
